20 BIG TRADERS ARE SUBPENAED BY COMMITTEE

TO BEGIN TESTIMONY AT QUIZ HERE TODAY

Books and Records Also Are Demanded in Probe Into Short Selling.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Acting on an old rule of the trade which instructs that the only way to be certain of what is happening in Wall street is to be on the ground when it happens, the Senate banking and currency committee sent its agents into a dozen or more brokerage offices up and down the street yesterday to serve subpenas on twenty of the most conspicuous figures in the American security markets. The first of the group are to appear today to tell the committee what makes the wheels go 'round in a big bear operation.

Served suddenly and unexpectedly in the midst of a listless but significant market day, the summons demanded also such books of account, records, sales slips and trade statistics as might enable the committee to determine whether excessive short selling unduly depresses stock values. Along this line, the investigation will be resumed at 10:30 this morning in the spacious, marble-trimmed committee room in the Senate Office Building.

Whitney to Resume Stand.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, first will resume the witness stand to clear up a number of points left open at his cross-examination last Monday by William A. Gray, the committee's counsel. The inquiry will then turn to a play-by-play examination of specific bear-raiding operations, as disclosed in the voluminous stock exchange records made available to committee experts last Saturday.

At the same time, the committee will make public the list of the more influential traders identified with large-scale short commitments as of April 8, 1932.

The purpose of this procedure will be to develop the reasons for short-selling by each individual trader, or, where dummy accounts were invoked, to reveal the nature and purpose of the undercover operation.

May Reveal True Nature.

Out of the 24,000 short-sellers in the market as of April 8, committee experts have selected some 350 whose accounts involved 2,500 shares or more. It is the belief of those in charge of the investigation that the specific reasons which motivated sales of this character may, when applied to the financial position of the corporation involved, go far toward establishing the true nature of the short sale.

Mr. Whitney has contended vigorously that such sales are a stabilizing influence in the market, and in this he has been sustained by the entire brokerage community.

On the other hand, some of Wall street's most influential bankers and financial counselors have assisted the committee in its quiet but intensive quest for those traders who might be expected to be in a position to throw the most light on the whole subject to bear market trading.

Efforts to Divert Quiz Fail.

Efforts of certain committee members over the week-end to divert the inquiry from its original purpose through the circulation of rumors that members of the Cabinet were among the recent short sellers were frustrated yesterday by the official disclosure that no man in public office has been identified in the list. This announcement came from a member of the committee, who has

Troops May Halt Oil Drilling in City

Murray Holds Wells in Capital of Oklahoma Fire Menace.

Oklahoma City, April 20 (A.P.).—"Military rule" in every Oklahoma City residential block was threatened today by Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray as a final measure to prevent drilling for oil.

Declaring oil like that in the great field overlapping the Southern city limits here does not bring lasting benefit to a town or State, Gov. Murray named a committee to survey every block and determine where drilling would constitute a fire hazard. The governor already has banned drilling within a mile of the capitol, located in northern Oklahoma City.

14 European Nations Get U. S. Debt Notices

Reparations Omission in British Budget Is Hit in Commons.

Berlin, April 20 (U.P.).—The next German budget will follow the example of Britain and omit reference to reparations payments, it was said reliably today. The government was reticent concerning the British budget omission, but the press loudly praised the action, calling it a "death sentence" for reparations.

London, April 20 (A.P.).—The omission from the British budget of any provision for war debt payment to the United States was assailed in the House of Commons today by Maj. C. R. Attlee, speaking for the Labor opposition.

The chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, who presented the budget in Parliament yesterday, apparently worked on the principle that he wouldn't have to make any American payment, the Labor member asserted.

"There is already a reminder from the United States that there is not the slightest chance of our getting any relief from that quarter," he continued; "therefore the chancellor has not really met the budget situation in this respect at all."

Members of the House were uncertain about the precise nature of the American "reminder" to which Maj. Attlee referred. Senator Borah's speech in the Senate yesterday, in which he said cancellation would State Department Acts to Forestall Any Move for Default.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States has formally requested the 14 European nations, beneficiaries of the Hoover moratorium to sign the legal forms acknowledging their indebtedness and fixing the repayment of the $252,000,000 postponed annuity over a period of 10 years at 4 per cent.

At the time President Hoover offered his 12-month debt paying holiday to the European debtors of the United States, the agreements were merely initialed by the respective powers.

The State Department has decided to take this action in order to forestall any attempt of the European debtors to merge the unpaid sums of last year with a general default or any action similar to that of the British chancellor of the exchequer on Tuesday.

Great Britain ignored all reference to American debt payments in the presentation of the forthcoming British budget in Parliament. Neville Chamberlain, the chancellor, explained that some adjustments might be made after the Lausanne conference.

This means a possible loss to the United States of $270,000,000, if other continental creditors follow British example.

Debt notices were forwarded to all embassies and legations here representative of the countries who signed

D. A. R. NOMINATES NATIONAL OFFICERS

Mrs. R. W. Magna Heads List as President General; Wreaths Are Laid.

Arrayed in her wedding dress of white satin, trimmed with rare old lace, remodeled for this red letter night in her life, Mrs. Russell William Magna, of Holyoke, Mass., was nominated without opposition to the high office of president general of the D. A. R. last night at an interesting session of the forty-first Continental Congress of that organization in Constitution Hall.

Watching the scene proudly as Mrs. Magna received this tribute accorded few women in D. A. R. history—election to its highest office without opposition—were Mrs. Magna's father, Col. Walter Scott, of New York, and her husband, Russell William Magna, of Massachusetts.

With Mrs. Magna were nominated, also without opposition, ten candidates for the national offices. Ten candidates also were put up for the eight vacancies in the ranks of the vice presidents general of the society.

Mrs. Magna was placed in nomination by Mrs. Stephen P. Hurd, State regent of Massachusetts, and her official seconder was Mrs. Francis C. Wilson, of New Mexico.

The other national officers nominated were as follows: Chaplain General, Mrs. Raymond C. Kimball; recording Secretary General, Mrs. Henry B. Joy; corresponding secretary general, Mrs. John M. Beavers, Washington, D. C.; organizing secretary general, Mrs. Frank H. Fercells; registrar general, Mrs. Stanley Forman Reed; treasurer general, Miss Katherine A. Nettleton; historian general, Mrs. William Louise Dunne; librarian general, Mrs. Frank W. Dick; curator general, Miss Myra Hazard, and reporter general, Mrs. Frank Phelps Toms.

World Leaders Ready For Big Session Today

Geneva, April 20 (U.P.).—The most impressive gathering of world statesmen in the history of the League of Nations will begin in Geneva tomorrow when the premiers or foreign ministers of every great power except Japan meet informally for discussion of outstanding international problems.

There is considerable optimism concerning the outcome of the conversations, particularly in regard to possible solution of the long-standing Franco-Italian deadlock on naval limitation which has been one of the most serious obstacles in the path of the disarmament conference.

Australia Will Float Loans for Idle Relief

Melbourne, Australia, April 20 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Joseph Lyons today announced a cooperative plan among the commonwealth and four Australian states for relief of unemployment by flotation of state loans and commonwealth contributions totaling £3,000,000 (currently about $11,310,000).

NEW YORK LOTHARIO AND GIRL MURDERED

Man With Two "Wives" Is Found Dead With His Third Sweetheart.

Mineola, L. I., April 20 (U.P.).—Vengeance struck viciously out of the darkness today to kill Edward B. Brinker, who was separated from a meek-mannered wife in Brooklyn, lived with another woman in Jackson Heights, and was wooing a third, an unmarried working girl.

Near his body, in an unfrequented lane shrouded with budding bushes, was the unconscious form of his last sweetheart, Rose Welk, a 24-year-old stenographer. Her mouth had been sealed with cotton and adhesive tape. But though the gag was removed and she tried to speak, no word came from her battered lips before she died in a Mineola hospital.

Brinker and the girl had battled for their lives. The soil around them was ripped and churned. Dirt was ground into their bodies. Their clothes were in ribbons.

Knife thrusts and crashing blows from bludgeons had stabbed and battered them to death.

Then, when they were quiet, the slayers had taken a cord from Edward Brinker's pocket, affixed it to a stick, and set it up as a grim and mocking identification for those who should discover the tragedy.

All this happened in the black hours of this morning, within the suburban precincts of Garden City

Leiter's Estate Goes to Family

Home Here Is Willed to Son; No Estimate of Fortune Is Made.

Chicago, April 20 (A.P.).—The bulk of the estate of Joseph Leiter, financier-sportsman, will go to his widow, Mrs. Juliet Leiter, it was learned today. Attorneys planned to probate the will later.

No estimate of the estate has been made, as the inventory has not been completed. One portion of the estate, 49,000 shares of the Ziegler Coal & Coke Co., is worth $5,000,000 at present market values.

Provision has been made for a son and daughter, Thomas and Nancy. The son, it was said, would receive his father's racing stable, the hunting lodge on the Louisiana gulf coast and the Leiter home in Washington, D. C. The son has announced that the stable would be sold at auction.

Rolph to Make Known Mooney Decision Today

San Francisco, April 20 (A.P.).—Gov. James Rolph, Jr., expects to make known his decision on the pardon application of Thomas T. Mooney tomorrow before leaving for Richmond, Va., to attend a governor's conference.

He said he would announce his findings in the case of the convicted bomber of a 1916 preparedness day parade here "as soon as possible after noon." He said, "There are still some matters under investigation."

AID REQUESTED OF POLLARD ON ARLINGTON QUIZ

Legal Help Asked, With Shortages Now Fixed at $400,000.

ACTION BY GOVERNOR IS EXPECTED TODAY

Ball and Hallock Plead Not Guilty; Duncan's Condition Subject of Clash.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia is expected to act today on the request of State Auditor T. Coleman Andrews for legal counsel from the attorney general's office to aid in straightening out the tangled threads of Arlington County's financial situation, where a $400,000 shortage has already been found in the accounts of a former official, a former county employe and the county clerk.

Mr. Andrews, in a telephone interview with The Post from Richmond, last night emphasized the fact that his request for legal counsel in no way reflected on the manner in which the case had been handled by Arlington County authorities. On the contrary, he said, his assistants and himself had been given every cooperation possible and that the local officials had done everything in their power to hurry the case to a close.

The request for legal aid was merely made to safeguard the civil rights of a number of persons in the case, where frankly the auditors did not know the proper method of procedure or did not have the power to act, he said.

Not Guilty Pleas.

Meantime, in Arlington County, not guilty pleas by E. Wade Ball, former county treasurer, and F. J. Hallock, former clerk to the county school board, and a clash over the physical condition of County Clerk William H. Duncan, third defendant in the case, were the developments yesterday.

At the request of their attorneys when indictments against the trio charging grand larceny of State funds were returned Monday, arraignment before Circuit Judge Walter T. McCarthy was set for yesterday. Duncan was not in court Monday and a certificate from his physician was presented.

His attorney, Amos C. Crounse, appeared for him in court again yesterday and explained that he was still ill. Judge McCarthy immediately ordered an examination by a physician and the case was held open until this morning at 10 o'clock when the physician will report.

Clash Over Duncan.

"This court is not being run for attorneys nor for Mr. Duncan's convenience. I want to know more about his condition!" Judge McCarthy exclaimed when he was informed by Mr. Crounse that his client could not appear.

Judge McCarthy declared that Duncan did not appear on Monday and that a certificate from his physician was taken away by his attorneys. Mr. Crounse replied that he would get in touch with his associ-

VETERANS' FUND CUTS REJECTED BY HOUSE BODY

GARNER HITS WILBUR ON INTERIOR SLASHES

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A House committee that has doggedly insisted on every practical economy in Government, balked yesterday at cutting veterans' compensation, then proceeded to map a "yardstick" method for granting the President reorganization authority.

Two sections striking $28,000,000 from veterans' allowances and hospital costs were dropped from the administration omnibus savings bill by the House economy group. The change reduced Veterans Administration savings under the bill to $39,500,000.

Today the committee will move to limit reorganization powers granted the President to specified items "that will amount to Congress doing the job," Chairman John McDuffie said.

Original Williamson Plan.

The original Williamson plan, granting the President unlimited authority to consolidate like Government functions, eliminating unnecessary bureaus, commissions, overlappings and waste, was given little chance of committee approval. Chairman McDuffie said a "yardstick" must be applied to executive reorganization power.

While the committee extended itself to complete the omnibus bill today, in time for report tomorrow, friction over economy methods cropped out again between House Democratic leaders and administrative officials. Secretary Wilbur's criticism of Interior Department supply cuts provoked Speaker Garner to strike back at the Interior Secretary. Opposition to the Senate 10 per cent appropriation slashes, approved in principle by the House, meanwhile developed in another high administrative quarter.

Speaker Garner took exception to Dr. Wilbur's charge of congressional "hocus pocus."

Replies to Wilbur.

"The trouble is Secretary Wilbur and his department have done nothing toward economy, hocus pocus or otherwise," Speaker Garner said. He declared the administrative branch of the Government, outside of Mr. Hoover's economy suggestions, has not cooperated.

On the other hand, it was pointed out in a high administrative quarter that some of the congressional 10 per cent appropriations cuts, particularly in Postoffice-Treasury supplies, will mean a certain reduction in the number of employes.

As applied to the latter measure, it would slow down the mails and hit every branch from the first class offices down. Slashes in Treasury appropriations other than public works, while providing new jobs for contract labor, would mean loss of positions

Columbia System Reported To Have Contract on WJSV

Negotiations May Mean Abandonment of WMAL and Latter Going Over to N. B. C. Chain; Capital May Get Complete WABC Broadcasts.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

If the Columbia Broadcasting System has entered into a five-year contract to take over Station WJSV, with renewal privilege of two five-year periods, as was learned from a reliable source last night, it opens up considerable speculation with regard to the local broadcasting situation.

Station WJSV would probably broadcast Columbia programs now being heard over WMAL, owned by M. A. Leese, whose contract with Columbia expires next November, but has a clause allowing either party to cancel after 60 days' notice.

There is a possibility that Columbia might use WJSV for its Dixie network—about sixteen Southern stations, including Atlanta, Birmingham and New Orleans, which has no outlet in Washington. That it is intended to replace WMAL is considered more likely.

If Columbia gives up WMAL it is believed the National Broadcasting Co. will renew its negotiations to lease WMAL, which would enable the N. B. C. to give the Capital the full schedule of programs originating with WJZ in New York. At present Washington is on a split network, receiving a majority of WEAF programs, with a few from the WJZ hookup.

If the NBC secured WMAL it would probably be on a rental basis as thus far Mr. Leese has declined to sell the station outright, although he is said to have been offered more than $250,000. What consideration is involved in the WJSV negotiations is not known, but the property and equipment is understood to be valued at upwards of $100,000.

One possibility is that if Columbia acquires WJSV it has in mind using the Virginia transmitter as a booster station for WABC, Columbia's key station. This would give Washington exactly the same programs as WABC broadcasts in New York.

Some time ago Columbia applied to the Radio Commission for the privilege of installing a WABC booster in Washington, but was denied on the ground that it would introduce new facilities into the District.

Another theory is that Columbia might apply for permission to move WJSV's transmitter nearer to Washington, perhaps to Rosslyn, so that

REFUSAL TO ANSWER ENDS STIRRING SCENE

Washington Woman, Wife of Officer, Tells Story of Attack by Five.

Honolulu, April 20 (A.P.).—A document presumably containing evidence of a rift between herself and her husband was destroyed by Mrs. Thalia Massie in a dramatic flash of anger on the witness stand today while she was testifying in behalf of the young naval officer and three others accused of lynching Joseph Kahahawai.

Between showers of tears that brought wet eyes to many in the courtroom, Mrs. Massie had just told of the attack upon her by five men, one of whom allegedly was Kahahawai, and how it had left its mark upon Lieut. Thomas H. Massie.

After Clarence Darrow, veteran defense attorney, motioned Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley to take up the cross-questioning, Kelley swiftly obtained an admission that Mrs. Massie had taken a psychopathic examination at the University of Hawaii last summer.

Crowd Applauds Defiance.

Then he handed Mrs. Massie a paper purporting to be her answers to the examination questions, in which the alleged rift was mentioned.

Mrs. Massie stiffened and her eyes blazed.

"This is a confidential paper between a physician and his patient. Where did you get it?" she demanded.

"I am asking questions, not answering them," Kelley retorted.

"I refuse to say whether I wrote it!" Mrs. Massie stormed. With eyes blazing and lips set she ripped the paper to pieces as a wave of applause swept the audience.

Judge Charles S. Davis' voice likewise shook with anger and he lectured the audience for the demonstration. The attractive blonde witness swept down off the stand and her husband met her and put his arm around her.

The gage of anger seized the prosecutor. As Mrs. Massie left the chair Kelley arose and said:

Witness Repeats Rumors.

The young woman sat beside her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, co-defendant with Massie, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord in the lynching case. Again she burst into tears such as frequently interrupted the story she had told in support of the defense contention—that Massie held the gun that killed Kahahawai after the latter admitted taking part in the attack.

With the protecting arm of her husband around her Mrs. Massie sobbed out:

"They are trying to say I don't love you. Everybody knows I love you!"

In her direct testimony Mrs. Massie acknowledged hearing rumors that were circulated after a jury had disagreed as to the guilt of the five men accused of attacking her. She mentioned reports that the attack had been by a Navy officer; that her husband was getting a divorce and that it was Massie and not Kahahawai who had broken her jaw.

Mrs. Massie had been called to the stand presumably as the last witness for the defense. This was after the

FRENCH TRADE BARS SUBJECT OF PARLEY

Claudel and Castle Seek Way Out of Impasse; Progress Is Seen.

Negotiations between France and the United States for settlement of the tariff and trade controversy between the two countries have been initiated here, it was learned at the State Department yesterday. Acting Secretary of State William R. Castle, jr., and French Ambassador Paul Claudel discussed the drop in American exports to France caused by the French system of quotas.

At the same time discussions are also under way to remove the trade obstacles between the United States and Spain in the matter of artificial restraints upon American-Spanish trade. These conversations are proceeding "very satisfactorily," according to the Acting Secretary of State.

The seriousness of the American foreign trade situation was foreshadowed in the report for the first quarter of this year which was recently made public by the Department of Commerce. Due to foreign trade restrictions of one kind or another, American exports had dropped dangerously near an unfavorable balance of trade. This would be the first time that such a condition existed in this country since the war.

For the first three months of this year American exports exceeded imports by the comparatively narrow figure of $62,409,000, while the same

Man Is Believed Trapped by Fire

Firemen From Three Cities Are Summoned to Blaze Near Alexandria.

Fire of unknown origin late last night was believed to have trapped an unidentified man of about 50 years of age in a combination filling station, store and dwelling four miles west of Alexandria on Lee Jackson highway.

The flames were discovered by Capt. Haywood J. Durrer, of the Fairfax County police force, who had just returned to his home next door and had gone to his bedroom on the second floor when he looked out of the window and saw the building engulfed in flames. He said a man who had been living in the building had been seen there earlier in the evening and it was his belief that he had not escaped from the flames.

Firemen from Falls Church, Fairfax and Alexandria were summoned and were making efforts to save the structure under handicap of a lack of water. The building had recently been rented by its owner, Jesse R. Harlowe, to L. E. Withers, of Burke.

State Auditor of Iowa Faces Padding Charge

Des Moines, Iowa, April 20 (A.P.).—An order of suspension from office was signed by Gov. Dan Turner today for immediate service on State Auditor J. W. Long.

WIMBLEY JURY GETS CONFESSION ON PLOT

Story Told by Crowder on Drowning of Woman and Daughter Is Read.

The story of the alleged plot to burn the family of Mrs. Elizabeth Traylor Wimbley in their home in Dendron, Va., yesterday was related to a jury in the Supreme Court by Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins, who read the confession of John M. Crowder, the alleged accomplice of Harry Wimbley in the murder of his wife and her daughter.

Both Crowder and Wimbley, who the Government charges drowned the couple in the C. & O. Canal on September 17, in order to collect a $10,000 accident insurance policy, listened closely as Mr. Collins read Government exhibit No. 13, which is the plot confessed by Crowder against the lives of Wimbley's wife's family.

Neither the mother of Crowder, who lives on St. George Island, Md., nor the father of Wimbley, who lives in Wewoka, Okla., is aware that his or her son is on trial for murder. Other relatives have shielded them from the news by withholding newspapers from them.

The Government is expected to rest its case late today or early tomorrow. The defense is expected to complete its case late this week. Efforts are being made to conclude the testimony before Saturday. Both Wimbley and Crowder, it is expected, will take the stand in their defense.

For three hours Detective Sergt. Floyd A. Truscott, of the Homicide Squad, told the story of the investigation of the drownings and subsequent statement of Crowder, in which he admitted the plot against Mrs. Wimbley, but maintained that the actual drownings were accidental.

In minute detail Mr. Collins read the tale of plot which began when Wimbley and Crowder started to Dendron on September 14, and fashioned sand bags from a cloth they found in the automobile they had

SENATE MAY RETURN TO SALES TAX PLAN

Reed Favors Reinstatement After Hearing Protests of House Provisions.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

The Senate finance committee yesterday heard demands for insertion of additional embargo tariffs in the tax bill and listened to another long list of witnesses who declared the Federal budget must be balanced, protesting at the same time the taxes proposed to achieve that goal would ruin their businesses.

Lumber, pulpwood, newsprint paper and butter were added to the list of commodities for which demands have been made for embargo import tariffs. Businesses objecting to the taxes in the House bill included penny candies, sporting goods, matches, near beer, legitimate and moving picture theaters, theatrical productions, baseball, soft drinks and music.

The protestants variously described the House provisions as ruinous, discriminatory, paralyzing, unjust and confiscatory. In answer to questions by Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, they said they preferred a general manufacturers' sales tax which would not be pyramided.

Reed for Manufacturers' Tax.

Senator Reed, after the hearing, said he would seek to have the committee follow the lead of the House ways and means committee and substitute the general tax for the various excise taxes in the bill. He said he believed several members of the committee had been impressed by testimony and would be willing to turn to the general manufacturers' tax. Even proponents of that tax, however, admit it would meet strong opposition in the Senate, even if approved by the finance committee. Republican leaders of the House, however, reported there has been a cooling down and consequent change in sentiment in that body, which overwhelmingly repudiated the manufacturers' tax. Opponents of the tax dismiss talk of its revival with the suggestion that this wish is father to the thought of those who believe it has a chance of adoption.

Hearings are expected to be concluded today, and Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), of Utah, chairman, announced he would call the committee into executive session to consider the tax bill not later than Monday. Senator Smoot predicted the bill would be completed by the committee and reported to the Senate before May 1. Other members, however, estimated the inevitable conflicts over various provisions and proposed amendments made improbable a report by that time.

West Coast for Lumber Tariff.

Demand for the lumber tariffs came principally from Washington and Oregon and from Maine. W. B. Greely, representing the West Coast Lumbermen's Association, estimated their proposed tariffs would produce $20,500,000 annually. He painted a doleful picture of the distress in the West Coast lumber business and was joined in his pleas for help by representatives of the American Legion and Northwest business men.

H. Ramwell, of Everett, Wash., said in that town of 30,000 there were between 4,000 and 5,000 families existing on charity.

"It's a crime to let this Canadian, Russian and Swedish lumber come in when our own people are out of work and starving," he said. "It's up to you gentlemen to do something and stop pussyfooting around."

Senator Wesley Jones (Republican), of Washington, read a telegram from Gov. Hartley of his State which stated that Washington could not get through another winter without outside help.

Oppose Pulpwood Tariff.

Davis J. Winton, of Minneapolis, representing spruce lumber manufacturers, told the committee the proposed tariff would not aid American labor. Prentice C. Bloedel, of Seattle, said the tariff would defeat its own end. A representative of the American newspaper publishers opposed the proposed tariff on wood pulp. He said it simply would permit manufacturers to increase their prices. Senator Fred Hale (Republican), of Maine, urged the tariff and presented an appeal from the Maine Legislature.

The theater men put on the best show. Henry Moskowitz, of New York, representing the National Alliance of the Theater, described the spoken drama as the "sickest branch of the theater" and introduced Henry A. Brady, of New York, as the "grand old man" of the theater to say a few words. Mr. Brady, despite the weight of his 69 heavy years, seemed to slip back into the role of actor he gave up years ago. The proposed admission tax, he said, would ruin the industry.

"Wouldn't Tax Corpse."

"You wouldn't tax a corpse all ready for the undertaker to bury in potter's field, would you?" he demanded. "Don't tax us. Get the money from the big bank rolls. Not one of the big guns are touched in these special taxes."

He proposed a tax of 1 cent a copy on newspapers and a tax of 5 cents on magazines weighing a pound, and demanded: "What's the matter, are you scared of them?"

"Yes, of course, we are," replied Senator Reed. "They are the sacred cow of politics."

Other revenue sources suggested by Mr. Brady included a national lottery, taxes on "cruises to nowhere to get paralyzed drunk," stock exchange transactions, and the radio companies which he said were "pilfering from the theater actors we taught and the songs and plays we write," and a tax on racing bets. Frank Gilmore, president of the Actors' Equity Association, said that employment among actors had fallen off 60 per cent in the last two years.

Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, a Washington attorney, representing the American Federation of Musicians, said the proposed admission tax would do "irreparable injury" to the musicians of the country. Music, he said, is a necessity and not a luxury and he referred to the subsidies granted by European governments and pointed out that the greatest musical organizations in the world never have been self-supporting. Talking pictures cost the jobs of 23,000 musicians at one swoop, he said.

A. Julian Brylawski, of Washington, vice president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, remarked that "the worst thing which can be said about one of my race is that he is a bad business man," and the proposed admission tax would "just be bad business," which would interfere with the simple pleasures of the millions and cost the Government more revenue through income tax losses than it could hope to gain through admission taxes. The experience of the industry,

The children then went into the garden and were photographed with the President. Mrs. Samuel Shaw Arentz, the national president, and a group of officers accompanied them.

A visit to the Pan-American Building preceded the afternoon session of the C. A. R. convention, which took up reports of the work of the societies in the different States. The many projects engaging the interest of the children were discussed by the senior advisors, following which the reports of the junior presidents of societies were heard.

George Washington Masonic Memorial was visited by invitation of Mount Vernon Chapter, D. A. R., and Ann Ramsey Society, C. A. R., of Alexandria.

Last night the District of Columbia Children of the American Revolution presented a pageant depicting colonial days as their Bicentennial contribution. The Army and Navy Society appeared in a folk dance; the Capitol Society danced the minuet, and the Governor Thomas Welles Society put on the final chapter showing home life at Mount Vernon and featuring the announcement of Nellie Custis' engagement to Lawrence Washington.

50 North Carolinians Attend D.A.R. Banquet

Fifty North Carolinians attend the annual State D. A. R. meeting and banquet Tuesday night at the Mayflower Hotel, the event being one of the most enjoyable of the kind in the history of the organization. Mrs. Sydney P. Cooper, State regent, presided.

Flowers for the occasion were sent from the garden of Mrs. Cameron Morrison, of Charlotte, N. C., wife of Senator Cameron Morrison. A brief and informal business session was held after the banquet, Mrs. Cooper presiding. In charge of the banquet were Mrs. Ralph Van Landingham, of Charlotte, vice president general, and Mrs. J. S. Silversteen, of Brevard, recording secretary. Among the visitors were Senator and Mrs. Cameron Morrison and Mrs. Josiah W. Bailey, of Raleigh, N. C., wife of Senator Bailey.

D. A. R. Notes

The United States Marine Corps sent their commandant, Maj. Gen. Fuller, six squads of marines and the entire Marine Band to take part in the ceremony of placing the D. A. R. marker on the grave of their first commandant, Col. William Ward Burrows, whose Revolutionary service just lately has been verified.

The ceremony took place in Arlington, near the Lee Mansion, where the Daughters of the American Revolution already have placed their official bronze marker on seven Revolutionary soldiers.

The grave of Gen. James House also was marked.

The president general, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, presided. Mrs. William Rock Painter offered a prayer and the tribute to the work of Col. William Ward Burrows was given by Gen. Fuller. Randolph Coyle 4th, son of Col. Coyle, of the Marine Corps, unveiled the marker, and Lucien B. Green unveiled that of Gen. House. Flags of all the States were grouped around the graves. The marines presented arms and taps was sounded by Arthur Witcomb, who has sounded assembly for all sessions of the D. A. R. for many years.

Immediately following this ceremony a wreath was placed on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by Mrs. Hobart, the marines forming the guard of honor instead of the soldiers who ordinarily perform that function. Mrs. Amos A. Fries was chairman of the committee in charge, with Hon. Edith Nourse Rogers, vice chairman. Other members were Mrs. William Wadsworth, Mrs. W. Z. Stuart and Mrs. Edward Wallington.

The busy press pages are: Miss Margaret McKee, chief; Miss Charlie Griggs, assistant chief; Miss Elmerdeen Bailey, Miss Eleanor Chaney, Miss Frances Banks, Miss Harriett Simons, Mrs. Althea Vos, Mrs. Charlotte Wahab and Mrs. Florence Sparfeld.

Mrs. Patrick Hurley will be "at home" today from 5 to 6 in honor of Mrs. Frank Hamilton Marshall, candidate for vice president-general from Oklahoma, and the Oklahoma delegation.

Mrs. Samuel Shaw Arentz, national president of the Children of the American Revolution entertained at a tea yesterday in her home at the Alban Towers for the national board and the State directors who are attending the thirty-seventh annual convention. Assisting her were Mrs. Dickinson, wife of Senator Dickinson; Mrs. Leonidas Dyer, Mrs. John Cable, Mrs. John Kerr, Mrs. Frank Mondell, Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, Mrs. Theodore Uhler and Mrs. Frank Ray.

D. A. R. HEARS PLEA TO DEVELOP SHRINES

National Park Director Says Patriotic Societies Should Undertake Work.

(Associated Press.)

The importance of developing national historical shrines, especially in Virginia, where so much history was made, was emphasized last night by Horace Albright, National Park Service director, in an address at the Daughters of the American Revolution convention.

If the Government for some reason can not undertake it, he said, "the thing to do is for some patriotic society to assume the task."

Mount Vernon, the Washington estate on the Potomac River, and Wakefield, the first President's birthplace, Mr. Albright said, are outstanding examples of shrines preserved by patriotic societies.

Wakefield now is in the hands of the Government, but the Wakefield Memorial Association made the first move toward its preservation and the restoration of some of its buildings that were destroyed by fire.

Pending Legislation.

In discussng Mount Vernon, the Park Service director made no reference to legislation by Representative Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts, aimed at Government acquisition of the property, but said flatly:

"If a historic shrine is already being cared for by a patriotic society or other organization, and is well preserved in the best historic traditions, that is all that is necessary."

"The historic estate (Mount Vernon) is ably managed, with high public spirit and unparalleled patriotism, and what more can we ask?"

The Colonial National Monument, linking Jamestown, Yorktown and Williamsburg and Wakefield, were listed by Albright among the most important works of the park service.

Purchase of Red Hill.

Mr. Albright said he was pleased that Gunston Hall, home of the George Mason family, will be preserved by the State of Virginia.

However, he said, there are other spots in Virginia that need attention. The Patrick Henry estate at Red Hill, he named as one that should be protected, and can be included in the national park system if the area is presented to the United States and the original house and other buildings restored.

A bill by Representative Burch, of Martinsville, and providing for Government purchase of Red Hill now is pending in Congress.

"Then perhaps," Mr. Albright said, "the birthplace of some of our early Presidents, such as those of Monroe and Madison, should become national shrines. At least," he added, "suggestions along this line have been made and are worth considering."

WOMEN DRYS WARN PRESIDENT ON PLANK

Tell President Any Wet Is Doomed to Failure in 1932 Race.

(Associated Press.)

Feminine prohibitionists representing the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement yesterday told President Hoover they would not accept "a dry candidate on a wet platform." They said they "would not trust the sincerity" of such a man.

The statement was included in resolutions which Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, president of the organization, said she read to the Chief Executive during her audience, along with a dozen other women dry leaders.

Another, Mrs. Peabody said, was aimed at Ambassador Mellon, and asked that ambassadors be instructed that their positions involved "respect for our constitutional law and their observance and defense of that law while they are in office." It was based upon a press disptach that the ambassador had permitted the use of wine in the London embassy.

Warning to Candidates.

At the other end of Pennsylvania avenue, meantime, a Senate judiciary subcommittee was informed by one of nearly a score of women drys who vigorously opposed any changes in the liquor laws that if a wet presidential candidate is named by either party he will receive a decisive "licking."

"This country is dry," said Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League.

"Make no mistake about that. And if there is any doubt about it, let one of the political parties again name a wet candidate for President in 1932, and the constitutional men and women of this country will give them such a licking as they never dreamed of and 1928 won't be a circumstance."

The statement brought applause from the 150 feminine friends of prohibition, who filled the big committee room.

Medicinal Liquor Hit.

One of the speakers, Miss Vida Milholland, of New York, member of the woman's committee for law enforcement, advocated withdrawing from the doctors the right to prescribe liquor, saying:

"The medical profession is one of the most honorable in the world, but facts prove that some of its members are no more capable of withstanding the bootlegger's bribe than individuals of other professions.

"To exempt doctors any further from obedience to the eighteenth amendment is to give a dangerous loophole to the outlawed liquor traffic."

Mrs. Nicholson said:

"Let us give prohibition a chance," adding that "the wets have had their day and failed."

Nodding in the direction of Rufus Lusk, of the crusaders, antiprohibition organization, who stood near the front of the room, Mrs. Nicholson said she was "glad to see he is present," and continued:

"The head of the crusaders said here last week that all of the members of their organization were very young men. That is our contention; those that are joining these wet organizations were in most cases too young to know the evils of the saloon era."

Aimed at Politicians.

As she left the White House, Mrs. Peabody said she had assured the Chief Executive of her organization's support. She declared their resolution was directed primarily at political leaders rather than at him, adding: "He is our man; we trust him not to accept any wet or doubtful plank in the Republican platform, but we do not trust some members of the Republican party."

Asked what their course would be in the event that a "doubtful plank" was inserted and President Hoover should accept it, she pointed to a copy of the resolution and said, "He would have to take the consequences."

The gray-haired dry leader said she had left with the President a pamphlet prepared by her organization, listing twelve statements made by Mr. Hoover since 1925 as "clear testimony" of his support of the eighteenth amendment.

HARRISON ATTACKS NEW DEBT HOLIDAY

Any Move for Extension of Moratorium Seems Doomed as Opposition Gains.

(Associated Press.)

Democratic opposition to extension of further debt relief for Europe was expressed yesterday by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking minority member of the finance committee.

His declaration coupled with Republican statements of Tuesday appeared to close the door to any American move for extension of the one-year moratorium hinted at by Great Britain in ignoring the debt payments for next year in her new budget.

"This Government should do nothing," said Harrison in a formal statement, "that might give the slightest encouragement to an extension of the debt moratorium. Any plan of this kind would not be passed through Congress and any representative of this Government who initiates such a movement or presumes that such a plan can be concluded, in my opinion, would be rebuked by the American people."

Apparently taking cognizance of the threat of Europe not to pay her debts next year, Harrison asserted the American budget would be balanced by 1934 regardless.

"Whether the Congress adopts the provision of the House bill or the Treasury recommendations," he said, "a balanced budget is provided for the fiscal year of 1933. The estimated receipts include payments by foreign governments for interest and principal payments in the amount of $270,000,000. Under all the estimates, assuming that conditions remain as they are today, we will, either under the provisions of the House bill or the Treasury recommendations, realize a surplus in the fiscal year 1934 of between three hundred and four hundred million dollars. The more economies by the present Congress in government administration, the greater will be the surplus in 1933 and 1934."

throw the entire debt burden on the American taxpayer, was virtually ignored by the British press. There was no discussion on it, either by editors or by any of the usual commentators.

The British press and public have paid little attention to the section of the budget dealing with reparations and war debts.

Where the question has been discussed at all—whether in newspaper editorials or in conversations in parliamentary lobbies—the usual attitude has been that Mr. Chamberlain obviously could not bring either reparations or war debts into the budget because the whole question of international indebtedness remains to be dealt with at the Lausanne conference.

Held "In Suspense."

It was pointed out that the chancellor specifically announced his decision to hold these accounts "in suspense" and remarked that this implied no change in the government's policy. When the Lausanne conference is over, he said, he will submit to Parliament "whatever proposals may be necessary" to give effect to the measures there agreed upon.

Maj. Attlee's assertion that the chancellor apparently thought he would not have to make any payments to America was virtually the only expression of this point of view.

Chancellor Chamberlain broadcast a long explanatory budget statement to the nation tonight, but he made no reference to war debts or reparations.

the Hoover moratorium last June. They were accompanied by legal forms which will be validated by the responsible officers in each country to insure the integral nature of the American debt payment.

The countries who will formally acknowledge their indebtedness are Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Roumania, Jugoslavia, Lithuania, Hungary, Esthonia and Latvia. Germany will also be invited to acknowledge her payments for costs of occupation.

Austria-Greece Status.

Austria and Greece are the only two countries to whom formal reminders were not sent. Both of these nations are bound by previous contracts with the League of Nations, which makes it necessary for them to first secure the consent of their creditor nations and the league before making other commitments. Their amounts due this Government are negligible, however, and can be regularized in some manner to be determined later.

The lapse of time between the signing of the moratorium and the legalization of the indebtedness by the beneficiary nations was explained here in authoritative circles as a normal consequence of the action of Congress on the proposition. It was impossible to proceed with the final step in the negotiations until Congress had first ratified the moratorium. This was only done last December and while the requests for signatures were forwarded only a few days ago, it was explained that no great expedition was required for such a purely perfunctory matter.

It is expected that the documents will be returned duly validated and acknowledged within a few weeks and the last legal step in the Hoover debt holiday will have been made.

Another explanation for the delay of the Treasury and State Department officials in making the last step in the debt plan was their evident hope that Congress would take some step at this present session to handle the debt problem in its entirety by re-creating the War Debt Funding Commission as the President suggested. Congress has on several occasions indicated its emphatic opposition to any further reconsideration of the debt problem, especially in view of the statement which threatens at the general Geneva disarmament conference.

Senator Borah gave spirited utterance to the popular feelings of Congress on the debt question after he had received word of the action of the British Treasury in pointedly omitting American debt payments from the British budget.

He declared:

"It is not within the power of the United States to readjust reparations, and neither is it within the power of the United States to do very much with reference to disarmament; with reference to land forces practically nothing. These are European questions and we are not in a position to be of any great help to the European situation. They are problems which Europe must settle for herself.

"So far as the debts are concerned, they are a very small item in this controversy. They might be important if we were considering the entire program, the entire readjustment of conditions; but considered alone, they are a mere bagatelle in the question of adjusting the economic conditions of Europe or of the world."

Elections.

SLATE OF NATIONAL OFFICERS PICKED BY D. A. R. DELEGATES

Walter L. Tobey, Mrs. Edward S. Moulton, Mrs. Fred C. Morgan, Mrs. Edward W. Cooch, Mrs. E. Thomas Boyd, Mrs. Joseph M. Caley, Mrs. Frank Hamilton Marshall, Mrs. Nathaniel Beaman, Mrs. C. Edward Murray and Mrs. Joseph Hayes Acklen.

Rumors of a split in D. A. R. administration circles gave additional force to these nominations when it was learned that Mrs. William Sherman Walker, national defense chairman, was not supposed to be favoring the candidacy of Mrs. Walter Tobey, of Ohio, close friend and supporter of Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, of Ohio, the present president general.

However, there seems to be a strong possibility that Mrs. Tobey will be found in the list of the successful candidates today after the ballots are counted as the Ohio Valley contingent is a strong one in the present congress and may be more or less depended upon to elect its candidate.

The only election excitement centered around the selection of the eight vice presidents general. Failure of Mrs. Magna, the incoming president general, to appoint Mrs. Walker as national defense chairman, is regarded by many of the delegates as a mistake, although it is quite the usual practice for the new president general to make her new apointments independent of what her predecessors may have done.

Mrs. Walker Is Reticent.

Due to Mrs. Walker's brilliant success, however, as head of the national defense movement of the D. A. R., which has won it Nation-wide fame, there is a decided feeling that she should have been continued in office, despite precedent. Mrs. Walker, herself, last night refused to comment on the matter and is said to have made no protest of any kind, feeling it was entirely up to the new president general to appoint whom she might please to this outstanding office.

The morning session yesterday was devoted to the discussion of national committee reports as presented by their chairmen. These reports gave the delegates assembled in Constitution Hall a bird's-eye view of the work of the D. A. R. throughout the country. Applause greeted Mrs. Magna as chairman for the finance committee for Constitution Hall when she announced that through her efforts and that of her committee more than $1,181,000 had been raised for the hall fund. The District Chapters gave $2,043.20 to the Constitution Hall fund during the past year.

Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Herbert Hoover were thanked by special resolution yesterday for their visits to the Continental Congress.

A stronger Navy was the plea of Mrs. Fred C. Morgan, chairman of the legislation committee of the D. A. R., yesterday when she pronounced economy at the cost of protection "a wanton lack of judgment." She declared that Congress was so engrossed in budget balancing that other measures were delayed or forgotten. While Great Britain and Japan were building up to London Treaty strength the United States Navy was being allowed to go into "obsolescence." Her report also called for support for restrictive immigration bills of various kinds.

Free Backs Mrs. Morgan.

After Mrs. Morgan spoke Representative Arthur C. Free, of California, appeared in a brief address before the Congress and backed up Mrs. Morgan in her contentions. It was pointed out that in 1931, less than 100,000 aliens entered the country, the smallest number since 1844.

Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, the last person living born at Mount Vernon, was the honorary chairman of the committee in charge of the pilgrimage to the graves of George and Martha Washington, which occupied thousands of the delegates yesterday afternoon. The early part of the afternoon session was given over to a memorial service for the D. A. R. dead during the past year. The president general, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, gave the tribute to the members who had died since the Fortieth Continental Congress.

BONUS FOES FAVOR LOAN CHARGES CUT

Possible Substitute for Huge Cash Outlay Is Drawing Keen Attention.

(Associated Press.)

House leaders fighting the cash bonus movement yesterday looked favorably toward a large slash in veteran loan charges as a possible substitute for the $2,400,000,000 outlay.

This plan contemplates restoration, in part, if not in whole, of the maturity values of bonus certificates that have been whittled away by unpaid interest on loans. It is receiving prominent attention in cloakroom gossip.

Representative Hawley, of Oregon, ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, which now is considering the bonus issue, said he favors amendment of the interest requirements though he is not fully determined on the exact course to follow.

Retroactive Repeal.

Each opposition witness has favored such a change. Some prefer complete retroactive repeal of the 4½ per cent charged veterans on their certificate loans. Others favor reduction of this interest figure to the lowest rate paid by the Government for money.

"The bonus advocates argue that the interest will eat up the value of the certificates by the 1945 maturity date," Mr. Hawley said. "Some action might be taken to prevent this."

The effect of such a plan will be learned from Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator, who—with Charles G. Dawes, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—will open official Administration testimony against the bonus.

Patman's Statement.

Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, announced immediately such legislation would not be an acceptable substitute for full payment.

"It would not give us the currency expansion we need, but would cost the Government $60,000,000 a year," he said.

The committee meanwhile heard two more veterans assail the bonus payment. They were Col. Benjamin F. Castle and Capt. Knowlton Durham, both of New York.

"We believe the veterans are badly led," Col. Castle said. "I don't mean within their organizations. I mean by a lot of self-appointed political leaders who promise to lead them into the lush fields of the Treasury.

Veterans Committee.

"Why was it that just after the American Legion convention voted down the full bonus payment, a member of Congress announced immediately that he would introduce a bill for cash payment?"

Mr. Patman, who heard this statement, sat in the front row of spectators.

Capt. Durham contended Congress never intended to make a cash payment before 1945. Both Col. Castle and Capt. Durham said they belonged to the veterans committee for reducing the cost of peace and formerly were attached to the Ex-Service Men's Antibonus League.

Mr. Patman issued a statement later, saying this league had been financed largely by Andrew W. Mellon, then Secretary of the Treasury, and that the new committee represented "patriotic hands but Mellon's voice."

HOUSE GROUP REJECTS CUTS IN ALLOWANCES OF VETERANS

for regular workers employed for years, it was said in this quarter.

House economy committee action curtailing savings in Veterans' Administration, followed an initial tie vote on this issue. Final action was unanimous, one Republican member said.

"To take from the veterans something they already have is a very different thing from denying them what they hope to get in the future," he added.

The first section stricken from the President's omnibus savings bill provided that no person having an income of $1,500 if single, and $3,500 if married, and $400 additional for each dependent, should be entitled to allowance, pension or free hospitalization, unless suffering from combat disability.

Third Section Proposed.

The other section dropped provided that no one receiving free treatment or subsistence in a Government hospital or home should receive more than $20 a month, if without dependents, or $75 a month, with dependents, the difference to be applied to the support of the home or hospital.

A third section proposed to the bill by Chairman McDuffie, which would have centralized all regional offices in Washington, with $1,000,000 saving, also was voted out of the bill.

An appropriations subcommittee today planned to tackle its task of trimming Treasury-Postoffice appropriations in line with the Senate's 10 per cent mandate. Parallel reductions already made in the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor bill may be voted today by the Senate.

Green Attacks Proposals.

House Economy Chairman McDuffie said his group will not finally determine whether the President's Federal furlough plan, or its own plan of 11 per cent pay cuts with $1,000 exemption, will go into the omnibus bill, until the measure is virtually ready for report.

New shafts were launched at both plans yesterday by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor.

He said the federation would welcome application of the President's five-day week principle, if it were not coupled with a compulsory month's furlough without pay, and other reductions. He voiced a hope that "out of the confusion which now prevails in Congress will come a constructive measure providing for the establishment of the five-day work week and for the preservation of wage standards and working conditions for Government employes."

Mills Gives Out Letter.

Secretary Mills, of the Treasury, last night made public a letter he had sent to Senator Oddie, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the Treasury appropriation bill.

Protesting against applying the proposed flat 10 per cent reduction to the Internal Revenue Bureau in view of the added duties provided in the pending revenue bill, the Secretary urged that the economy desired be effected by means of the President's proposal for a five-day week for per diem employes and a payless furlough for others.

Mr. Mills also urged that contracts covering certain building projects be not let.

Upward of 6,000 employes must be dismissed unless the furlough plan is adopted, the Secretary wrote, and would, "in times when it is impossible to find another job, be turned out onto the street by the Government of the United States."

Pointing to the necessity for the Treasury Department collecting more than a billion dollars of additional taxes, the letter asserts, "We can not enforce the new law and collect these taxes without increasing our force. Yet, if this resolution is carried without modification, we are to attempt this new and difficult task with a reduced and demoralized force."

In this connection, the letter favored an amendment providing that not to exceed 15 per cent of any one appropriation may, with the approval of the budget director, be transferred to any other appropriation under the same department.

More Police Asked In Southwest Area

Association Also Points to Need of Stop Signs on Certain Corners.

Charging that the Southwest section has insufficient police protection, the Southwest Citizens Association last night appointed a special committee to ask the District Commissioners for relief. The association was told that first the police precinct headquarters was moved away from the section, and that the Third Inspection District headquarters was moved away.

Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission, delivered an illustrated lecture on "Washington: Past, Present and Future," and also read a paper on "George Washington: From Birth to Death." Speaking of Washington's times, Dr. Moore said it was "the rule of the day in entertaining to provide any liquor a congressman might ask for."

Milton Barrett was appointed chairman of the committee to seek better police protection, and will select other members. The asociation indorsed the recent move to cut funds provided for charitable organizations which do not provide direct relief, and request that stop signs be placed at the intersection of Tenth and D streets southwest. A report that the Government construction projects in the Southwest are not aiding unemployed of the city because the contractors bring in their own men, was received by the organization, which met in the Fairbrother School, at Tenth and E streets southwest.

U.S. BUREAU ROBBED BY CLIQUE, IS CLAIM

Blanton Says W. W. Smith Is One of Veterans' Office Offenders.

(Associated Press.)

A House committee was told yesterday by Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, that William Wolff Smith, general counsel for the Veterans' Bureau, was a member of a "clique that had been robbing the Government for a number of years."

Mr. Blanton added there were "four or five" others but he did not name them.

The Texan made the statement in commenting on the absence of Mr. Smith who collapsed last Saturday while being questioned by members of the military affairs committee.

The committee has before it Mr. Blanton's bill which would have Mr. Smith dismissed from the Veterans' Bureau and would also repeal the disabled emergency officers retirement act under which some 6,000 former officers are receiving allowances from the Government.

Psychiatrist Testifies.

At the outset of the hearing, Dr. H. W. Baxley, physician at Mount Alto Hospital, said Mr. Smith was suffering from an intense anxiety state and was not able to testify.

"If a shrewd lawyer saw evidence coming which would destroy his standing" Mr. Blanton asked, "wouldn't he try to avoid it if possible?"

Dr. Baxley replied he did not think Mr. Smith was shamming. He said Mr. Smith was "weeping and much agitated" when he was admitted to the hospital on Saturday.

The psychiatrist said Mr. Smith was suffering from some loss of memory. He added that it might be several weeks before Mr. Smith could testify again.

In addition to his salary as counsel for the bureau, Mr. Smith is drawing a monthly allowance for disabilities. Mr. Blanton has charged his ailments are not due to Army service.

Political Influence.

At the committee hearing last week Mr. Smith offered to return his disability pay to the Government in the future if the committee thought he was not entitled to it.

Representative Stafford (Republican), Wisconsin, told Mr. Blanton that he had heard since the last committee meeting that Mr. Smith got his place through political influence.

"Have you any information about that?" he asked the Texan.

"Yes," Mr. Blanton answered. "Do you want me to give it to you now?"

Mr. Stafford answered that he would hear it later at an executive session of the committee.

Neglect Is Charged.

R. J. Abbaticchio, an attorney in the Veterans' Bureau, said there was inefficiency and a neglect in the conduct of cases under Mr. Smith's direction.

He testified that the office was virtually under the control of Miss Annabel Hinderliter, an attorney in the bureau, and said Mr. Smith had made misrepresentations in an effort to get promotions for Miss Hinderliter.

"She has run the general counsel's bureau," Mr. Abbaticchio testified. "When you speak of Mr. Smith you say 'they.'"

Mr. Abbaticchio testified that after he had complained of conditions in the office that he was demoted and put on a temporary basis by Mr. Smith's order.

FRENCH TRADE BARS SUBJECT OF PARLEY

period in 1931 showed a balance of more than twice as much, $141,547,000.

"The conference between the French Ambassador and Mr. Castle was a result of the special emergency meeting held here last week at which officials of the Department of Commerce and the State Department reviewed the alarming tendency of foreign governments at this time to erect insuperable tariff barriers against foreign trade. In most instances American exporters have been the hardest hit on account of the very large volume of American export trade.

It is understood that Mr. Castle assured Ambassador Claudel that the United States has no intention of invoking the emergency decree of section 338 of the tariff act, empowering the President under certain conditions practically to embargo all foreign products or the products of any one nation practicing discrimination.

The State Department does not consider the quota restriction of the French authorities to be a discriminatory move against American products.

Quota System's Advantage.

In some respects the quota system has arguments in its favor, due to its purely temporal nature. Once the particular crisis is passed, for which the quota system is invoked, it is possible to revert to the old method of uninterrupted international trade. A tariff law would require considerable legislation before it could be modified.

It is understood that Ambassador Claudel gave Acting Secretary Castle some basis for optimism in the present impasse. Secretary of State Stimson is known to have discussed the matter of Franco-American trade relations with Premier Tardieu, but he was unable to make any headway.

American Ambassador Edge has had little or no satisfaction with the French authorities in the representations he has made to the French ministry of commerce over the functionings of the quota law. Mr. Castle took up with Ambassador Claudel some objectionable features of the "contingent" plan which were concerned principally with the manner the French arrived at a "normal" year for determining the amount of American exports to be permitted in the country.

In cases where the normal year was a year of low American exports, the American quota in that product was necessarily restricted. What the State Department is most anxious to secure is an equitable system of choosing a period of years instead of one arbitrary twelve months and then striking an average which shall take into consideration both the period of maximum American imports as well as the minimum years.

COLUMBIA SYSTEM MAY ACQUIRE WJSV

the Capital may be reached with a more satisfactory signal. Although located no farther away than Mount Vernon, Va., and broadcasting with 10,000 watts power, 20 times as much as WRC, complaints have been made that WJSV has not been heard clearly in all parts of Washington.

Yet it thunders into Winchester, Va., has been heard at distant points in the United States, and as far away as Porto Rico. In addition to this "skip distance" effect, cross talk is frequently heard on WJSV, supposedly because it broadcasts on the same frequency, and during the same hours as Station KSPT, at St. Paul, which likewise uses 10,000 watts power.

If the WJSV transmitter is moved to Rossyln, which is just across the river from Washington at the end of Francis Scott Key Bridge, doubtless its power would be reduced whether it was synchronized with WABC or broadcast independently. If synchronized, it could not very well continue to use 10,000 watts power because, according to radio engineers, it would "mush" the signal in the WABC territory. If broadcasting independently with 10,000 watts power at such close range, engineers expressed the belief WJSV might "blanket" Washington or otherwise cause interference in receiving sets in this city.

GARAGES IN DISTRICT BUILDINGS OPPOSED

Adverse Report Returned by Commissioners as Mills and Roop Hit Plan.

Because the proposal is not in accord with the financial program of President Hoover, the District Commissioners yesterday reported adversely on a bill to provide automobile parking space in public buildings in the District. They added that, if the proposed legislation is adopted, the "buildings under the jurisdiction or control of the commissioners" should be excepted.

The letter file included letters from J. Clawson Roop, director of the Bureau of the Budget, and Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, both of whom opposed the bill.

"It is the opinion of the Treasury Department that there should be no mandatory legislation for the provision of parking space in connection with Federal buildings," Secretary Mills stated. "The estimates for appropriations for buildings in Washington so far authorized did not include provision for parking space for use by all employes, and there will not be space within the buildings for this purpose.

"The estimated number of cars belonging to the Government employes who will occupy the buildings in the 'triangle' is 6,500. There are three schemes upon which estimates were prepared by engineers selected to make a survey of the situation as follows: Open air parking, cost per car, $170; three-level open air garages, cost per car, $833; subsurface garage, cost per car, $1,200.

"Under the present plans for buildings in the 'triangle' it is proposed to provide for parking of official cars and such others as may be cared for in the space available therefor in the buildings, and it is believed that provision for further parking space is a matter for future consideration."

MYSTERY WOMAN VISITS LINDBERGH

Makes Trip in Big Monoplane, but Refuses to Tell Reason for Hop.

Hopewell, N. J., April 20 (A.P.).—Her identity still a secret, the woman who came here from Kansas City supposedly to see Col. Charles A. Lindbergh left today. Her mission likewise remained a mystery as she took off from Camden, N. J., in the large red monoplane in which she landed at Princeton yesterday.

"I can not tell why I came," she said. "I am not a wealthy woman, but I hired this plane because I had a very important errand here. That is all I can say."

She denied her mission concerned the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

At Kansas City, Walter C. Taber said he rented the plane Monday to the woman for $360 to make what she said was to be a trip to Pittsburgh, Pa., and possibly to New York. Otto Ferguson was the pilot. Her haste seemed unusual, Taber said, because she chartered the plane only 20 minutes before departure of a regular transport plane.

Dr. John C. Condon, the "Jafsie" who paid $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money to a supposed representative of the kidnapers, remained silent in his Bronx home, neither confirming nor denying a report he again made contact with the kidnapers yesterday while rowing in Pelham Bay.

At St. John, N. B., Chief of Police E. M. Slader charged the New Jersey State Police with originating the report that Harry Fleisher, Detroit purple gangster, had been seen in St. John. He said they wanted to "drag a herring" across the path of their investigation.

Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor suitor of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nurse, remained on Ellis Island. He was erroneously reported as having been deported Wednesday.

Kansas City, April 20 (A.P.).—Saying that she flew over the home of Charles A. Lindbergh near Hopewell, N. J., yesterday because "I wanted to see it," an unidentified woman returned here tonight in the plane she chartered for a mysterious flight to the East. She refused to divulge her name or to say if she had conferred with Col. Lindbergh.

In a vain effort at secrecy she had the pilot, Otto Ferguson, land the plane in a corner of the field away from the airport buildings and remained in the ship's cabin for half an hour before her arrival was learned. An automobile, driven by Walter C. Taber, owner of the plane which she chartered, took her away from the airport.

Woman, 64, Badly Hurt As Cab and Truck Crash

Mrs. Cora B. Thurman, of St. Louis, Mo., was critically injured last night when the taxicab in which she was riding was in collision with a truck at Thirteenth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest. Mrs. Thurman, who is 64 years old, is not expected to live. It was reported at Emergency Hospital last night.

The woman and her husband, John F. Thurman, were riding in a cab driven by Walter MacIlwain, 27 years old, of 1008 Massachusetts avenue northwest. The truck, loaded with chickens, was being driven by James Rader, 26 years old, of Petersburg, W. Va. He is being held for investigation pending the outcome of Mrs. Thurman's injuries. Mr. Thurman was uninjured.

PRESIDENT ATTENDS FUNERAL FOR HARRIS

(Associated Press.)

Around a flower-covered bier in the historic Senate chamber, the friends of William J. Harris, of Georgia, yesterday paid their homage to him in death.

Led by President Hoover and members of his Cabinet, Government, diplomatic and congressional notables joined to mourn his passing in a state funeral.

To one side and facing the wreath-draped casket sat his widow and their daughter, Julia; other members of the family and friends.

In slow and weighted words, the Rev. Dr. ZeBarney Thorne Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, intoned the Episcopal funeral service.

Two favorite hymns of the late senator, who died Monday, were sent softly through the halls where so often debate has thundered.

They were "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me," sung by Miss Helen Howison, of Washington.

Vice President Curtis, as the service began at 11 a. m., gave the purpose of the assemblage that packed the floor and filled the galleries:

"We have come to pay our respects to the memory of a man we all loved."

The Rev. Dr. Phillips then gave his prayer of eulogy.

President Hoover and the members of his Cabinet occupied the first row on the Democratic side of the chamber.

Behind them were the congressional committees.

With Mrs. Harris and their daughter was Gen. Peter C. Harris, a brother; Mrs. Gordon M. Buck, of New York, and her daughter, Lucy.

Members of the family and the congressional committees left with the body for Senator Harris' home city, Cedartown, Ga., where final rites will be held today.

Both houses of Congress adjourned yesterday out of respect and their flags were at half staff.

Governor May Run.

Atlanta, April 20 (U.P.).—Death of Georgia's senior senator, William J. Harris, not only means that an immediate successor must be appointed, but that Georgia this fall will have to elect two United States senators, since the term of her junior senator, Walter F. George, expires next March 3.

Three names dominate discussion of the situation, namely:

Mrs. Harris, for the temporary appointment.

Gov. Richard Brevard Russell, jr., 34-year-old son of the State's chief justice, whose intimate associates assert he will offer himself to serve the 4-year unexpired portion of the Harris term.

Representative Charles R. Crisp, of the Third Georgia District, acting chairman of the powerful House ways and means committee, son of the late Speaker Charles F. Crisp.

Senator George is expected to run without opposition for reelection.

Whether Mrs. Harris will accept the temporary appointment was not known. In event she declined, it was generally agreed Gov. Russell would appoint a man who would not oppose him in the September primary.

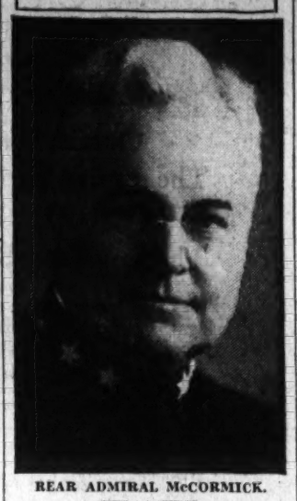
DIES IN CAPITAL



REAR ADMIRAL McCORMICK.

ADMIRAL M'CORMICK EXPIRES SUDDENLY

Retired Medical Officer of Navy to Have Arlington Rites Tomorrow.

Rear Admiral Albert M. D. McCormick, U. S. N., retired, died of a heart attack at his home, 1805 Phelps place, yesterday morning.

He was born at Berryville, Va., on March 27, 1866, and was educated at the Potomac Academy, Alexandria, and the University of Maryland, where he received his degree of doctor of medicine.

Admiral McCormick was appointed assistant surgeon in the Navy in 1888, and was promoted through the various grades until he became a rear admiral in 1918. He was retired on March 27, 1930.

During the Spanish-American War he served at Guantanamo and aboard the U. S. S. Panther. In 1910 he was fleet surgeon for the Atlantic Fleet. From 1910 until 1919 he was detailed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He became Inspector of Medical Department activities on the Pacific Coast on July 1, 1919.

Between then and 1923, he was commander of the Medical Supply Depot at Mare Island, Calif., and president of the Board of Medical Examiners, the Naval Examining Board, and the Naval Retirement Board.

Admiral McCormick was awarded the Spanish campaign medal, the Sampson Medal, the Victory Medal, with a silver star for meritorious conduct during the World War, and the Order of the Busto del Libertado by the Venezuelan government.

He was a member of the American Medical Association, a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, the Military Surgeons of the United States and the American Legion. He was also a member of the Washington Riding and Hunt Club and the Blue Ridge Country Club.

He is survived by a son, Lieut. Comdr. L. D. McCormick, aid to the superintendent of the Naval Academy, and three daughters, Mrs. Cora Clark, Santa Barbara, Calif.; Mrs. Edith Beardall, wife of Commander John R. Beardall, U. S. N., detailed at Newport, R. I., and Miss Nellie Jett McCormick, of this city.

Funeral services will be held at St. Thomas' Church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, followed by interment in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors.

AVIATION MECHANIC DIES IN BURNED CAR

Albert Harrel, 30, Former Capital Resident, Loses Life in Accident.

Charlottesville, Va., April 20 (A.P.).—The burned body of Albert Harrel, 30, Dixie flying service mechanic, was found early today in the charred wreckage of his automobile, a few miles north of Charlottesville.

E. M. Sturman, president of the aviation company, identified the body by a watch and ring.

Authorities said the car apparently turned over after leaving the highway, and burst into flames. Harrel's body was practically cremated. Harrel came to Charlottesville about a year ago from Washington. His only relative known here is Paul Rabbitt, an uncle, formerly manager of the Washington Airport, and now a resident of Washington.

He was returning from Free Union, a village in the northwestern part of Albemarle County, when the accident occurred.

A coroner's inquest was conducted this afternoon by Justice of the Peace Max Elliott, of Free Union.

Albert Harrel lived in Washington for about a year while employed as mechanic at the Washington Airport. He left here about a year ago. He was unmarried.

Park, two miles from Mineola. An early motorist came upon the tragedy, reported his discovery to the police and helped carry the still breathing form of the girl to the hospital.

Even before the police began the routine task of tracing Edward Brinker, Long Island detectives, after one look at the scene, said, "Jealousy—revenge."

The money in Brinker's pockets had not been touched. But a ring he is known to have worn had been wrenched from his finger. Not a paper in his coat had been disturbed. There was no attempt to conceal his identity. It was as though the slayers, callous of consequences, had told the police who he was and defied them to do their worst.

Message on Teletype.

The teletype, that reports police events with casual, if staccato, attention to statistical detail, sputtered out this information:

"Edward Brinker, 32, 3752 Eighty-ninth street, Jackson Heights, Queens."

The criminal investigation department swung into action. There was no clew in the tangled underbrush, beaten to earth in the terrific struggle for life. There were no weapons to be found. Footprints had been erased by shuffling feet. Automobile tracks were obliterated.

"He lives with Mrs. Brinker in a $60-a-month apartment in Jackson Heights," the deteceives found.

"But there is another Mrs. Brinker, who lives with her daughter, Dorothy, in Brooklyn," the neighbors said.

"The girl with him was Rose Welk. He's been going with her for more than a year and they were going to be married," still others reported.

The detectives went to the domestic relations court in Brooklyn to look into the records.

Alimony Reduced.

On December 17, 1929, Mrs. Ruth Brinker, 32 years old, brought Edward into court and charged him with failure to provide for their daughter. The court directed him to pay $15 a week alimony. By December of 1930 he was $520 in arrears, and Mrs. Brinker again had him arrested. He promised to pay $10 a week—these being hard times in the selling business—and again he was released.

"He is very good at making promises," the last entry of the probation officer read. "The complainant (Mrs. Brinker) would not consider the idea of sending him to the penitentiary; she is of a very kind nature and defendant took advantage of her kindness. She is always willing to waive the arrears and he takes advantage of her mild nature."

That much for Mrs. Brinker No. 1.

The Mrs. Brinker No. 2, who lives in Jackson Heights, was not at home when the police called. Neighbors remarked upon "what a lovely couple they always seemed to be—so quiet and refined—never having any wild parties and never making any trouble."

Second Wife Notified.

The detectives waited for "Mrs. Brinker." She arrived at noon, and breathlessly demanded to know what these men were doing in her apartment. They told her. She became white with horror and explained where she had been.

"I had a call from the police this morning," she said, "to come and get his car, which had been parked overtime, and which the police threatened to impond. I went down to the station and got the car. Then I went out selling books—I'm doing that to help make a living for us both. That's all I know. Business used to keep Ed out nights a lot."

That much from Mrs. Brinker No. 2.

As for Rose Welk, of Flushing, Queens, her status was an open book. She had been very much attracted to Edward Brinker. She didn't know he was married—or if he had been, there had been a divorce, she presumed.

Puzzled by Crime.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Welk—Otto is a tailor—knew she kept company with Ed. They were to have been married—perhaps. And perhaps they had already been married. Dully, the consciousness of the tragedy to their daughter crept upon them.

Father and Mother Welk, Rose's two sisters, Vera and Julia, and her brother, young Otto, volunteered to give the police all the information they had. Mrs. Brinker No. 1, from Brooklyn, also called upon the police to help. Mrs. Brinker No. 2, unnerved, did her best to help.

The three families and the police were trying to puzzle the whole tragedy out tonight. The police believe they know the motive. But who inspired it and who executed it?

Village Wiped Out By Flood.

Graz, Austria, April 20 (A.P.).—The newspaper Tagespost reported today that the village of Raca, Jugoslavia, at the junction of the Sava and Drina Rivers, had been wiped out by flood with the "probable loss" of ten lives.

LEAGUE IS ALARMED AS JAPAN MOBILIZES

Small Powers May Move to Force Tokyo to Resign; Soviet Prepares.

Geneva, April 20 (U.P.).—A series of rapid developments in the Far Eastern war crisis, including huge troop concentrations on the Manchurian frontier, alarmed League of Nations leaders tonight after Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson had conferred with the Chinese delegate, W. W. Yen.

The developments included:

1. Advices from Tokyo that Japan had rejected the league's latest proposal for evacuation of Shanghai. China officially accepted, but the official Japanese answer has not yet arrived.

2. A private statement understood to have been made to League officials by a high Soviet official that Russia's attitude toward Japan had "radically stiffened;" that some 400,000 troops are being massed on the Manchurian frontier and that 400 bombing planes are being constructed.

3. The threat of small powers in the league's committee of nineteen, handling the Far Eastern crisis, to force the league assembly to reconvene and take drastic action which would lead Japan to withdraw from the league.

These developments, following recent military activities on the Manchurian-Siberian border, were considered unusually grave in league circles. They revived insistent reports that Mr. Stimson would confer with Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet foreign commissar. American officials continued to deny the report.

The conservative leaders of the league took the position that despite the indications that Japan would reject the plan for a mixed commission to recommend a date for evacuation of Shanghai, private sessions of the committee should be continued in an effort to reach a more satisfactory compromise.

However, the smaller powers, which have vigorously opposed Japan, are expected to demand that the committee hold a public meeting, admit its failure in the Shanghai crisis, and reconvene the assembly. They would then plan to suggest that the assembly move under paragraph 4 of article 15 of the covenant, forcing the assembly to prepare recommendations for solution of the conflict.

Under such conditions, it was believed, Japan would be most likely to carry out her threat to withdraw from the league.

Americans in Geneva were understood to be greatly disappointed by the Japanese attitude. Mr. Stimson has been much interested in the negotiations, conferring with Delegate Yen this morning.

AID FROM POLLARD ASKED IN ARLINGTON

ate, Leo P. Harlow, who had the certificate. Mr. Harlow appeared in court about an hour later and the matter was again taken up, with decision for a physician's examination of Duncan.

Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas told the court that he did not know where Mr. Duncan was or what his condition was, and that it appeared counsel for the defendant was about as much in the dark.

Another clash came when Ball was arraigned. Before the former treasurer entered his not guilty plea Capt. Crandal Mackey, his attorney, charged that the defense had been prevented from obtaining any information on the audit of Ball's books and that he had no chance to form a line of defense.

Commonwealth's Attorney Douglas was on his feet at once.

Answer to Defense Attorney.

"What information have you been refused?" he asked heatedly. "You could have had any information if you had only asked for it. I'll even furnish a bill of particulars if you wish."

Motions of the defense to have the indictments quashed in the case of Hallock were instantly overruled. Both Ball and Hallock pleaded not guilty and the cases were docketed for the June term of circuit court.

Mr. Andrews' request for a representative of the attorney general's office to advise him was placed before Gov. Pollard Tuesday. At the same time he gave the governor an estimate of the shortage in the three offices where his aids are conducting an audit. Gov. Pollard was away from his offices yesterday and no action was taken, but Mr. Andrews said he expected legal counsel would be named today.

Estimate on Shortages.

The preliminary report of Mr. Andrews said that to date the shortages discovered were as follows: Ball, approximately $320,000; Duncan, approximately $80,000; Hallock, approximately $6,250.

"A great deal more has been made of our resolution than was intended," Mr. Andrews declared last night. "I want it distinctly understood that Mr. Douglas has been more than diligent in this case and all of the county officials have given us every cooperation.

"My request for legal aid from the attorney general's office is in no way to supplement their services. It is merely to protect the civil rights of a great number of persons affected.

"The entire state of affairs in the county clerk's office is in such a mess that we are unable to tell exactly where we stand. For instance, a man appeared yesterday who wanted a refund of $1,000 on a bail bond. We were unable to tell whether he was entitled to a refund or not, and it is in such cases as this that we need legal advice."

"Furthermore, Mr. Douglas has done his duty in preparing the case for criminal action. These civil matters are in the province of the attorney general's office and that is why we asked for a representative.

"Then, too, the State has been placed in a ludicrous position by the refusal of Duncan to resign. He is still in administration of his office and we are placed in the position of having to present all of the evidence we have in hand before one of the defendants before we ever present it to the court."

Springfield, Ill., April 20 (A.P.).—Without dissenting vote the House of Representatives of the Illinois General Assembly today passed a resolution to ratify the Federal constitutional amendment abolishing the lame duck session of Congress. APPEARS IN PLAY

VIOLA ROACHE.

Play for Children To Be on Saturday

Viola Roache to Appear in 'Alice in Wonderland' at National.

"I am delighted to be back in the fold of the Children's Theater," said Viola Roche, who will appear in Clare Tree Major's dramatization of "Alice in Wonderland" at the National Theater on Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock under the auspices of the Women's International League. "It is the greatest privilege in the world to play before children, who are the most responsive audience in the world and also our severest critics."

Viola Roache has rejoined the Children's Theater Company after an absence of five years. Her stage record includes leading roles in a wide variety of plays under the management of David Belasco, Charles Dillingham and other prominent producers. Her last Broadway performance was with Helen Mencken, William Faversham and Fritz Leiber, of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare Company.

"Children turned out in large numbers for certain Shakespearean matinee performances," says Miss Roache, "but their appreciation of the childhood topics provided by Clare Tree Major has no equal in my memory. Playing before them daily is a constant joy."

DE VALERA IS VICTOR IN FIGHT OVER OATH

Passes First Legislative Bar to Scrapping Allegiance Pledge to Crown.

Dublin, Irish Free State, April 20 (A.P.).—President Eamon de Valera today got past the first legislative barricade in his battle to scrap the oath of allegiance to the British crown.

The Dail Eireann passed on first reading the abolition measure he promised to the Irish voters when he asked them to turn the government of the Free State over to his Fianna Fail party.

There was no division—that is, no tabulated vote. The action postponed until next Wednesday the fiery debate that advocates and opponents of the proposal alike expect.

The way for this argument was paved by Deputy McDermott, independent, who served formal notice of objection to the measure.

De Valera party leaders expressed confidence that they would be able to swing the required votes when the bill finally is acted on.

The preamble described the measure as an act to amend the Free State constitution and the Irish Free State act of 1922 "to remove the obligation now imposed by law" on Free State officials to swear allegiance to the crown.

President De Valera himself introduced the bill. Ernest Blythe, minister of finance in the administration of former President William T. Cosgrave, announced that the opposition party would stand against it in subsequent stages.

Whether the bill finally is approved depends on the attitude of the handful of labor members of the Dail, with whose aid Mr. De Valera succeeded in organizing his government. It has been reliably understood that labor leaders pledged their support, but some uncertainty was caused recently when the W. R. Jacob Biscuit Manufacturing Co., the second largest employer of labor in the Free State, announced that if the controversy resulted in separation of the Free State from the British Commonwealth, it would be forced to move many of its units to Liverpool, thus taking jobs away from 1,500 men.

The British government has held that the Free State is bound to retain the oath as well as to continue payment of land annuities, which Mr. De Valera has informed London will be discontinued.

Auto Injury Fatal To Asylum Matron

Children of German Orphanage Mourn Death of Mrs. Hofmann.

While the younger children at the German Orphan Asylum, Good Hope Hill, last night wondered where was Mrs. Mathilda K. Hofmann, kindly matron of the institution, police sought vainly up to a late hour the driver of the hit-and-run car that fatally injured the woman Tuesday night.

Mrs. Hofmann died at Providence Hospital yesterday morning and many of the children wept as they wended their way toward the Ketcham School at Fifteenth street and Good Hope road southeast.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hofmann will be held Friday at 2 p. m. at Concordia Lutheran Church and the children of the orphanage will attend in a body. Interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Hofmann, who was 49, was born in Germany. She and her husband, Andrew Hofmann, superintendent of the orphanage, came to this country nine years ago.

CROWDER'S PLOT CONFESSION IS HEARD BY WIMBLEY JURY

rented. The sand bags were to be used, the statement said, to beat Mrs. Wimbley, her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Tench, her parents, and their four children into insensibility and then to set their bodies and home afire with gasoline which they purchased in Richmond.

Before starting to Dendron, Crowder's confession read, Wimbley instructed him to purchase a gun and ammunition in a D street store. On the way there "Wimbley told me to drive slowly, that he wanted to get there after dark." "I asked him what the sandbags were for." Crowder's statement read, and Wimbley replied: "We will use them to knock the people out, then we will pour gasoline on them and burn them." "I told him," Crowder's statement said, "that he would be in it alone."

In the early hours of the morning, according to the Crowder statement, Wimbley came to his room and asked him if he was going through with the plan and Crowder replied that he had no intention of going through with it. On the following day Mrs. Tench inquired the reason for the extra gasoline in the car and Crowder's statement said that Wimbley replied that they thought the car had a gasoline leak.

Then on the way home from Richmond on September 16, Mrs. Wimbley suggested that they go fishing on the following day, which was her 26th birthday. Crowder accompanied them. While Crowder was paddling the canoe in the canal near Chain Bridge, Wimbley, standing on the tow path, made a motion to him to overturn the canoe.

Held Accidental.

Then, Crowder's statement says, he paddled ashore and as he walked near Wimbley, Wimbley, speaking from the side of his mouth, said: "Why the hell didn't you turn the damn thing over?"

"Wimbley was looking pitchforks, knives and everything else at me when I came ashore," the Crowder statement said. As to the actual upsetting of the canoe, Crowder maintained that it was accidental.

"I had one foot in the boat when I slipped and the canoe overturned," his statement said. "With all the strength that God gave me I tried to save those people. I dove and dove again until I was exhausted. Wimbley was swimming around trying to locate the woman and child."

After the body of Mrs. Wimbley had been taken from the canal, Crowder's statement said, he approached Wimbley and said:

"My God, how did it happen?"

To which Wimbley is alleged to have replied: "That's all right. I'll fix it up with the police and the newspapers."

Further evidence given to the jury as the result of the statement was that Wimbley had promised Crowder that he would "fix him up," but that he didn't specify any amount.

Crowder had a "feeling that something was going to happen," he said.

The alleged confession of Crowder was introduced over the strenuous objections of Defense Counsel Cedric Johnson and Louis L. Whitestone, who contended that inducement had been offered to Crowder to make the statement. After hearing the testimony of Detective Sergt. Floyd A. Truscott, as to the manner in which the statement was obtained, Justice James M. Proctor allowed the introduction.

Coercion Denied.

Both Mr. Johnson and Mr. Whitestone tried fruitlessly to obtain an admission from Detective Sergt. Truscott that inducements had been offered to Crowder so that he would sign the statement. He also denied that Crowder had said certain things at the suggestion of officers.

After obtaining the statement from Crowder, Truscott said it was later read in the presence of Wimbley. During the reading, he said, Wimbley rested his head in his arms and when asked if he had anything to say, Wimbley replied: "Nothing."

Truscott told of Crowder's earlier statement in which he said he did not see Mrs. Wimbley and the child fall into the water. This statement was later repudiated by Crowder, he said.

Waiving her constitutional rights, Mrs. Ida Mae Graves Dickerson, who married Wimbley under the name of Dickerson on April 13, 1931, took the stand against him. She said she had known him only two months when she married him. He had told her, she said, that he had divorced his wife in Baltimore and never mentioned his second wife, Mrs. Wimbley, to her.

Reason for Alias.

When she left for Exeter, Mo., last September, she said, he was to follow her there within a month, but in the meantime he was arrested on the murder charge. The reason he gave for changing his name from Wimbley to Dickerson, she said, was that he had had some trouble in the Marine Corps and then changed his name when he was discharged.

Truscott then told of Wimbley's statement that he had "gotten rid" of Mrs. Dickerson, because she was just "a good cook" and that he "had no regard for her." Mrs. Dickerson wept audibly in the courtroom.

Truscott told of an interview he had with Wimbley in which Wimbley said he had a "small accident insurance policy" on his wife and that his wife had a $1,000 life insurance policy and his stepchild had a $300 life insurance policy, both of which would accrue to him.

Finally, Truscott testified, Wimbley told of the $10,000 accident insurance policy, but at first insisted that his wife had asked him to take out such an application, that she had filled out the application and mailed it to him. Then, according to Truscott, he admitted under further questioning that he had "forged her name to the policy."

WASHINGTON RANKS 17TH LEADING AREA

A metropolitan population of 621,059 in Washington, ranks the city in seventeenth place among the Nation's 96 metropolitan areas, according to the tabulations of the Census Bureau announced yesterday in completing a final report on the classification of the country's 1930 population.

The 96 areas comprise in the aggregate 45 per cent of the total population of the United States. The general rule followed in establishing metropolitan areas has been to include in the district with the central city all surrounding minor civil and election divisions, having a density of not less than 150 inhabitants to the square mile. Sixty per cent of the population of the areas lives in the central cities, according to the report.

Leading Areas Compared.

The report is a supplement of the census made public on July 19, 1931, which gives the total population of each of the 27 cities and towns constituting the Washington Metropolitan Area of 484.99 square miles.

A comparison of population total of 1930 with that of the census of 1920 in the eighteen areas leading the country is shown as follows:

Districts	1930	1920
New York	10,901,424	8,906,404
Chicago	4,394,755	3,371,861
Philadelphia	2,847,148	2,402,076
Los Angeles	2,218,897	.....
Boston	2,307,857	2,067,325
Detroit	2,104,764	1,352,909
Pittsburgh	1,963,688	1,696,646
St. Louis	1,293,516	1,071,529

Milwaukee	743,414	653,118
Washington	621,059	594,499
Kansas City	608,196	479,893

The central city of the Washington area shows a smaller percentage increase in population during the last decade than the cities and towns outside of Washington. The total population of the towns is 134,190, an increase of 54.4. The central city's population is 486,969, which is an increase of 11.3 per cent in the decade.

422,001 of Voting Age.

Although there are 422,001 persons of voting age living in the metropolitan area, only 80,536 of the total, who live in nearby Maryland and Virginia have the privilege to vote, as residents of the central city have no franchise. The number maintaining a legal residence elsewhere, and thus being entitled to vote, is negligible.

Area.	Total population.	Male.	Female.

MRS. MASSIE, ANGRY, DEFIES PROSECUTOR; ACT APPLAUDED

prosecution had finished a scorching cross-examination of Dr. Edward Huntington Williams, one of two Los Angeles physicians who testified Massie was insane the moment Kahahawai was killed.

Mrs. Massie testified she was 21 years old, born in Washington, D. C., and had been married to Massie when she was 16. Under Darrow's gentle questioning she began the story of the attack the night of September 12, 1931.

"Do you remember especially," asked Darrow, "the party at Ala Wai Inn?"

She answered affirmatively and told how she had left the party alone about 11:35 p. m., intending to take a walk because she was tired and bored. Massie paled as she went on, Mrs. Fortescue's eyes filled with tears.

An objection by Kelley forced Darrow to switch the questioning to facts about herself and husband after the attack.

Attack Story Related.

Darrow asked when she first met Massie after the attack.

The witness burst into tears at the mention of her husband's name. She sobbed as Massie looked at the floor and Mrs. Fortescue turned appealingly to George S. Leisure, associate defense attorney, who halted the questioning and comforted Mrs. Massie.

"I saw him," Mrs. Massie finally said between gasps, "at home. I heard him coming up the walk. He heard me crying and asked me what was the matter."

The tears continued but she went on:

"I didn't want to tell him because it was so terrible. Then I told him they beat me and raped me.

"I told police I was walking down the road that night when a car drove up and stopped beside me. It was an open touring car. Chang (one of the attack case defendants) and Kahahawai hit me on the jaw and Chang said 'Come on, baby, you're going for a ride.'

"I tried to get them to let me go and they dragged me into the car. Then they drove off up the road and dragged me into the bushes."

Tears Interrupt Witness.

Violent crying prevented her from continuing. Mrs. Fortescue, alarmed, walked across the room and asked Darrow to stop the questioning until Mrs. Massie had recovered her composure. Tears glistened from the eyes of many women spectators, most of whom were white. The jury of varied racial origin listened soberly.

"They carried me into the bushes," the witness finally resumed, "and assaulted me. I offered them money and tried to pray but they wouldn't even let me pray." Another spasm of crying stopped the story there.

"What were the others doing while this was going on?" Darrow asked.

"They were standing around, talking and laughing."

Mrs. Massie told how she had gone home the night of the attack after being taken to the hospital and how "Tommy," as she called her husband, put her to bed. She told of her sleeplessness and how she had identified Henry Chang, Kahahawai, Horace Ida and Ben Ahakeulo, as four of the men who had participated in the assault. She did not identify David Takai, the fifth suspect.

Husband's Kindness Praised.

The witness told how the suspects were brought to the hospital after she had been taken there for a second time. She said she had put rubber bands on her broken jaws to hold them together and then had gone to the hospital for about a week.

"Was 'Tommy' there any of the time?" Darrow queried.

"Yes, he was there nearly all the time until they made him go away. He was just wonderful." Another burst of tears interrupted the testimony for a moment and then she went on:

"He never complained, although I called him all through the night. He didn't sleep, anyway."

Darrow hurried through the questioning then to release the witness as soon as possible. Mrs. Massie testified her physician, Dr. Paul Withington, had told her she was to become a mother and how he performed an operation. She related how Massie had gone to sea during the attack trial and how she had sent him a message telling of the jury disagreement. Then she repeated the rumors about her husband and herself.

Anxious for Confession.

Mrs. Massie said her husband later mentioned it would be wonderful if they could get a confession from those accused of the attack.

"I told him not to worry," she continued, "but he worried anyhow. He walked up and down at night. I knew things he liked and tried to cook them because he wasn't eating. But he would eat only a few mouthfuls and then go and smoke a cigarette."

Mrs. Massie testified the defendant Jones had been sent to her home as a guard a few days before the killing, and that on the morning of the tragedy he appeared there about 10 o'clock, an hour after the slaying.

"He seemed excited," she said. "I said 'What's the matter, Jones?' and he said Kahahawai had been killed. I said 'where is Tommy?' and he said 'I sent him off with your mother.' He asked if he could have a drink and I said I would fix him a highball. He said that wasn't enough; that he would pour one."

There the witness was turned over to Kelley, who swiftly led up to the mysterious document by asking her if Massie always had been kind and considerate. She answered affirmatively. Then the prosecutor asked if she had taken the psychopathic examination and handed her the paper for identification of her own handwriting.

Then came the outburst.

Asked About Phone Calls.

On cross-examination Kelley also asked about telephone calls to her house the morning of the killing. She said no calls had come from Jones.

"Are you positive?" Kelley demanded.

"Yes."

Under the grilling, she then said she had mixed but one drink for Jones, but that he "made a good many for himself."

The prosecutor wanted to know whether she had given her maid any instructions about what to tell officers if they asked about Jones. Mrs. Massie said she told the maid to say Jones was there.

The witness said Lieut. Leo Pall had telephoned and wanted to know where Massie was. She said she told him she would try to find out and send him to Pearl Harbor.

Kelley asked if Mrs. Massie had said to Lieut. Pall over the telephone, "Leo, cover him all up."

Mrs. Massie said she had not.

Kelley did not say whether he would continue questioning Mrs. Massie at the resumption of the trial tomorrow, and likewise was silent about when he would call Dr. Paul Bowers, Los Angeles alienist, due here in the morning to assist the prosecution.

OHIO NOT TO RECALL MINE FIELD TROOPS

Stolen Nitroglycerin Is Found Where Miners Had Been Meeting.

Cadiz, Ohio, April 20 (A.P.).—Recovery of 5 quarts of nitroglycerin stolen from a torpedo company in the eastern Ohio bituminous mine strike region and the arrest of two men in connection with the theft was announced by Harrison County authorities tonight.

Arresting officers said the explosive was found hidden at Jewett in a building where employes of the O. & P. Deep Shaft Mine had been meeting. The nitroglycerin was stolen recently from the Producers Torpedo Co. of Rumley Crossing. A small amount of dynamite also was taken.

The arrests followed a statement by Gov. George White at Columbus that Ohio National Guardsmen would be kept on duty in the strike zone until law and order is assured.

The governor, replying to protests against the use of the troops, condemned riots and other disorders which have marked the strike. A few hours before his stand was made known, a terrific explosion shook the region around Jewett, 10 miles north of Cadiz, several marches of union pickets occurred and shots were fired near the Tass Mines.

One of the two marches by union pickets was successful. Seventy-five men, employed in the Warner Collieries mine, north of Steubenville, were persuaded to strike by the marchers. Another group failed to force a strike of 220 men near Caldwell.

Gov. White minced no words in his reply to the executive committee of the Socialist party at Dayton and Theresa Marich, who said she represented an antiwar faction at Canton. They protested against use of troops. The executive said he recognized the right of the miners to organize and to strike, if the strike was peaceful but he emphasized he would use every power at his command to protect life and property.

The soldiers will be withdrawn, the governor said, "when disorder ceases and respect for the law is restored in this district."

(Associated Press.)

Lee Hall, of Columbus, Ohio, president of the United Mine Workers of America, district No. 6, said in a statement yesterday that representatives of Ohio's striking miners were ready to negotiate with mine operators for a decent settlement but that the operators had refused.

Hall said representatives of the miners were in Washington to respond to Secretary Doak's invitation to miners and operators to confer over a means of ending the strife in the Ohio coal fields, but that the operators had refused to confer.

Lieut. M. D. Smith of the Traffic Bureau will be grand marshal of the parade, assisted by Sergts. J. E. Fondahl and T. L. McNamara. The high school cadets and five bands will also be in the line of march.

ROOSEVELT SCORES UNWISE ECONOMIES

Savings Should Not Be Made at Expense of Public Welfare, He Says.

Rochester, N. Y., April 20 (A.P.).—Addressing the International Society for Crippled Children here today, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said economies in government should not be brought about at the expense of public welfare.

While present economic conditions necessitate the curtailment of some administrative functions, the New York Governor said, it is nevertheless economically unwise to slash budget items for welfare work. This applies especially, he said, to the care and development of the crippled children.

Mr. Roosevelt came here from St. Paul, Minn. He waved aside questions regarding former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's challenge to his presidential candidacy, refused to comment on the proposal for cash payment of soldiers' bonus or on the proposed $15,000,000 reduction in the Navy budget, although he was formerly Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

"I don't suppose any one is opposed to economy" he said in his address to the Crippled Children Society, "and I have come to realize that in the last few years we have spent rather too liberally for government.

"But in the mad scramble for economy there is danger that the community may be brought to suffer, and that future generations may be made to suffer also."

examined all of the material made available by Mr. Whitney.

The evaporation of determined selling pressure on the New York stock list, which began to be reflected in price movements late last week, continued yesterday and, partly as a result, the gains and losses for the day were nearer equal that they have been any day since the last big decline set in six weeks ago.

The disappearance of abnormal short selling at this particular time has itself become an object of inquiry within the Senate committee, and it is probable that some of the traders may be questioned on the point today.

Association Offers Aid.

Further support of the bear inquiry was offered yesterday by the National Association of State Securities Commissioners. Through its president, Edward R. Hicks, of Little Rock, Ark., the association advised Chairman Norbeck it was "probably more familiar with the inside workings of stock exchanges than any other organization outside of the exchanges themselves." The association, which is composed of officials charged with administering the "blue-sky laws" of the several States, stands ready to assist the committee in any way possible, Mr. Hicks advised.

Great interest centered yesterday in the committee's decision to summon representatives of the brokerage firm of Laird, Bissell & Meads, which is widely known in Wall street as a Wilmington, Del., firm specializing in du Pont shares and securities. Previously there had been no intimation that du Pont issues had figured particularly in the bears' operations disclosed by Mr. Whitney's records.

Prominent Figures Included.

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—Seasoned Wall street brokers who have survived the buffeting of several bear markets are members of New York Stock Exchange firms included in the list called to appear before the Senate committee hearings on stock market activities.

Hornblower & Weeks, W. E. Hutton & Co., and Thomson & McKinnon are among the largest commission houses, with offices in several cities.

Harry Content, of H. Content & Co., is recognized as one of the deans of the stock market. In 48 years of trading on the beehive floor of the stock exchange he has won the title of Sphinx. It has been said that not even his intimate friends know for whom he is executing orders, nor precisely what his position might be at any time in a given stock.

Mr. Content has helped to make many markets in the feverish ups and downs of stock market activities. He has not been identified popularly on the bear side of the market. But he has usually emerged from past bull markets with fresh prestige. It has been claimed that only three of his firm's many customers were "cleaned out" in the market collapse of October, 1929.

Not Recently Active.

Mr. Content has not been as active of late years. He appears on the floor at intervals, but has turned over the bulk of his firm's work to younger associates.

Col. John W. Prentiss, of Hornblower & Weeks, is one of Wall street's prominent veterans. He is president of the Association of New York Stock Exchange Firms and has played a leading role in the exchange's present campaign against the proposed increase in Federal taxes on security trading. The firm with which he is identified was originally formed by New England capital with its offices in Boston.

George Briggs Buchanan, of Thomson & McKinnon, is another "old timer" in the ranks of leading stock market operators. He is reputed to have handled several important operations for leading financiers. Mr. Buchanan probably founded the principal part of his present fortune on his faith in the future of the Corn Products Refining Co.

Sang Corn Products Praises.

Back in 1921, when most of America's people with money were just as discouraged over the future prospect as they appear to be now, "Buck" Buchanan was singing the praises of corn products. Whenever he entered a gathering that was talking gloomily of market prospects, the veteran operator would advise them to "buy a little corn products and cheer up with it."

Farell Brothers and Stein, Alstrin & Co., have offices in New York, but are primarily known as Chicago institutions.

W. E. Hutton & Co. is a large wire house, prominent in Ohio. Laird Bissell & Meads is known as a Wilmington, Del., house and as active in Du Pont stock.

While all of these institutions are stock exchange members, a number of them are equally active in the commodity markets. Farell Brothers is one of the active firms in the grain market at Chicago, while Thomson & McKinnon is known not only as a leading stock exchange firm, but also is active in cotton.

Youth Held in House Entry.

An 18-year-old youth, trapped yesterday in a house by Second Precinct police, was booked on a charge of investigation. He gave his name as Joseph Reed, colored, of 1615 Q street northwest. Police said neighbors saw him enter a house at 1311 Marion street northwest.

FORWARD, D. A. R.!

Washington once more welcomes the Daughters of the American Revolution, who have gathered in their forty-first continental congress. They come to the city that is peculiarly their own—the Federal City—and here they will meet the leaders of Government in all its branches.

As the years pass the prestige and influence of the D. A. R. are enhanced and broadened. This national society is a potent agency of national welfare because it is founded upon the solid rock of patriotism. No storm of war, sweep of depression or wave of crime can destroy the structure which devoted American women have built upon love of country. It not only survives every shock, but is a fortress in which invincible forces are sustained and prepared for militant attack upon all enemies, foreign and domestic.

The blood of the Daughters of the American Revolution is that which flowed in the veins of the founders of the Federal Union. They are the inheritors and transmitters of that iron-souled fortitude which withstood all the arrows of fate, nature and fortune, to the end that liberty should be established. No other assembly of men or women in the United States is so purely American as the Society of the D. A. R.

The preservation of liberty and independence is the duty of the present generation. The women of the D. A. R. gladly face that duty. They are home makers and home defenders, from the hearth to the remotest battle-line of the Army and Navy. Against foreign wiles, against foreign assault, against domestic cowardice and defeatism, against the hordes of crime, these American mothers stand united and militant. Now that they have the ballot their courage is reinforced with strength. From every part of the country they come to the nation's heart, to inform themselves and to draw inspiration for the work they perform without ceasing throughout the year.

Recent appalling crimes against childhood and the home have aroused American women to the dangers attending the failure of law enforcement agencies to cope with organized crime. The demand that law shall be at least as efficient as its violators is rising in volume throughout the country. Vigilant and intelligent women are at work on the problem. In tens of thousands of homes the men are urged to attack this problem of suppressing modern crime. Women are usually more alert than men in sensing social danger, and they are usually more in favor of "direct action." Out of the outraged souls of American women may come the organization of society in such form as to put an end to the regime of banditry, kidnaping, robbery, and murder which endangers American liberty. When mothers must immure themselves behind walls to prevent the stealing of their children it can not be said that Americans enjoy either liberty or security. What a travesty upon the spirit that made the fathers dare to make this country free!

Vice President Curtis has alluded to the great service which the D. A. R. can perform in combatting the crime regime. The present continental congress can make its session memorable in the annals of the republic if it will take the first steps toward organizing society as a unit for the purpose of modernizing the weapons and methods of law for the suppression of crime. It may be advisable to organize community vigilance committees to cooperate with the law and to compel the States and Congress to make the law more efficient. If the men of this country are so supine, so engrossed in every-day affairs as to neglect the primary duty of protecting their homes and families, let the women shake them out of their apathy. The D. A. R. can be the nucleus of a nation-wide reform movement that can wipe out the shame and dishonor of further toleration of this era of human outrage and butchery.

ALL IN THE SAME BOAT.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, delivered a remarkable address before the Pennsylvania Society in New York on Tuesday. With unusual frankness he said:

> I have been a very rich man. I always thought that the question of money was one thing in my life that would never come up. There are no rich in America today. They don't know where they stand. The highest type of riches as personified in this country today has practically vanished and men are afraid to look at their ledgers to see if they are worth anything or not.
> Now that's the truth, and so I'm afraid, every man is afraid. I don't know, we don't know, whether values we have are going to be real next month or not.

This address can not be considered an outburst of pessimism by a great industrial leader, for Mr. Schwab reasserted his faith in economic recovery. Yet it is a remarkable confession that crushing losses and threats of bankruptcy are gnawing at the minds of men lately reckoned as millionaires. The depression has shaken the economic structure from top to bottom. No class more profoundly feels the collapse of prosperity than the capitalists; and many of them are employers of labor on a great scale.

In previous economic convulsions the tendency has been to shift the burden of distress to the working classes. It can not be argued that labor has escaped the consequences of this depression, but employes who have kept their jobs have not been hit nearly so hard as many people who have been considered rich. A recent compilation shows that the value of all securities listed on the New York stock exchange has shrunk from $86,000,000,000 in 1929 to $21,000,000,000 in 1932.

The deep social significance of this upset of values can not be overestimated. Financial wizards and captains of industry have been brought to realize that an economic convulsion in this highly complicated civilization may reduce their holdings to nothing, and that their welfare is intimately related to the welfare of the country as a whole. Under the systems of mass production and large-scale consumption distress can not be shifted to the lower stratum of society. Security for the moneyed interests today is impossible unless other economic groups are likewise put in a position of security.

Consciousness of the interdependence of all groups in the modern industrial nation may prove to be the most important lesson of the current debacle. Industrial leaders discovered during the last decade of prosperity that it was necessary to pay high wages in order to make quantity production possible. The present collapse of values may lead to a more perfect balance between output and purchasing power.

The steady diminution of values during the last two years should be the strongest possible incentive for industry to stabilize employment and to effect a more equitable distribution of profits among the workers. In this age wealth can not endure unless the country is prosperous. And the country can not be prosperous unless the rank and file of the people are able to buy as well as produce the necessities and luxuries of life. A realization of both entrepreneurs and labor that they are in the same boat so far as their general economic welfare is concerned is one of the sweet uses of adversity.

FOLLY IN REVERSE.

It is time to realize that the great investing public of the United States is just as foolish today as it was at the height of the boom in 1929. Complaint is frequently voiced now that the leaders of finance and Federal officials did not do something to stop the reckless buying of securities that resulted in the skyrocketing of prices far beyond reasonable values. Occasional voices were raised in warning then, but they were lost in the chorus that was discounting the future.

A year or two hence, when stock and bond values have climbed back to something like normal levels, the same wails will be heard: Why did not somebody warn us not to sacrifice our holdings? Why were we not advised to buy, when standard issues were going begging at figures that reckoned total capital stock at less than realizable assets?

The panicky selling of the last few weeks has been senseless. It is exactly the same blind mob action that bought stocks three years ago with utter disregard of earning power and dividends.

In the third year of other panics most of the railroads were in receivership, banks generally were tottering, and at times even the government credit was seriously threatened, and yet there has never been such a wholesale sacrifice of values, such indiscriminate dumping of good securities with consequent decline of market values as has been witnessed recently. That the irresponsible actions of the House of Representatives precipitated this latest decline there can be no doubt, but Congress has recovered from that wild flurry, and there is every reason to believe that in the end the budget will be balanced, the bonus rejected, and sound money sustained.

Many stock prices today are lower than they were in the midst of much worse conditions following the collapse of 1893. Then there was a dearth of nearly everything that is plentiful today. Maladjustments, lack of proper distribution and unwarranted alarm still combine to hinder a return to normal activity. But remedial forces are at work. The restoration of credit facilities for agriculture and the minor industries was of prime importance; and results from efficient efforts in this direction are beginning to show.

PROTECTION FOR COPPER.

The problem of copper presses for solution. American copper mining companies are at a fearful disadvantage in competing with the copper enterprises of Africa and South America. The governors of twelve States have petitioned President Hoover in behalf of relief for the distress of the copper industry in their territories. Billions of dollars invested in copper mining and allied businesses are threatened with total loss, and thousands of mine workers and small tradesmen have been robbed of their means of making a living.

The whole world feels the strain of depression, but in the copper country suffering is particularly acute. The mines are suspended, the smelters cold, the mills dormant, the towns and villages declining to extinction. Throughout the Nation in general, there has been loss because of the failure of copper stock dividends.

In a peculiarly important respect, copper is an essential commodity in the maintenance of national safety, for it is from copper that many parts of war machinery and munitions are made. With the disappearance of copper mining the defense of the country would be weakened. With the copper mines closed, the Army, Navy and air forces would be at the mercy of foreign copper producers. For patriotic, if not for social reasons, Congress should act to safeguard the copper field of industry.

At one time American copper dominated the world. Today foreign copper successfully competes with domestic in the home market. The peon labor of competitor lands has made it possible for American copper to be ousted from American use. The only solution is the enactment of a protective duty.

Free traders, if there be any of them extant, are invited to study the copper problem for compelling evidence of the fallacy of their notions.

AMERICANIZATION OF THE EAST

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

The infiltration of the American ideas of rule by the people, the rights of labor, equality before the law and equal opportunity is one of the basic causes of the social unrest in Asia. The missionary, the educator, the business man and the press on the one hand, and the Asian scholars, traders, travelers and political leaders on the other, are the promotional agencies in the commerce of ideas between the East and the West.

Contrary to the dictum of the jingoist pontificating in the name of liberalism, the East is not in revolt against the West. Rather, the East is looking at itself critically through the spectacles of the West, and as a consequence is readjusting itself. That there are Westerners involved in this portentous process is only incidental. Mahatma Gandhi himself said that he culled the principle of civil disobedience from the writings of an almost-forgotten American intellectual and transcendentalist, Henry David Thoreau, who died in Massachusetts 70 years ago.

Not in challenge but in obedience to the urge of understanding, the Americanization, so to speak, of Eastern ideologies is a motivating element in China's demand for revision of so-called unequal treaties, Japan's policy to dominate the East and establish racial equality with the West, India's struggle for governmental autonomy, the Filipinos' desire for complete independence, the efforts at modernization in Siam, and the faint appeal for more native participation in the governance of French Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies.

In philosophy, idiosyncrasy, tradition, religion, language and aspirations there is no such thing as Eastern solidarity. The chasm between Japan and the rest of the East is wider than that existing between the East and the West. The nearest to a common ground of intellectual rapprochement is the culture of China, which is steeped in thousands of years of recorded history.

It is the English language that serves as the medium of communication between the Eastern peoples. It is in this medium that the culture of China is being revealed to her neighbors and to the world. Indeed, the English language and the principles that it unravels constitute the strongest unifying factor among the Eastern peoples, transcending the considerations of geographical propinquity and ethnological relationships.

While clashing at various points, the East and the West harmonize and complement each other in vital respects. What is needed is an ambitious synchronization of ideas. As Western thought will give more buoyancy and practicality to Eastern civilization, so Eastern philosophy will endow Western life with more solemnity, mysticism and idealism. The poetic refrain of "East is East and West is West" must become more and more geographical and less and less cultural.

The Philippines, under American influences of 33 years superimposed upon a Malay-Indonesian-Spanish background, is not only the laboratory but the broadcasting station of American ideas and ideals in the East where 1,000,000,000 people live. The success of America's work in the islands in local self-government, education, sanitation, amelioration of living conditions and general democratization of methods and thoughts is a dynamic influence in the reawakening of the East to the progress and the tempo of the twentieth century.

The Philippines has in the future the opportunity of becoming the leader in the inevitable reconstructed regime in southeast Asia, comprising the home of the Malay race. The tendency of world opinion is the final emancipation of all submerged peoples. The process will necessarily be long and cautious to assure success and preserve international tranquillity. Fighting impatience for the sake of greater strength, the Philippines must cement more solidly the foundation of a new nation inspired in American ideas and ideals.

RUINS.

They builded great temples of stone.
They struggled their glory to keep.
They toiled for the god they had known,
And now in a dust-covered heap
Their splendors lie broken and stained
And their altars of sacrifice stand
Where the waters of ages have rained
In the winds of a tropical land.

There are signs of a faith that was cold
As the stone which they fashioned so well,
On great walls may the student behold
Strange tales which the hieroglyphs tell.
And all you can think of out there
In their temples so weird and so strange,
Where all is so barren and bare,
Is that God must have wanted a change.

For numberless years they believed
By blood was their Maker appeased;
By the grief of a mother bereaved
Of her daughter the rain god was pleased.
And to that end they builded and raised
Great halls of devotion and prayer,
But Time has their culture erased
And only a stone pile is there.

The Great Man Is a Small Boy Who Tries Harder With Praise.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A CERTAIN young man possessed an excellent barytone voice. He enjoyed the sound of it, but little singing was done in his community except in the churches and he didn't associate with church people. In fact, several worthy people had expressed an interest in his soul and embarrassment had made him seem so resentful and sullen that all of them regarded him as a lost cause.

Then a shrewd and tactful man, hearing him sing at some social gathering, remarked with just the right degree of disinterested enthusiasm: "If I had a wonderful voice like yours, I'd certainly be using it in the service of my Lord."

Five years later that young man was the dominating influence in his church.

Another man, a public official, was almost persuaded by a selfish faction in his community to do a thing that would have caused a bitter religious quarrel.

Before he committed himself, a local newspaper printed the story and commented editorially: "The community has nothing to fear. Mr. Blank is an intelligent man and a gentleman, and will do nothing to injure his neighbors."

Mr. Blank justified the newspaper's description.

These incidents, you will say, illustrate the power of human vanity. Quite true; but they also illustrate the power of praise.

All men covet the good opinion of their fellows. The humblest ditch digger glows with a new sense of manhood when his skill or strength is praised; the greatest of men delights in the praise of the humble.

This hunger for commendation makes praise a force that can be harnessed to move the wheels of the world.

Criticism serves only to anger or discourage; praise, justly earned and judiciously administered, develops the self-respect and the ambition that are the foundation of all achievement.

No normal person, having received a morsel of praise, will be content until he has earned another.

If you covet influence, here is your opportunity; for high and low alike will in some degree follow the direction of your praise as pot plants lean to face the sun.

Next Business.
(Syracuse Post-Standard.)

The chairman of the Jefferson Day dinner of Democrats at Washington neglected to make an important announcement. He should have said, at the conclusion of Al Smith's speech: "We will now proceed with the reelection of Herbert Hoover."

Long on History.
(Kansas City Star.)

After having served a group of Senate colleagues with "pot likker" of his own make, Huey Long, of Louisiana, asserted that "the Civil War was caused more by Northern cooks down South trying to put sugar in cornbread than by anything else." Yes, and that's the reason Lee got his own consent to take charge of the Confederate forces; he wanted to drive the abominable cooks from the homeland and preserve States' rights. It was because of the collapse of this effort that, years later, Mr. Long finally got into the Senate on a pot likker platform and that history, to its own heavy cost, repeated itself; the difference being that the war lasted four years while Mr. Long's term is due to last six.

Alfalfa Bill Murray said he expected to get a lot of fun out of his campaign. Well, there's no accounting for tastes, and if a man likes getting a soak to the wind every so often, that's just what he likes.

Oregon leads the Nation with one-fifth of the marketable timber. However, California still leads with the tallest presidential timber.

Serious Omission.
(New York Times.)

People who feared that this presidential campaign was going to be stale, flat and unprofitable left Al Smith out of their reckoning.

Democratic Manners.
(New York Herald Tribune.)

When one statesman calls a rival statesman a "shallow thinker" and the latter retorts by calling his assailant "a demagogue," the wise American public has no difficulty in guessing what is afoot. The Democratic leaders are engaged in the brotherly business of seeking the presidential nomination of their party. Whether it is worth having, after they have got through blacking one another's eyes and generally battering the party to a pulp, is another matter.

Rudiments of Politics.
(Houghton Line Magazine.)

A statesman is one who fails because he disdains to know the Crowd.

A politician is a fellow who succeeds and grows rich and powerful by knowing the Crowd so well and so intimately that he can always take full advantage of its weaknesses.

Not Likely!

President Hoover says he will work for a dollar a year, but probably it is too much to expect a parallel offer from our other $75,000 celebrity, Mr. George Herman Ruth.

Encouraging Crime.
(Houston Post.)

It is regrettable that confirmation of Judge Wilkerson has been held up for three months already. Prompt confirmation of his promotion would have been a factor in aiding the forces seeking to gain domination over crime in Chicago in gaining their end. Every day that the action of the Senate is delayed offers new encouragement to the gangsters of Chicago, and indeed to every other city.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Mrs. Kelley Urges a "Buy American" Campaign to End Depression in United States.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Britain has balanced her budget. Last year she inaugurated a "Buy British" policy, and all over the isles in every shop window, in every train and tram, one saw the slogan, "Buy British and End the Depression." The sturdy British, from prince to pauper, from king to commoner, bought British.

This year there will be a meeting in Canada at which the British colonies are planning to inaugurate the same plan of buying and patronizing each other.

We are going through trying times in the United States. Why don't we follow the lead of our British cousins? Our own railroads are in deep distress. Our businesses, our manufacturers need all the help we can give them. Why not adopt the slogan, "Buy American and Keep Our Dollars at Home?"

Why not pass by foreign-made goods of all kinds, and demand and buy American-made goods?

Mrs. Hoover boomed the cotton trade by wearing a cotton dress to a reception. Why don't we women of the United States follow her example and wear cotton instead of crepes and silks of foreign make?

Women wield such tremendous power these days that any movement sponsored by them is bound to produce extraordinary results. If the D. A. R., the Federated Clubs, the Democrats and the Republicans, the rich and the poor would "Buy American," we would end the depression. Let's try it.

MRS. WILLIAM FITCH KELLEY.

Reader Calls for Cutting Pay of Congressmen to Save Government Workers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am utterly at a loss to understand the attitude of Congress and the Chief Executive in advocating either a straight pay cut or a pay cut under the guise of enforced "vacations." I can readily understand how a pay cut among the higher salaried employes will save the Government some money without working hardship. But to cut the salaries of those receiving $1,800 or less would be a severe blow to those who can least afford it. Many have bought homes and have fixed obligations to meet regardless of the amount of their salaries, necessitating cutting down even on necessities. To cut these small salaries would be tragic.

If salaries must be cut, why not start with the higher paid employes, including congressmen? Representatives and senators enjoy a salary of $10,000 per annum, averaging six months' vacation with pay. This could be cut down to $7,500 without hardship. Or why not pay them on a per diem basis? Why not do away with the franking privilege and mileage allowance? And why not reduce allowance for clerical hire to a more reasonable basis? These savings if applied to the prevention of pay cuts among the lower paid employes would prevent from thirty to forty thousand of these employes from suffering pay cuts. S. R. B.

American in Italy Pleads for Rejection of Fiat Money Schemes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Surely our American people have seen what happened to those European countries which resorted to the printing press to make good the national deficits and debts? Once the vicious circle is started there is no stopping it until the whole currency system is destroyed to the ruin of everybody. We know what happened to Germany when she began to stamp paper money in ever-increasing quantities, to the ruin of millions of her citizens whose life savings were wiped out entirely in the process.

Are the American people—after having this tragic example as a warning—going to start on the same mad path to national bankruptcy? The remedy would be worse than the disease.

Please use all your influence to prevent such a calamity from overtaking us. Otherwise there will be such a flight from the dollar as was never seen before on the part of foreign countries whose faith in the stability of the dollar is already shaken, as the English and Italian press has been saying every day now for over a month. If we resort to stamping paper money without any backing, as some congressmen propose, American currency will go down to utter ruin and discredit.

Jefferson Regarded Wine as a Good Antidote to Whisky.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the Wednesday letter column of The Post, Jackson P. Gay says the Al Smiths and Frank Roosevelts and other wet Democrats "may be surprised to hear that Jefferson was a prohibitionist." In support of this he submits quotations to show that the Father of Democracy was strongly opposed to the use of hard liquors.

It is true that he advocated temperance in the best sense of the word. But if Mr. Gay would have us believe that Jefferson was a kiln-dried dry it seems to me that he is asking too much.

In a letter to M. de Neuville, dated Monticello, December 13, 1818, Jefferson said:

"I rejoice, as a moralist, at the prospect of a reduction of the duties on wine by our national legislature. It is an error to view a tax on that liquor as merely a tax on the rich. It is a prohibition of its use to the middling class of our citizens, and a condemnation of them to the poison of whisky, which is desolating their houses. No nation is drunken where wine is cheap; and none sober where the dearness of wines substitutes ardent spirits as the common beverage. It is, in truth, the only antidote to the bane of whisky."

To judge from his own testimony I think the Sage of Monticello may properly be classed as a light-wine-and-beer statesman. F. JAMES.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the importance of beauty for every woman, in every walk of life. Elsie Pierce feels that every woman, regardless of her work or calling, can arrange a beauty program and follow it daily. Study the hints given here and write to Miss Pierce in care of this paper if you have any beauty problems.

Beauty for Stage and Screen.

BEAUTY seems to be more closely associated with the young women of the stage and screen than any other class. It is not necessary to emphasize the important part it plays for these talented luminaries, the fame and fortune it wins for them.

I am writing about beauty for stage and screen, not because I want any of my readers in business or the home to imitate movie or stage stars, for that would not be practical. Every woman is a law unto herself, and the make-up suitable for stage, for instance, is not suitable for street wear and so on. My chief reason for writing about the stars is to dispel the false notion that most people have that these famous actresses were "born beautiful." They weren't.

More fascinating than any story of "rags to riches" are the stories of self-made beauty that various of our leading ladies have achieved by sheer force of will and persistence. One had irregular teeth, another bow legs, one was very stout, and one who has since achieved distinction and world-wide fame was just plain and drab, but her forceful acting was readily recognized.

It is no secret that many of the stars go through all sorts of pummeling and rigid exercises as well as diet routines to keep their figures trim. It is no secret that hours are spent at fashionable beauty salons, wrinkles smoothed away, hair washed and waved in becoming and intriguing ringlets. Although these stars spend a great deal of time experimenting, adopting new and individual haircuts, new costumes and colors, this does not interfere with their daily beauty program devoted to exercise, facials, hair and hand care. Somehow the erroneous impression exists that their make-up is put on heavily in order to hide imperfections. That is not so at all. A great deal of vivid make-up is needed because the powerful lights take much of the color away and average make-up would appear pitifully pale under their glow. If anything, the complexions of our stars are absolutely flawless; only the best creams, lotions, unguents and soaps are permitted to touch not only face and neck, but hands as well. Make-up is, of course, an art with these artists, chosen with extreme care. Powder is always pure and fine and correct in shade, rouge heightens the natural color of the cheeks and blends with eyes and hair, lipstick matches rouge in general tone, mascara deftly applied makes lashes more luxuriant. Make-up is applied according to occasion, too. While shopping or walking or for ordinary wear her make-up is softer and more natural than "while on location." But while making a scene she is made up to depict the character she is portraying; age, youth, demon, angel—make-up plays a part in painting all of these.

Even more important than make-up, is this secret of our screen stars. They have learned to emphasize their chief charms and minimize their poor points. Some time soon I shall tell you more about this—in my message to you from Hollywood.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

WHAT KIND OF HEART DISEASE?

THE time has come to abandon the term "heart disease" and to substitute a group of words having more definite meaning. The term is rather a new one. Dr. R. H. Halsey tells us that in the records of deaths found in the New York City health department not one case of heart disease was reported between 1804 and 1808, and there were very few entered prior to the former date. After 1808 the number so entered rose rather slowly for many years. Now the entries under heart diseases far outrank any other group, and the disproportion increases yearly.

As it is now used the term is an expression of ignorance, carelessness and sometimes of something worse.

In the field of registration it is recognized that when physicians do not know what else to write on a death certificate they enter "heart disease" and let it go at that. A certificate thus entered causes no trouble with the insurance company or with the health department. In some cases it saves trouble with the coroner and State's attorney. In consequence of these several considerations the vital statistics of heart disease are misleading.

This is of interest to registrars and life insurance companies. Dr. Halsey says the people are interested, though they do not know it, nor do they see where their interest lies. His point is that those who are sick with what they have been told is heart disease would get better care and stand more show of cure if they knew what kind of heart disease they had. Furthermore, if the general term "heart disease" were properly split up, and the right new names came into general use, the people, aided by their health departments and their physicians, could do a great deal by way of prevention. He advises the use of terms based on causes. For instance, he would have the words "rheumatic heart disease" come into general use since one-fifth of all the cases come into that group. Acute inflammatory rheumatism is both preventable and curable, and it follows that, in time, that kind of heart disease should be eliminated. Somewhere about one-tenth of all heart disease is syphilitic. Dr. Bunce said that his experience among Negroes was that one-half of all the heart disease encountered had been syphilitic. This variety of heart disease can be prevented.

Physicians are discussing the advisability of abandoning the term "angina pectoris" and using several terms which would indicate the causes of the different groups of cases. Dr. Halsey said that rheumatic heart disease, syphilis, and coronary artery disease account for three-fourths of all the heart disease.

Dr. W. H. Robey says that mitral stenosis is really not a disease. It is merely a symptom or effect or rheumatic fever. Aortic regurgitation may be an effect of rheumatic fever or syphilis. In a given case it should be easy to tell which. He told of a recently recorded death certificate for a man 84 years old which gave mitral regurgitation as the cause. If this man had had mitral regurgitation he would not have lived to such an old age. What happened was that he had a soft heart muscle, which stretched under strain, causing dilation and a secondary mitral leakage.

CHRONIC ARTHRITIS.

Mrs. S. C. P. writes: Please tell me the cause of knees grinding. I can walk miles with no discomfort, but going up and downstairs causes a grinding feeling and sound in my knees, and they ache badly. I am of normal weight, a business woman, eat carefully balanced meals and have perfect health.

REPLY.

You have a mild, chronic arthritis. Probably it will not get materially worse for many years, nor cause you any more discomfort than it does now.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Unusual above-the-belt effects in the spring mode. (Dahray selections).

NEW YORK, April 20.—How modern are we? How modern is miladi's flounces and ruffles, her corsets and beauty creams?

Two thousand and five hundred years before Christ, on the island of Crete, a place called Cnossos flourished in peace and prosperity. Peace, mainly, gave it the opportunity to develop its artistic and mechanical ability. Given the oportunity, all races are artistic. But wars and the bare struggle for existence have seldom given any race the opportunity that these Cretans had. Secure from invasion, due to their geographical situation, living in a delightful climate, trading with every civilized community in the world at that time, these Cretans had every opportunity to develop artistically. And they did.

In the ruins of Cnossos, in Crete, have been found the most astonishing things. Chiefly interesting to we style-minded peopde is the mutilated staue of a votary of the snake goddess — obviously corseted and wearing a flounced skirt of fabric, or woven material of some sort—and showing a silhouette very like that of the fashionable woman of the '80's.

Would it interest you to know that this was two thousand and five hundred years before Christ? This being nineteen hundred and thirty-two years after Christ! And might it give you food for thought, if you think, to know that according to the legend of Theseus, this delightful civilization was destroyed because of a woman? The daughter of Minos, Minos meaning kind king, as all the Egyptian rulers are called Pharaoh—the legend tells us that Theseus entered the Labyrinth (probably the Cnossos Palace) by the aid of Ariadne, the daughter of the king. This was the end of a beautiful civilization, in many respects superior to our own, in others inferior. But it gives one dreams to speculate upon what that civilization might be today had it not been destroyed and had it continued to develop for the nineteen hundred years more that have elapsed since its destruction.

Whew, how historical we are today! All because the ladies of four thousand and five hundred or so years ago wore corsets and flounced dresses! Well, that is enough to make any Fashun Cricket muse, isn't it? And to make you want to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, for this week's leaflet which tells you how to make two of the loveliest nightgowns you ever saw—in a hurry. Because each one takes only half an hour to make, and each one is most flattering and graceful, and easy to make. Better hurry up or the ladies of Cnossos will get disgusted with us and come back to life and show us a thing or two!

* * * *

Not so bad, though, today's styles. Something from the belt up, I sketched for you today—a blouse in the right-hand corner which shows black and green incrustations on a beige-yellow blouse. And another interesting scarf effect at the left, which is attached right to the dress, then threaded through loops and allowed to float or wrap where it will. And an organdy bertha, shirred and ruffled right onto the blouse of a pale pink organdy summer dress—the flounce violet-blue, and the dress and sleeves and cuffs of pink. Nice?

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

"TAURUS."

IF April 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6:10 a. m. to 10 a. m. from 2:30 p. m. to 3:45 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:35 p. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on April 21 will tend to make you your second best self. Work will be done in a perfunctory fashion and time will be fritted away. A distinct shadow is thrown across the sunlight of your path; a thoughtless word or act will be the cause of making the world a tragedy to those who feel.

The child born in this April 21 will be dominated by its feelings and capable of an infinite variety of moods. It will be more interested in having its own way than in listening to reason. Its mind will be cluttered with dreams, few of which will ever take material shape.

Born on April 21 you have many of the solid and stolid characteristics of a Taurian-patience, conservatism and dependability. Yours will be no royal road to success, and your heights will only be reached by hammer and tong methods. The narrowness of the life of a specialist in some chosen line of endeavor would appeal to you, as you are not given to a multiple of interests.

A rural life would not be uncongenial to you, and in many respects you are a typical country man or woman with a real love of the things which Mother Nature has to offer. You should at least have a garden of your own or a week-end retreat away from bricks and mortar. Creature comforts mean a great deal to you, much more than style or show. You are extremely hospitable and are an easy and generous host or hostess.

You are a marrying person and one who is capable of giving your heart for better or worse, and mean it. To the right sort of a mate, you are equal to being a comrade, lover and helpmate, the greatest blessing of their lives. You could not live without love and friendship.

Raymond Collyer Knox, chaplain Columbia University.
Harold Lloyd, film artist.

Soft-Shell Crabs Welcomed Back to Menu

A WHOLE month has passed since spring made its official appearance, but one is obliged to recall the freezing "cold snap" which ushered it in, a cold snap which constituted just about all the winter we had. However, spring is here in full array and perhaps it was the cold snap which made the maple sirup crop of any avail at all, since cold winter is the best for abundant sap in maple trees. Just now the new season's sirup begins to drift in from all points in New England, and it's at its most delicious best. Let's take advantage of this fact and add waffles with sirup to our list of spring's good things to eat. We'll give you a waffle recipe today which will tempt the gods and melt in the mouths of mortals.

Waffles.

1 egg, beaten
1 cupful flour, sifted
3 teaspoonfuls baking powder
1-3 teaspoonful salt
¼ teaspoonful sugar
1 cupful milk, approximately
3 tablespoonfuls melted butter

Sift flour, sugar, salt and baking powder into a mixing bowl. Add the milk slowly, beating with a rotary egg-beater. Stir in the well-beaten egg, and then the melted butter.

The success of waffles depends largely upon the consistency of the batter. It must be a light batter when finished and one that will run easily and lightly into the waffle iron from the pitcher. Turn the batter in small quantity into the center of the hot waffle iron. Bake until a golden brown and easily freed from the iron.

And further spring is depicted in our menu—for soft-shell crabs are the order of the day. So now to be about the business of a column menu for our fish-dish dinner for tomorrow.

FRIDAY'S DINNER.

Onion and Potato Soup
Soft-Shell Crabs With Tartare Sauce
Baked Stuffed Tomatoes
Buttered Wax Beans
Lemon Meringue Cake
Coffee

Soft-Shell Crabs.

Have the crabs prepared for frying. Dip in beaten egg-and-cracker meal and fry in deep hot fat to a light brown. Drain on absorbent paper and serve with tartare sauce.

Tartare Sauce.

Add to one-half pint of mayonnaise made with mustard and tarragon vinegar, two gherkins, one tablespoonful capers, chopped fine; three olives, chopped; one tablespoonful parsley, chopped; and one-half teaspoonful grated onion or chopped chives.

Lemon Meringue Cake.

½ cupful sugar
½ cupful butter
4 egg yolks
½ lemon, juice and rind
6 tablespoonfuls milk
1 cupful flour
1 teaspoonful baking powder
Pinch of salt

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg yolks, well beaten. Cream with the butter mixture. Add lemon juice and rind. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add to first mixture alternately with milk. Batter will appear granular and very soft when finished. Pour into well-greased 8-inch layer-cake pans. Cover with following meringue:

Meringue.

1 cupful granulated sugar
4 egg whites, beaten stiff
½ cupful chopped walnuts

Fold sugar into the beaten egg whites lightly. Sprinkle well with the chopped English walnuts. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for 30 minutes. Turn one layer meringue side down. Cover with cream filling. Place other layer on this with meringue side up.

Cream Filling.

Mix together in double boiler one-half cupful sugar, three tablespoonfuls of flour and a few grains of salt. Add one slightly beaten egg. Pour over one cupful scalding milk gradually, beating constantly. Cook fifteen minutes, stirring continuously until thickened. Cool and flavor with one tablespoonful lemon juice. Spread on cake.

MAKING THE MOST OF THE CARDS.

THERE is, perhaps, one justification for overbidding and for some particularly atrocious overbidding, and that is that these overbids occasionally give opportunity for a brilliant fulfillment of the unsound predictions made as to the trick-taking ability of the cards during the mental play, which is known as contracting.

Mr. William Talley Elliott, a lawyer of Columbia, S. C., sent me, the other day, the following interesting hand:

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ 4 2 ♡ Q 4 3 ◇ A Q J 10 8 7 ♣ K 6
♠ 9 ♡ A K 8 7 2 ◇ 4 ♣ Q 10 8 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ K J 7 5 3 ♡ J 10 9 ◇ K 9 6 5 ♣ 7
	♠ A Q 10 8 6 ♡ 6 5 ◇ 3 2 ♣ A J 9 5

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♡	3◇	Pass
3♠(1)	Pass	4♠(2)	Dbl.(3)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—An unsound Rebid. The spade suit is not strong enough to justify this.

2—South has rebid his spades and North has a hand very strong in playing-tricks. While the trump strength is still inadequate, North feels that his hand requires some further action and elects to play for game, rather than rebid his diamonds, as five-odd appears to be beyond the trick-taking power of the combined hands, judging by the bidding.

3—A sound Penalty Double.

West opened the heart King and, although he saw the Queen on the board, East's play of the nine encouraged him to continue the suit. When East played the Ten, it was obvious that he held a third heart, but West continued the suit anyway and South thus got a valuable discard of a losing diamond. The two of spades was led from the Dummy and the Ten finessed, West's singleton nine dropping. South now led his remaining diamond and went up with the Ace and returned the Queen. East refused to cover and South discarded a small club. The Knave of diamonds was next led and East realized that he was probably hopelessly trapped. He played the King, which South trumped with the six. Mr. Elliott now reentered the Dummy by leading a club to the King and laid down a Ten of diamonds, upon which he discarded the Knave of clubs.

East now held the K J 7 5 of spades and South the A Q 8 of spades and the Ace of clubs. The eight of diamonds was led from Dummy. East was forced to trump with the five, and South overtrumped with the eight spot. South now led the Ace of clubs, which East trumped with the seven, and was then compelled to concede the last 2 tricks.

South had brilliantly played a hand which had been greatly overbid. The Double, however, was sound, and the contract should have been defeated if West had made the most of his defensive opportunities. After the King of hearts was led to the first trick, West should have immediately shifted to the diamond suit. If this play was made, South could not secure a discard of a diamond upon a heart and must lose a trick in that suit. He would also lose one greatly needed entry to the Dummy which West presented him, free of charge, by leading the third round of hearts.

TODAY'S POINTER.

In order to be effective, defense against an opposing contract must be flexible. The fall of each card should be considered and every advantage taken of the defensive possibilities of the hand.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A Q J 7 6 5 ♡ K Q 3 2 ◇ J 10 4 ♣ —
	N W E S
	♠ 10 ♡ A 8 ◇ K Q 9 3 2 ♣ A K 5 4 3

Against the contract of six diamonds, West opened the Ace of diamonds. Study the hand, decide how you, holding the South hand, would plan the play, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

PLEASE tell me how to get rid of crab grass.

WILLIAM R. M. D.

Constant mowing in the early part of the season will prevent seeding. In the early fall dig up the roots and reseed the vacant areas. If the grass is kept cut close, the seed is prevented from forming and it prevents a spread of the pest.

Please tell me how to prune my roses. MRS. JEAN A. G.

Pruning should be done in the early spring before growth starts. Hybrid-tea varieties should be pruned severely. Cut the strong shoots back to six to ten inches from the ground, while all thin and weak wood should be removed entirely. Tea roses do not require such severe treatment. Merely trim out all thin wood and cut the stronger shoots back to a prominent eye. Hybrid-perpetual varieties should have all weak growth removed, and if quality of bloom is desired, cut back the strong canes to within eight or ten inches of the ground, but if quantity is desired, leave the canes from two to three feet in length according to their strength.

Please tell me what to do to make a Jerusalem cherry tree, which is 18 inches high, produce some flowers. I water it only when it is dry. MRS. R. E. W.

Water the plant every day and try an application of liquid manure or other plant food.

I have two century plants. Please tell me if they are hardy. F. D.

They are hardy in New Mexico or Arizona, but not in your locality. They are natives of the desert.

Will water running through a rusty pipe ruin grass or flowers? I am willing to have my pipes changed if you think they are injuring my plants. M. J. S.

They will not in the remotest way injure your plants or your garden.

Can I be sure of success if I attempt to transplant barberry bushes at this time? I am about to move and want to take my bushes with me. Also, can you transplant sprouted bulbs? MRS. J. O. B.

If you lift the bushes with a large ball of soil about their roots, you may be able successfully to transplant them. I would, however, suggest that before you attempt to lift them you consult a landscape gardener, asking him to lock over your bushes, as so much depends on their development. You may pot up your bulbs. If you lift them carefully, they will likely open their buds. Keep them well watered after potting and do not put the pots in the sun for at least a couple of days.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed stamped envelope is supplied.

FRANCES McDONALD

If Love Were Like This?

DEAR FRANCES M'DONALD—You have helped so many young people, perhaps you can help me.

I have been going with a young man (21 years old) for almost two years. He is a fine chap; neither drinks nor smokes (neither do I) and has a good education, but here is the biggest problem in my life:

When I first met him he didn't know how to dance; so I taught him. I struggled with him during one of our hottest summers, but I didn't love him. The following winter we went every week to some dance, and quite naturally he learned to dance very well.

Then the following winter he began going stag to all the dances. One evening he told me he wouldn't dance with me because I was too tall for him. (I am 5 feet 5 inches; he is 5 feet 9 inches.) I told him it took him a darn long time to find it out, but he said it was the truth. I know I am tall for a girl, but I am considered a very good dancer. He claims he loves me, and me only. I believe him in one respect, for I know that girls call him up and invite him to dances, parties, &c., but he refuses. I know for a fact that he does not go with any other girl. Do you think he really loves me, if he doesn't like to dance with me? Would you tell him never to come to see you again? I am considered a pretty girl, and I dress with good taste. I can get the boys without much effort, but I really enjoy just his company. He has hurt my feelings and my pride. Perhaps I wouldn't have cared if I hadn't taught him how to dance, but I really can't relish the idea of his going to all the dances stag, and I go to dances with other fellows, and he never has the politeness even to dance with me once. Please don't think he hasn't manners, because we both come from fine families.

Hoping you can help me decide this question, I am PUZZLED.

Oh, Child, if Love were like that! If such a casual thing were all that woman could hope for in man what a sorry world this would be. No, youngster, the young man does not love you while you just about despise him. If you want to know about Love, about the best place to study it is in a hospital. There at visiting hours one sees tired men trying to look brave and confident, men who have laid aside reserve and let their souls look straight out of tortured eyes. We were present once when a blood transfusion had failed to save a young mother's life. The look in the eyes of that girl's husband was a whole education on the subject of love. She was not beautiful, but to that man she was all of life. He loved.

Have you ever thought of all that Life can ask Love to bear? Think of all the things that can come into people's lives. And that they must bear together somehow. Illnesses that linger for years, accidents that disfigure or disable. A darling woman that we know has supported in a sanatorium for years the husband she married in a blaze of glory and who in a few months suffered a breakdown that changed him from a brilliant writer to a helpless child. That is Love.

Dance, my dear. Dance and be gay, for Love has not yet found you out. When it does you will know. And heaven forbid it be a simpering ballroom imbecile that arrests your fancy. Men are of all kinds, and most of them advertise. Few of us are married under false pretenses. Most of us invite our own fate. Read all the signs. Then use your head.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THAT Canada is well abreast of the United States musically was demonstrated in the program broadcast by Capt. Taylor Branson and the Marine Band in honor of three Canadian bandmasters visiting in Washington. They were Capt. Charles O'Neill, of the Royal Twenty-second Regiment Band, at the Citadel, Quebec; Lieut. J. J. Gagnier, of His Majesty's Grenadier Guards Band, Montreal, and Capt. R. B. Hayward, of the Toronto Concert Band.

The entire program was made up of their own compositions. Three of the selections—"Overture in F Minor," by Capt. O'Neill; "The Wind in the Leafless Maple," by Lieut. Gagnier, and "Sabbath Evening in Camp," by Capt. Hayward—were broadcast for the first time over an American network, which on this occasion extended to Canadian cities.

Altogether it was one of the most brilliant radio performances of the season, and unique in that each of the bandmasters conducted the Marine Band playing his own selections, except Capt. Hayward, who was en route to Canada.

THE latest complaint to be received is the following letter signed by R. S. Eliot, of Los Angeles:

"I am off radio. The end came the other night, when, dog-tired from the daily grind, I twisted the dials and drew the advertising patter of a firm of cheerio undertakers!

"But, truth to tell, I was already fed up with the inanities of broadcasting and ready to quit. I do not feel that, for the sake of mangled fragments of opera, an occasional symphony or a public address, which I can read a few hours later over my morning coffee, I can longer stomach the constant society of high-pressure salesmen. I believe, as did my English forefathers, that a man's house is his castle, and I decline to allow cheeky fellows, on whom I would shut my doors, to steal into my home by way of a box of vacuum tubes.

"Henceforth, the merchants who get my patronage will be those who use other channels than the ether to advertise their wares. I claim the privilege of reading or ignoring advertising matter as I see fit. I intend, by my own fireside, at least, to choose my company. No agents or peddlers need apply.

"My house shall no longer be a market place. I propose to have peace. I have sold my radio."

REPORTS from the outside are that the American Bandmasters' Concert, a portion of which was broadcast from Constitution Hall Sunday night, did not get out over the air well.

This is all the more puzzling because of the splendid acoustics of Constitution Hall. We have sat in different parts of the hall and have yet to find a poor seat from which to listen to music.

The 300th Cities Service concert will be observed tomorrow night with an all-request program featuring the most popular selections heard on the programs during the six and a half years the series has been on the air. Among the numbers selected are "Indian Love Call," "L'Amour, Toujours, L'Amour," "Goodnight, Sweetheart," "Grandfather's Clock," "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" and "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Dr. Wilhelm Miklas, president of Austria, and the Vienna Symphony Orchestra, with Esther Johnson as soloist will be heard this afternoon in a special international broadcast from Vienna (WMAL, 1:30 p. m.).

When Alice Joy, Streator, Ill., girl pays tribute to Honey Boy Evans, famous minstrel from her home town, tomorrow night, she will recall three of the numbers he sang, including "I'll Be True to My Honey Boy," "In the Good Old Summertime" and "The Sweetest Girl in Sunny Tennessee" (WRC, 7:30 o'clock).

A PROGRAM of Italian folk songs and favorite operatic arias will be presented by Mario Chamlee, American lyric tenor, who will appear as guest artist tomorrow night (WRC, 9:30 o'clock).

Speeches to be given at a luncheon of the Ligue Internationale in honor of Clyde Pangborn, Pacific flier, will be broadcast through WMAL at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. At that time the award of the Ligue trophy for outstanding achievement in aviation in 1931 will be conferred upon Pangborn for his nonstop Pacific flight.

SOME of the suggestions for a new word to replace the conventional title "announcer" included "Airmaster," "Salutator," "Marshal," "Monitor" and "Mikemaster."

The guest speaker on the Lucky Strike Dance Hour tonight will be Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland (WRC, 10 o'clock). Dance music will be furnished by Don Bestor and his orchestra, from Cleveland, and Jack Denny and his orchestra, from New York.

A series of guest appearances with Rudy Vallee's Orchestra will be begun tonight by Irene Bordoni.

MUSICAL numbers to be heard during the Trumpeters' program include "Goodbye, Little Captain of My Heart," from "Das Lied Ist Aus;" "You Can Make My Life a Bed of Roses," "Close Your Eyes," "For Me and My Gal," "The Queen Was in the Parlor" and "Down the Old Back Road."

RECORDING IS MADE BY "DOT AND DASH"

Radio Team Enters Contest of Post; Only Three Days Left in Competition.

The radio team of Dot and Dash, otherwise Dorothy and C. Mason Bloodgood, who came from Iowa to join their talents to the galaxy of genius assembled in the Capital, have added to their experience the fun of making a record in The Washington Post RCA-Victor Recording contest. They visited the studios of Homer L. Kitt Co., 1330 G street northwest, and sang and played Miss Bloodgood's original composition, "When the River Turns to Silver in the Sunset."

Miss Bloodgood employs her leisure in the production of melodies. She was director of the Music Makers Orchestra, Des Moines, before removing to Washington, and has written the words and music of 15 songs.

She composed the theme piece for "Let's Pretend," the official song of the Gamma Sigma Phi Sorority, and the signature song which took first prize in the Paramount Publix Theater radio hour contest. She also has composed a George Washington Bicentennial song. Miss Bloodgood's brother is the team pianist.

Three More Days in Test.

With only three days more in which to make records without cost or obligation, and also to be eligible to share in the distribution of $700 in merchandise, this contest has indicated almost overwhelming approval. The attendants at each recording station, however, are preparing for an even greater rush during the final days and they are confident that they can serve every entrant with little delay.

Recording stations are open throughout regular store hours, but experience indicates that during the morning hours, contestants will encounter the least delay in making their recordings.

Capital Man Is Injured In Fighting Garage Fire

A fire which broke out in an automobile in the garage of the Elite Laundry at 1314 W street northwest was unsuccessfully fought by Robert Scrivener, 34 years old, of 1828 Lincoln road northeast. The man was burned about the face and hands.

Firemen responded to an alarm and put out the blaze with slight damage. Mr. Scrivener was treated by an insurance clinic and allowed to return to his home.

Children's Bureau Reports Fund Lack

Gain in Relief Expenses Not Equal to Increase in Demands.

Shortage of funds in some cities and the failure of winter relief funds to become fully effective in others are the reasons given by the United States Children's Bureau for the small increase of January expenditures over those of December, 1931, for social relief in 124 cities.

The agencies reporting to the bureau distributed in January $22,300,000 in outright and wage relief, as compared with $21,800,000 in December. Outright relief alone declined 3 per cent, but wage relief increased 11 per cent. While the amount of outright relief declined 3 per cent in January, the number of families aided increased 7 per cent.

In January, 1932, reports on meals served and lodging provided by agencies caring for homeless and transients were received from 169 agencies in 68 cities by the bureau. The number of meals served was 1,457,990, and the number of night's lodgings 467,883, an increase of 72 per cent in meals and 84 per cent in lodgings over the same month in 1931.

Cherokees Keep Primitive Practices of Tribal Magic

Dr. Frans Olbrechts, Smithsonian Scientist, Takes Up Unfinished Study of Childhood Conditions in Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina.

A study of infancy and early childhood in the Cherokee Indian settlements scattered through the Great Smoky mountains of western North Carolina, has been reported by Dr. Frans M. Olbrechts, notel Belgian ethnologist, who conducted the investigation for the Smithsonian Institution.

Dr. Olbrechts, who took up an unfinished study by the late James Mooney of the Smithsonian staff, found primitive medicine superstition and magic still little changed in these mountain retreats. Witches are respected and dreaded. A "witch" is not born with supernatural powers but must be endowed with these by the proper procedures immediately after birth. Twins offer favorable material," he reports.

"If twins are born and their parents intend to make witches out of them," Dr. Olbrechts reports "no mother's milk is given them for 24 days. They are fed with the liquid portion of corn hominy, which must be given them only during the night. They must be kept rigidly secluded from all visitors during the same 24-day period. From then on a decoction of the bark of smooth sumac is drunk by the mother to make her milk flow abundantly and she nurses the children.

"The most astounding assertions are made as to the powers of these twin witches. They do not stop at flying through the air or diving underground, they can even walk on the sun rays. They can take on all human and animal shapes conceivable. Even when they are only a month old whatever they think happens. If they are lying on the ground in their swaddlings, crying for hunger and their mother should happen to be eating and wishes to finish her meal before attending to them, her food will become raw again, as well as the food of all those who happen to be eating with her. If their mother is cooking a meal while they cry for her, and she does not heed them, the food she is preparing will never get done."

Dr. Olbrechts made a special study of the child rearing and educational procedures of the Cherokee. Shortly after the child is born, he reports, it is carried about sitting astride of its mother's back. "When little boys are 4 or 5 years old they start, under the supervision of their fathers or elder brothers, to make bows and arrows, and in a few weeks become remarkable marksmen. Little girls, at just as tender an age, assist their mothers and elder sisters with the household tasks," he said.

Baronet, Missing 18 Years, Bobs Up

Britisher, 69, Appears at Registry Office Asking Marriage License.

London, April 20 (A.P.).—Sir Francis Laurence John Barrow, Britain's "missing baronet" who hadn't been heard from by friends or relatives for eighteen years, bobbed up today and averred he never had been missing. He reappeared at the registry office to arrange the necessary papers for his impending marriage to Edith Townsend, 52, of London. The baronet is 69.

Although he denied he ever had been missing, the British Radio System broadcast an appeal that he come home in January last year, when his eldest son and heir to his title was critically ill.

"I have been living in England all the time," said the baronet. "I renounced my title twenty years ago."

COURT RULING ENDS CHICAGO TAX STRIKE

Rolls Valid, High Bench Holds; City Now Can Collect Cash Due.

Chicago, April 20 (A.P.).—A strike of taxpayers in Chicago was ended today by a ruling of the State Supreme Court. Collection of back taxes and restoration of Chicago's financial credit were made possible by a court decision which held valid the assessment rolls of 1928 and 1929 as well as of 1930 by reversing a decision of Judge Edmund K. Jarecki.

He had held previously that the levies were illegal because they did not tax personal property enough. The high court decision meant the county could proceed with the collection of overdue taxes—more than $100,000,000 still unpaid, more than $72,000,000 tied up by court action and in addition to 1930 taxes only partly paid.

The immediate result was the greatest optimism in the city and county buildings that had been seen in several years. Real estate associations that had fought to have the rolls invalidated threatened to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court.

"The decision places the city and county on the way to a normal condition," said Mayor Anton J. Cermak. "Now the balance of the 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes are payable. This will place Chicago in a position to pay its obligations on time."

County Tax Attorney Hayden N. Bell said the court's action would end 99½ per cent of the present "tax strike" litigation.

The case centered on the contention of real estate owners that personal property was not being assessed according to Illinois law, which says all property must be taxed alike. The county contended the only relief of a taxpayer from the omission or undervaluation of other property was by action before the assessing bodies.

The Supreme Court's decision today strengthened the local market for the general bonds of the city and county.

Wedding Shunned, Girl Denies She Is "Missing"

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—Vera Lucinda Privett, 19, who failed to show up in London to prepare to become a bride in a brilliant society wedding, indignantly denied today that she is "missing." The man who was to have been the bridegroom, Lieut. Basil J. Karslake, sent a cablegram from London to New York police to locate her. He said she had informed him she would be in London by Easter and that he had not heard from her for weeks.

"I don't see why they call me missing," pretty Miss Privett said. "I'm here with my family. Basil and I were engaged—but it was broken off."

Oil Promoter Is Given Four Years in Perjury

Los Angeles, April 20 (A.P.).—A. F. Luse, Fort Worth, Tex., oil promoter, was sentenced today to four years in a Federal prison and fined $1,000 for perjury.

Federal Judge John C. Knox, of New York, sitting here temporarily, pronounced the sentence. The charge grew out of testimony by Luse at his trial in 1930 on charges of mail fraud that he was in Los Angeles at a time when other witnesses testified, he was in Texas. The fraud trial ended in a disagreement of the jury.

Attempt to Bribe Mayor Admitted.

Portland, Oreg., April 20 (A.P.).—Jack J. Mazurosky, former president of the Central Municipal Market Co., today pleaded guilty to offering Mayor George L. Baker a $10,000 bribe to influence the mayor's vote on a public market site. Mazurosky will be sentenced May 2.

OUTLINE FOR UNIFIED REPAIRS DRIVE MADE

U. S. Chamber Leads Move to Stimulate Business During Present Low Prices.

Plans to unite property owners, business organizations and civic interests of Washington in a program to stimulate business and benefit home owners are being completed under the auspices of the civic development department of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The cooperation of agencies of the Federal Government with local groups is planned in an endeavor to promote home repairs and improvement and property beautification while building materials are low priced. The program will parallel and be carried on with the work of the civic work creation committee.

Details of the program now being formulated were yesterday revealed by H. G. Outwater, of the civic development department of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Its operation will begin the first week in May and will be carried on for five weeks. The campaign slogan will be, "Each dollar invested in your home now will save $10 later."

The appeal to the home owner in Washington will be based on financial advantages of action while prices are at their present low level. Employment and business will benefit by the operation of the program, but as the advantage to the home owner is evident there will be no charitable appeal connected with the program.

All Washington newspapers have pledged their support, and civic and business organizations are being organized in the drive to help the home owner and stimulate business.

Advertising managers of the newspapers attended a recent conference on publicizing the drive. Those attending were Ernest Johnston, of The Post; Troland Cleare, of the Times; Col. Leroy Herron, of the Star; Charles Nicholson, of the News, and Norman Bull, of the Herald.

Schwab Says Rich Class In U. S. Has Vanished

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—Charles M. Schwab, steel master, gazes around the economic scene and finds the rich have vanished.

"There are no rich in America today," he said to the Pennsylvania Society yesterday. "They don't know where they stand. The highest type of riches as personified in this country today has practically vanished and men are afraid to look at their ledgers to see if they are worth anything or not."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IF THERE is a contest being carried on anywhere for the best single word reasonably descriptive of Fannie Hurst, author, playwright and short-story writer, whose first original work for the screen, "The Symphony of Six Million," is to open the new policy at RKO-Keith's this Saturday, I hereby submit "exotic" as my guess.

After an only too brief meeting with her in Hardie Meakin's office Tuesday midnight, prior to the private preview of the picture, it seems to me that Miss Hurst might almost better have been born in Ekatarinoslav, Leningrad or Moscow—like so many of the people of whom she writes—than in Hamilton, Ohio, where I am led to believe she really saw the Midwest light of day.

The impression which Miss Hurst conveys is purely cerebral and not especially feminine. You wouldn't know if she had legs, thighs, hips or torso, but you would be sure that she had intellect and a head that is molded in heroic lines. "Delicacy" is not the word to describe the Hurst head. "Power"—yes.

If you happen to see a group picture—and I have no way of knowing that you will—in which Floyd Gibbons, just back from "Hello Everybodying" in the world to death, after the manner of the momentarily eclipsed Sam Rothafel, "Roxie," from the seat of the Sino-Japanese War, is gazing fixedly at Miss Hurst, you will observe that hers is the stronger, more rugged and more memorable face of the two.

She conveys a deal of this in her conversation. Her ideas are purposely formulated and bulwarked by both thought and logic. There is no doubt of what she thinks and no ambiguity in what she says. It is an attribute that makes her as fascinating as she has always been denominated by "Odd" McIntyre and those other scrivening clowns who so often have dripped ink upon her from the intimacy of their contacts in New York.

But the exotic business, I should say, Miss Hurst deliberately aids and abets. One might almost say plots. In fact, one will say plots.

Her costumes are severe creations in black and white that possess the smartness, the individuality and the perfection of propriety that make simplicity an art.

Her strongly chiseled features go unrouged, save for the lips, and a naturally deep brunette complexion thus arranges its contrasts with the livid white of an alabaster skin.

Miss Hurst was just beginning an interesting outline of how she plots and writes her stories, novels and plays when in walked Congressman Something-or-other, from Nowhere-in-particular, as nearly as I was able to judge in so casual a meeting, and that was that!

That flight with Victor McLaglen in the Goodyear Company's blimp, Puritan, was wholly worth the wear and tear on the nervous system, if for no other reason, because when the flight was over, George Barrows met us with no less radiant a creature on his arm than Miss Sibley, the bright, particular luminary of the current stage bill at the Palace.

Miss Sibley had graciously broadcast for The Post the evening before and after a considerable effort to make her out a Hoosier, just for the sake of the old home State and "Bob" Heinl, let it become known that, as a matter of fact, she is the daughter and granddaughter of clergymen, and was born in China and lived there the first ten years of her life while her father was serving as an American missionary to the Celestials.

Among other visitors to the Capital this week, since we seem to be on the subject, was Dick Leibert, one of the most popular and most successful motion picture theater organists ever to occupy a console locally.

Dick was on a brief visit, with his wife and daughter, to the home of his parents out Fourteenth street way, and called up, I think, to ask the time, or something.

At any rate, we didn't gab over the phone for more than an hour!

Speaking of these here now National Theater Players—as everybody is—has it occurred to you how much Donald Woods, the new leading man, resembles Bert Lytell, who created the role in "A Church Mouse," in which Mr. Woods is making so many friends this week?

And that Ona Munson, in addition to being one of the loveliest, is also one of the best-dressed ingenues the National Theater Players ever have boasted?

And it seems to me that no better selection of an opening play could have been made than "A Church Mouse."

The National Theater Players next week, by the way, will offer the late Edgar Wallace's "On the Spot" as their bill. In this exciting commentary on present-day conditions in America more former favorites of the Nat. Players will make their bows.

At the Belasco, beginning next Monday night, a week of Gilbert and Sullivan repertoire will be presented under the aegis of Milton Aborn, a veteran in the field of Savoyard opera, who has assembled a notable group of players for the interpretation of his favorite works.

While down at the Gayety, opening with the Sunday matinee, the "Raining Daisies" will mean whatever you think they do, with Bee Weller the featured beauty.

Few women identified with the theater have been active in so many branches of it and have made such a valuable contribution to it as Clare Tree Major has made. As actress, author and playwright, she has made perhaps her greatest contribution to the National Theater as founder and director of the Children's Theater in New York. This group of adults, professional actors, will appear at the National Theater on Saturday morning at 10:30, in Mrs. Major's dramatization of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland."

Clare Tree Major comes of a family whose name has long been one of the most distinguished on the English stage. She attained an enviable reputation for herself on the English stage before coming to America. She was for two years with the Washington Square Players, now the Theater Guild of the Comedy Theater in New York. She then assumed management of the Princess Theater, where she became impressed with the need of suitable plays for children and founded the Children's Theater, which has made her name familiar to thousands of children in New York and throughout the country.

Mrs. Major has written five books which met with wide popularity. The most recent among them—"Playing Theater"—a book of plays for children, was published by the Oxford Press and has received gratifying notice all over the country.

In the cinema houses the attractions for the new week—which, incidentally, witnesses the elimination of vaudeville as a part of the house policy at RKO-Keith's—will be as follows: RKO-Keith's, Ricardo Cortez and Irene Dunne in "The Symphony of Six Million;" Rialto, Natalie Moorhead and H. B. Warner in "The Menace," and Victor McLaglen and Charles Judels headlining the stage show; Palace, Robert Montgomery in "But the Flesh Is Weak," and Arthur Tracy, "The Street Singer," in person; Earle, Kay Francis, Una Merkel and David Manners in "Man Wanted," and the Norman Thomas Quintette headlining the vaudeville; Fox, Spencer Tracy, Doris Kenyon and Tommy Conlon in "Young America," and Fanchon & Marco's "Greetings" Idea; Metropolitan, George Sidney and Aline MacMahon in "The Heart of New York;" Columbia, Lily Damita, Charles Ruggles and Roland Young in "This Is the Night."

ARTS CLUB PLAYERS ENACT VARIED ROLES

Bits of Five Shakespearean Dramas Are Given in Clever Settings.

Thespians of the Arts Club thumbed through the pages of Shakespeare last night and presented fragments of five dramas.

King Henry the Fifth's impetuous wooing of Katharine of France was the opening bit. The king was Maurice Jarvis; Katharine, Mme. Andre Beneteau, and Alice, Mme. Felian Garzia. The scene was directed by J. Milnor Dorey.

In the "damned spot" scene from Macbeth, Anne Ives took the part of Lady Macbeth, while Murray Sheehan was the doctor and Elizabeth Sypher, the lady-in-waiting. This bit was directed by Mr. Sheehan.

Fair Jessica and Lorenzo, in the moonlight scene from the "Merchant of Venice," were acted by James Otis Porter and Lulu G. Adams.

A shepherd's wooing in the Forest of Arden, from "As Lou Like It," directed by Miss Sybil Baker, was portrayed by Ruth Harsha McKenzie, Jeanette Seiler, Helen Burton and Harold Allen Long.

The final presentation was from "King Henry VIII," act 3, scene 1, where Queen Katharine (Adelaide Borah) receives the two cardinals, Wolsey and Campeius, played by Malcolm Woods and Arthur White. Mrs. Robert LeFevre is a gentlewoman and and Andrew Dent, the page.

Clever settings, using portable screens in the German manner, were executed by Hugo Inden.

N. Y. Netman Surprises Van Ryn

McCauliff Wins Over No. 4 U. S. Star, 6-2, 6-4, 9-7.

Allison Reaches Semi-finals in Mason-Dixon Tourney.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 20 (A.P.).—Another sensational upset was written into the young outdoor tennis season today when Eugene McCauliff, of Yonkers, N. Y., defeated the veteran John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, Davis Cup star, in straight sets in the quarter-finals of the annual Mason and Dixon tennis tournament. The scores were 6—2, 6—4, 9—7.

McCauliff, a comparatively obscure player, outplayed Van Ryn, the country's fourth-ranking star, almost from start to finish. Playing a smashing net game, the young New Yorker took the first two sets about as he pleased and then made a rousing comeback to win the third after Van Ryn had led 5—2 in games.

Meets Vines-Mangin Winner.

By virtue of his surprising triumph, McCauliff will meet the winner of tomorrow's quarter-final tilt between Ellsworth Vines, jr., national champion, and Gregory Mangin, indoor titleholder, in the semifinals on Friday.

In today's other quarter-final, Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., continued his great play to crush J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., 6—2, 6—1, 6—3. The Texan, who in recent weeks has displayed the finest form of his career, will meet the winner of tomorrow's match between Frank Shields and Marcel Rainville, of Canada, in the semifinals.

Virginia Hilleary, of Philadelphia, reached the finals of women's singles by defeating Virginia Rice, of Longwood, Mass., 7—5, 4—6, 6—4.

McCauliff Wins In Doubles.

In the men's doubles quarter-final Marcel Rainville, Montreal, and Eugene McCauliff, Yonkers, N. Y., defeated Dr. P. B. Hawk, New York, and Clarence C. Chaffee, Providence, R. I., 6—0, 6—4; Ellsworth Vines, jr., Pasadena, Calif., and Frank X. Shields, New York, defeated F. C. Baggs, New York, and G. Carlton Shafer, Philadelphia, 6—2, 6—2.

In the women's doubles semifinal, Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, and Miss Florence LeBoutillier, Westbury Long Island, defeated Mrs. Frank X. Shields, New York, and Miss Eleanor Dixon, Philadelphia, 6—0, 6—2.

30,000 See Cubs Lose Home Opener to Reds

Chicago, April 20 (A.P.).—The new streamline speed model Chicago Cubs failed to even get into gear today as the Cincinnati Reds turned on some of their newly acquired power for a 7-to-2 victory in the opening game of the National League campaign here.

Weak at bat and erratic afield, the Cubs never were in the battle after the third inning when the Reds hammered Pat Malone for five runs and drove him to cover. While the Reds were making merry with four Chicago pitchers, Red Lucas, ace of the Cincinnati staff, held his opposition to five hits, two of them by Stanley Hack, the expensive new Cub third baseman.

Thirty thousand fans attended.

SPORT STARS REWARDED BY G. U.

Athletics Defended by Rev. Nevils Before 700 at Dinner.

ANY rumors that may be afloat that the directors of Georgetown University are not sympatheic with athletics were exploded last night by the Rev. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of the university, who addressed 700 guests at the annual varsity G dinner in the Willard Hotel, held in honor of Georgetown athletes.

The Rev. Nevils emphatically stated that the present administration does feel warmly toward athletics, and added an expression of gratitude for the loyalty and cooperation given the directors by the heads of the athletic department.

During the past year Georgetown apparently has limited its competitive sport program, having scheduled fewer baseball games and track meets than usual and arranging a relatively modest football program.

Without reference to that matter, the Rev. Nevils said he wished it understood that Georgetown, as part of a vast educational system, is subject to and loyal to the policies and decisions of the system, the same as a member of a team would be to his coach.

Floyd Gibbons Speaks.

Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent and radio announcer, a Washingtonian and a student at Georgetown in 1905, delivered an extemporaneous talk on conditions he found in China during the late Sino-Japanese conflict. Embellished with touches of his characteristic humor his "bit" carried off the night's honors with respect to applause.

Other principal speakers were Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York; John B. "Jock" Sutherland, football coach of Pittsburgh University, and Tommy Mills, gridiron chieftain at Georgetown, all of whom cited the value of football as a factor in the development of good citizens.

Remarks also were made by G. Harris "Doc" White and Johnny Evers, former stars of major league baseball, while Henry I. Quinn, local attorney, served as toastmaster. Evers' son, captain of the 1932 Georgetown baseball team, was among those presented the varsity letter.

"Doc" White made the awards of the "G" certificates to the following:

Grove Beaten In Yankee Opener

Record Paid Attendance of 55,452 Sees Contest.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, April 20 (A.P.).—Back at the old home stand for the first time this spring, Babe Ruth this afternoon clouted the great Grove for his fourth home run of the campaign and otherwise contributed to the Yankees' defeat of the Athletics. The score was 8 to 3 and the crowd of 60,000 was the greatest that has witnessed a baseball game this season.

The number of cash customers, 55,452, was the biggest ever registered at the Yankee Stadium on an opening day. Mayor Walker was on hand for the Yankee homecoming.

In handing the Mackmen their third successive defeat of the week, the Yankees continued their rough treatment of the A's pitching aces. They combed Lefty Grove for six hits and four runs in six innings, then doubled their tally off George Earnshaw in two frames. Grove was charged with his first defeat of the season.

Lary Hits Homer, Scores Four Runs.

Lyn Lary set the pace for the Yankees by hitting one of Grove's fire balls into the right-field bleachers in the first inning and crossing the plate four times altogether. He came home again in the third on Ruth's towering homer. Subsequently the Yankee shortstop scored on a passed ball in the fifth and a wild pitch by Earnshaw in the seventh.

Ruth's booming single against the right-field bleachers featured a seventh-inning rally that netted the Yankees three runs and clinched the game. The Babe was playing for the first time since a recent attack of grip. To the general lapse of the A's defense in this frame, Earnshaw contributed two walks and a wild pitch.

Meanwhile, Lefty Gomez registered his second conquest of the league champions with a flashy exhibition, although he weakened a bit in the last three frames. The slim Spanish southpaw yielded nine hits, but struck out nine Mackmen, including all the big hitters. He was tapped for a homer by Cochrane in the fourth, but pulled himself out of a big hole in the seventh, after filling the bases, and in the ninth fanned Cochrane for the final out, with two on.

CANADA NET PLAYERS NAMED

Rainville Tops Group to Meet U. S. in First Round.

THE Canadian Davis Cup team which will combat the United States in the first round of the American Zone at the Chevy Chase Club Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week was selected yesterday and given instructions to assemble at the Capital.

The Canadian players will be Marcel Rainville, Montreal's Canadian singles champion; Gilbert Nunns, Toronto, former junior champion of Canada and a member of the 1931 Davis Cup team; Dr. Jack Wright, Vancouver, Canada's leading player until the Rainville dynasty, and Walter Martin, of Regina, a promising young player.

Nunns and Martin will leave Toronto today for Washington and Dr Wright is already on his way. Rainville is competing in the Mason and Dixon championship at White Sulphur Springs this week and may not arrive until Sunday or Monday.

Canada Sends Greatest Players.

The combination of Rainville, Nunns, Wright and Martin makes up the greatest group of netmen ever produced in Canada. Three of the group have years of tennis improvement ahead of them, while Wright has faded little from his peak, at which he was rated one of the best in the world.

There seems little doubt that America will receive more severe Davis Cup competition at Chevy Chase this year at the hands of Canada than it has received since Japan was beaten here in 1929. In Rainville Canada boasts of a player whose steadiness and coolness in the face of the most riddling tennis fire is a constant threat to outstanding players. Rainville startled the net world last year by trimming Sidney Wood in the first round of Davis Cup play. He is small, sturdily built and possesses beautiful ground shots.

The American team, at present, is made up of Ellsworth Vines, national champion; Wilmer Allison, twice conqueror of Vines recently; Frank Shields and John Van Ryn.

Entries close tomorrow afternoon at the Boys' Club. The boys will weigh in Saturday afternoon at the scene of the fights. A 2-pound weight variation is allowable.

The bouts will be under the supervision of the District A. A. U.

22,995 See Tigers Defeat Cleveland

Uhle Yields Five Hits in Tribe Opener and Detroit Wins, 2 to 1.

Cleveland, April 20 (A.P.).—Before an opening day crowd of 22,995, that filled League Park to overflowing, George Uhle let down his former Cleveland mates with but five hits and gave the Detroit Tigers a 2-to-1 victory. Clint Brown pitched good enough ball to win under ordinary circumstances, but an air-tight Detroit defense and inability of the Indians to hit when hits were needed cost him the game.

Three of Cleveland's five hits came in the second inning when Brown himself drove Vosmik across with a single. Kamm was nipped at the plate trying to stretch the hit for two scores. Kamm's error in the fifth, when he let Hayworth's ground-er escape, paved the way for the tying run by Walker. A pair of doubles by Johnson and Stone in the eighth gave the Tigers the game.

Tech High Will Send Team to Penn Relays

Tech High will enter its relay team in the Penn Relays next Friday and Saturday, Hap Hardell, coach of the school's trackmen, announced yesterday. The Tech team will run without the services of Reichman, Moorhead and Achstetter, who have graduated.

The new Tech relay combination has not been chosen, but John Wohlfarth, noted Tech football end, is expected to be on it.

Capital City's Insects To Meet Next Week

The meeting of representatives of all insect teams desiring to enter the Capital City League, sponsored by The Post, scheduled to be held last night, was postponed until next week because of the inability of the majority of the pilots to attend. The date of next week's confab will be announced Sunday.

A taxicab war, very different from the one witnessed by Washington during the last year, threatens to break out in the unlimited division of the league. City Cab and Diamond Cab have the distinction of being the first two teams to submit their entries to the league secretary, and each is confident of making a better showing than its rival.

HAPPY SCOT CAPTURES HAVRE DE GRACE SPRINT IN GALLOP

Grayson Colt Scores Over Tred Avon

Gay Party Also Wins for Stable in Second of Day.

Enro Scores in Fifth, 3d Winning Mount for Hanford.

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, April 20.—Happy Scot did not have to contend with that closing rush of Equipoise today. The C. V. Whitney star was at a safe distance in the barn. Thus Admiral Cary T. Grayson's colt romped down the stretch to take The Everglades, carrying a $1,400 purse. Tred Avon, from the S. W. Labrot group, was second, a length and a quarter behind with Canron beaten a nose for the place money.

Happy Scot was the people's choice. The crowd of 12,000 proportions went to the Grayson sprinter in a big way, backing him down to a $3.20 mutuel.

Buddy Hanford, who rode three winners, had a battle on his hands soon after the barrier rose. He wanted Happy Scot in front and was forced to squirm his charge through to get ahead of Canron which had some pace-setting ambitions of its own. The Grayson colorbearer finally had his way, going to the front on the swing to the stretch. In the meanwhile, Capacity, which threatened to figure in the race quit running third and dropped back as if tied.

Tred Avon Meets Interference.

This movement would have had little significance had not Tred Avon, Jimmy Burke up, decided to speed up at this time. Burke was forced to go around the tiring one and the Labrot miss had to be satisfied with a second-place battle against Canron. Happy Scot seemed to be gliding down the stretch on the smiles of the favorite players.

Garden Rose, the property of Thomas H. Sommerville and trained by P. M. Burch, turned in a victory in the 2-year-old maiden test, opening the program. Mintogee was second and Liqueur was third.

Buddy Hanford had the mount on the son of Messenger and wasted no time in getting to the front. Garden Rose outsprinted his field to lead from start to finish, having an advantage of a length and a half at the finish.

Gay Party Romps Home.

Johnny Gilbert rode Gay Party home a winner in the second. Gay Party carried the colors of Admiral Cary T. Grayson. The Bright Knight colt won easily by some four lengths, while Predict beat Marlene by half a length for the second money.

Gay Party was rated behind the pace set by Stepping Sister and Indicative. Mexico was in that group Gilbert asked Gay Party for some speed just before the stretch turn and the colt responded with a rush that carried him well in front to stay for the remainder of the 6-furlong contest.

Fiddler, owned and operated by one A. Pelleteri, surprised by taking some fancy sprinters in camp in the third race. Some people were in on the secret, however. The son of Wildair closed at 8 to 1 and paid off a $13.70 mutuel. Black Tyrone was second and Vacillate third.

Voltagreen and Vacillate did the principal running at the start, and Danny Meade, on Fiddler, seemed content to let the favored pair set a fast pace. Fiddler was in the second flight with Black Tyrone. With the stretch reached, Fiddler and Black Tyrone began to move up on the tiring front runners, and Meade brought Fiddler to the outside to win going away by a half length. Black Tyrone came through to beat out Vacillate for second money.

Enro Gives Hanford Third Victory.

Enro, owned by Moe Lowenstein, won the fifth race, a claiming affair, from Bokie B with Redcliffe third. It was the third victory of the day for Buddy Hanford, who kept his charge back behind a fast pace set by Redcliffe and Bookie B. He waited until the stretch turn to call upon his mount. Enro answered with a will and walked away with the race. Bokie B managed to hang on a little longer than Redcliffe. Scot Free, the favorite, finished well after a slow start.

The sixth went to Hogan's Dance by a half-length margin over Squeeze Play. Jolly King was a well beaten third. Squeeze Play tired after setting the pace from the break to within a few yards of the finish.

Horatia, a Man o' War filly, defeated the platers that contested in the last race. Fair Bill was second, with Zeal, third.

JOE AND ASBESTOS —By Ken Kling

Yesterday's horse was second. The code horse also placed, paying 2 to 1 for second. This makes 14 straight horses in the money. Today's secret code horse is a maiden 2-year-old at Lexington. Maybe the boys know something. It is 8-2-18-14-17-4-1-26.

The bank roll is now $10.10.

Champion Eastern Nine In Series Debut Today

Eastern High, four times winner of the high school baseball series, and unbeaten in the series competition since the second game of the 1927 tournament, starts out to cop its fifth pennant and nineteenth straight series game tomorrow when it meets Tech at Eastern Field.

The Easterners are handy favorites to win over Tech, which lost to Business in its first series start. Eastern's first game in the series, with Western, was rained out, and has been postponed until after the series schedule has been completed.

Today offers slim pickings for the followers of high school athletics. Central plays a game at home for a change, against Emerson, which is never strong in baseball. In the only other spot on the day's card Gonzaga's promising tennis team runs up against last year's prep school net champs, Georgetown Prep, at Garrett Park.

MRS. GARDINER WINS TOURNEY

Columbia Ace Has Net 82 Score

Mrs. Tschiffely Has 84 to Gain Second Honors.

Mrs. Haynes' 87 Is Low Gross in Event on W. C. C. Links.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

MRS. A. S. GARDINER, of the Columbia Club, yesterday won the Phyllis Keeler Miller Memorial Trophy in a tournament on the course of the Washington Golf and Country Club. Incidentally, in a field of 80 women players and with a score of 100, less 18 handicap, and a net 82, she also won a new spring suit and a new spring hat, but, as Kipling would say, that is another story. However, this fact is certainly not without interest to all the other women players.

The trophy is a memorial to a young woman golfer who before her death some years ago was the leading player of the Washington club. The tournament is an annual event and the entry list yesterday was larger than in any previous year. Competition was 18-hole medal play, less handicap allowance, and the affair was staged under the auspices of the Women's District Golf Association.

Second Low Net to Mrs. Tschiffely.

Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, of the Washington Club, won the second low net prize with a card of 102—18—84. Mrs. B. R. Luscomb, of the Army-Navy Club, with a score of 103—18—85, lost out by one stroke.

The low gross prize was won by Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, of the Columbia Club, whose score was 46—41—87, leading her nearest competitor, Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, District champion, by five strokes. With a handicap of 4, Mrs. Haynes was also entitled to second low net, but preferred to take the prize for low gross. With five 3-putt greens, but with a birdie 3 on the sixteenth, when she chipped her ball into the cup, Mrs. Haynes' card was as follows:

Out ..... 5 4 7 7 4 5 4 5 5—46
In ..... 5 3 6 5 4 5 3 5 5—41—87

Owing to greens which seemed to be more or less treacherous, the majority of the scores were high, only seven other players besides Mrs. Haynes beng able to negotiate the course under 100. These players were Mrs. Meckley, 44—48—92; Miss Winifred Faunce, Manor, 44—49—93; Mrs. C. K. Osborne, Army-Navy, 49—49—98; Mrs. Everett Eynon, Columbia, 50—48—98; Mrs. Hugh Nicolson, 51—47—98; Mrs. Alma von Steinner, Congressional, 48—51—99, and Miss Virginia Pope, Congressional, 51—48—99.

At the conclusion of the tournament Mrs. F. R. Keefer, president of the Women's District Golf Association, introduced Capt. Watson Miller, who presented the prizes with appropriate remarks.

Mrs. Gardiner was heartily applauded, especially by Mrs. Charles R. White and Mrs. J. R. DeFarges, her fellow-members in the Columbia Club, who were her partners in her winning round. Players who did not break 100 had scores ranging from the century mark to 140, but unless some one resurrects the score sheet, their names will never be known.

Episcopal High Loses To Western Netmen

Tilden Says Another Star Will Join Pro Group Here

Expects Veteran Amateur Player to Compete in Tournament Starting Tomorrow at Wardman; Tilden Plays Pare First.

PROFESSIONAL tennis will gain another noted adherent here during Washington's first pro tournament, William T. Tilden stated yesterday over long-distance phone while making final preparation for the three-day net carnival, which will start tomorrow afternoon at Wardman Park Hotel.

Tilden would not reveal the name of the player in question, but stated that he was a member of the country's first ten several years back and is a well-known figure on the courts of the world.

Nearing 40 and still the old maestro of the tennis game, Tilden comes to town today as an advance guard for the group of stars who will vie with him for the Wardman pro title. He will lend attention to the erection of the miniature stadium which will surround the hotel's championship court, and in other ways smooth the road for his contemporaries, among whom are Emmett Pare, formerly a familiar sight on District courts while attending Georgetown; Hans Nusslein, Albert Burke, Karel Kozeluh and Roman Najuch, famed foreign importations.

Despite his every effort to sign up the best possible assortment of players for Tilden Tennis Tours, Inc., the old maestro remains the leading figure in the guild, just as he stands out in tennis as the greatest single personality the game has developed.

The sleek-haired, silk-shirted Philadelphian, with a mania for making shots that others can not duplicate, is still the Tilden of old. His victory in the world's professional championship last fall saw him hailed by tennis authorities as a more superior player than he ever was during the palmiest of his amateur days.

Tilden is one of the fastest athletes in any line of endeavor. His lengthy legs get him around a court in a few steps. His great height makes it impossible to lob over him, and his cannon ball service still makes tennis a dangerous game for his opponents.

Tilden's first opponent in the pro tournament will be Pare. Matches tomorrow start at 3 o'clock. Tickets may be procured at Spalding's or the hotel. They range from 75 cents to $3.

RALLIES WIN GAME FOR CENTRAL

Chumbris Tops Attack as Hyattsville Bows, 12-7.

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL'S BASEBALL TEAM, of Washington, opened an attack that netted 6 runs in the last three innings that gave it victory over Hyattsville High, 12 to 7, in an eight-inning game here this afternoon. It was Hyattsville's first contest. Central used its regular team for the most part except for the battery.

Hyattsville, entering its half of the fifth trailing, 0 to 6, nicked Charley Hyder for five hits, including a triple and double, which combined with a walk and a hit batsman produced six runs to tie the score at 6-all. Central, however, fell upon Stanley Kernan, who replaced Chaney, for three runs in the next inning and then, after being held scoreless in the seventh, shoved across three more in the eighth.

Shorty Chumbris, with a triple, double and two singles out of five times at bat led Central's 14-hit attack. Bits Keyser got four singles and Hyder a trio of one-base knocks. Babe Anderson, who got a triple and a single, and Willie McClay, who got a pair of singles, were leading batters for Hyattsville, which was held to seven hits.

BARRY AGAIN OPPOSES BROWN

Bout Features Next Portner Card; Action for Young Van.

YOUNG "REDS" BARRY, and Natie Brown will take up where they left off some months ago and do battle Tuesday night in the windup of the Alexandria Day Nursery's weekly boxing card at Portner's arena.

Barry and Brown engaged in one of the most talked of fights of the indoor season in January. The final vote of the referee was a draw which brought a thunder of boos from half the audience who thought Brown won, and another chorus of hisses from the Barry followers.

Barry Won From Gallagher.

A return meeting was frowned upon until a few weeks ago when the Southeast red head uncorked a vicious offensive battle to lambast Marty Gallagher into defeat. This turn of the cards immediately put Matchmaker Frank Mann on the trail of the two fighters for another go.

The Day Nursery announced that a six-round semifinal and four 4-round preliminaries would support the windup. However, a match between Billy Strickler and Billy Flemster is in the making and may be closed to be filled into the semiwindup spot.

Only one 4-round preliminary was closed out last night. This lists Young Van, promising local middleweight and Ray Litten. Litten was stopped by Henry Irving at Portner's recently, but claimed he was out of condition due to the short space of time in which he had to train.

3 Knockouts Feature Noel House Matches

Three technical knockouts featured the Noel House Boxing Team's 5-0 victory over Friendship House last night. Reed disposed of Williams in the first round of their scrap. They are 125-pounders. Cechinni followed this up with a two-round victory over Childs in the 130-pound class, and Buonoviri closed the exhibition with a K. O. of Miller in the 145-pound division. A crowd of 500 viewed the match which was staged in the Noel House gym.

115 pounds, Kilby defeated Hewitt; 125 pounds, Reed defeated Williams (technical knockout, first round); 130 pounds, Cechinni defeated Childs (technical knockout, second round); 135 pounds, Lewry defeated Day; 145 pounds, Buonoviri defeated Miller (technical knockout, third round).

G. U. Prep Golfers Defeat Chevy Chase

Georgetown Prep School golfers scored an easy victory over Chevy Chase-Bethesda High on the Garrett Park links yesterday, by a score of 8-1. Mossburg was the only member of the losing team to win a match. He defeated Finn, 2 up. Barnesly, of Bethesda, however, carried Donohue to the eighteenth hole before succumbing, 1 up. All of the other Prepmen won their matches with ease.

Nee (G), defeated Morris, 6 and 5; Donohue (G), defeated Barnesly, 1 up; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 4 and 3. Mossburg (Ch. Ch.), defeated Finn, 2 up; Detweiler (G), defeated Fuller, 4 and 3; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 3 and 2. Zubrot (G), defeated Musgrove, 7 and 6; Abel (G), defeated Johnson, 4 and 3; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 7 and 5.

M. U. PLAYER IS LOST BY INJURY

Sterling's Ankle Broken; Va. Netmen Here Today.

RALPH STERLING, veteran catcher, joined Spencer Chase, first baseman, on the hospital list of Maryland University's baseball team yesterday when he broke his ankle while sliding into a base during practice.

It is doubtful that Sterling will be of any further service to the Old Line nine this year, while Chase may return within a week if his injured finger continues to improve.

The backstopping burden now rests upon Bill O'Hara, sophomore, but Coach Shipley has sent out a call for reinforcements in the hope of affording O'Hara some support. Lloyd Jones, manager of the team, and Bill Looney, who subbed in the catching role last year, are the only ones so far to respond.

Today's only collegiate contest hereabouts is the Maryland-Virginia tennis match at Columbia Country Club, beginning at 3:30 p. m.

Tomorrow Maryland's nine engages Washington and Lee at College Park, while the Georgetown tossers trek to New York to oppose New York University. In conjunction with the ball game, Maryland will told a track meet with Richmond University furnishing the opposition for Coach Eppley's thin-clads.

Mrs. Vare Breaks Hot Springs Record

Hat Springs, Va., April 20 (A.P.).—Playing one of the greatest rounds of her golfing career, Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare defeated Miss Grace Amory, of the Seminole Club, Palm Beach, 7 and 6, in the finals of the Old Dominion golf championship over the homestead course here today.

Mrs. Vare played out the round and carded a brilliant 72, which is one over men's par for the layout and two strokes lower than the new women's record of 74 she established in the qualifying round on Monday. The former record of 78 was held jointly by Helen Hicks, 1931 winner of the Old Dominion championship, and Diana Fishwick, former British amateur champion.

Mrs. Vare's best previous round was a 71, scored early in her golfing career. She considered her 72 over the Homestead course today, however, as a greater achievement. The card:

BANQUET IS ENJOYED BY CIVIC FEDERATION

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Approximately 200 members of the Arlington County Civic Federation, their friends and special guests, attended the annual banquet of that organization held last night in the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria. Robert N. Anderson, the president of the federation, presided and introduced the guests. The invocation was by Monroe H. Stockett.

The principal speakers were Senator Marvel Mills Logan, of Kentucky, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d.

Senator Logan took for the keynote of his talk the lack of knowledge of the people of the country at large of the affairs of their Government. He said that in the thousands of letters he receives daily he is struck with their ignorance of the real issues and the procedure of legislation. He said that if Congress would appropriate money to instruct the people in the affairs of their Government he would vote for it.

Virginia should be proud, he stated, of the part she played in the building of this Nation, which required great sacrifices, and George Washington made sacrifices every year of his life for the success of this Government. He stated the country has had dark days, but none so dark as those of today, no days that our national life is in as great danger as it is today. Forget every difference, he said, and remember only that they are citizens of this glorious nation.

Grant Stresses Cooperation.

Col. Grant, in his talk, referred to the selection of the National Capital, and said that George Washington selected not only the present location but a part of what is now Arlington County and Alexandria. He spoke of the close connection between Washington, Arlington County and Alexandria, and said in going over papers of George Washington in the last year he was interested to note the constant harping on the ties of interest. He paid tribute to Representative Howard W. Smith, of the Eighth Congressional District, for his able representation of his district. He also referred to the rider attached to the District appropriations bill relative to the carrying out of the provisions of what is known as the Capper-Crampton act, of a few years ago, and said unless a change is made by the Senate, there will be no provision for this act.

Special guests introduced who made short talks were State Senator John W. Rust, Delegate Hugh Reid, Stephen James, chairman of the Interfederation Conference; while those who only rose to acknowledge the introduction were: Representative Howard W. Smith, Judge Walter T. McCarthy, Frederick T. Lee, president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, Maryland; Harry E. Fellows, president of the Board of Supervisors, and the following members: Mrs. Elizabeth Magruder, Fred A. Gosnell, John C. Gall, and Lyman Kelley, also Judge Ben Hedrick.

Musical numbers were given by Miss Alma Harris, of Cherrydale, soprano; Jesse Veitch, formerly of Arlington county, tenor, and Elliott Button, a former soloist of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Alexandria, barytone, with Miss Estelle Wentworth, a former Alexandrian, as accompanist, all members of the Washington Civic Opera Company. They were presented by the manager of that company, R. R. Edwards, who gave a talk on the civic aspect of his organization. Following the program dancing continued until midnight.

The committe on arrangements was Grover E. Payne, Robert N. Anderson, G. O. Basham, E. Lester Bennett, F. E. Mann, William Clifton Hull, Mrs. Alice W. Semones, Walter U. Varney, Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, Hugh J. McGrath, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, Joseph Haley and DeWitt M. Evans.

The body of Mrs. Samantha Baer, 70 years old, widow of John P. Baer, who died Tuesday at Sibley Hospital, Washington, was brought yesterday to Alexandria, and funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Wheatley's funeral home by the Rev. Edward B. Guerry, of the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia. Interment will be in Bethel Cemetery.

"Boy! Won't the boss get a laugh out of this?"

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LOVE IS LIKE THAT.

DIVORCES have been hit by the depression. They're down to a new low for the last decade. In 1929 there was one divorce granted every two minutes in the United States, according to statistics. They were even talking of splitting Reno five for one.

* * * *

Today there is practically a divorce moratorium.

* * * *

Here and there you read about some husband who still has so much money that he can afford to admit he is unhappily married, but he immediately puts himself in the class with the fellow who still carries two spare tires, uses dollar golf balls and spends the winter on a yacht.

* * * *

Three years ago divorce was a major industry. Courts were being equipped for quantity production. Divorce lawyers were operating on the chain store plan. Prosperity seemed to make our best citizens think it a reflection on their prestige if they carried the same wife through a second season.

* * * *

No matter how splendid a man's wife might look, he seemed to feel he must turn her in every spring for a new one.

* * * *

The country was filled with second-hand wives. The matrimonial journey had become a mere matter of hitch-hiking.

* * * *

NO matter where you looked you beheld scores of husbands and wives who had come into so much money they couldn't be happy together any more.

* * * *

Every day thousands of men and women figured up their paper profits and were immediately struck by a conviction that they were domestically unhappy. "Now that we have all this money," they would say, "We can afford to realize how discontented we are together."

* * * *

In midsummer, 1929, a composite picture of the average man's dream girl would have embraced the features and personalities of Texas Guinan, Mae West, Peggy Hopkins Joyce and the Miss America of that season. He wanted glamour, pep, loud laughter, hot cha-cha, &c.

* * * *

Nothing irked him as much as old family portraits and evenings in front of the fireplace with the Little Woman.

* * * *

Then came the crash. She hasn't looked so bad since.

* * * *

Now that the paper profits have been swept away like so much confetti and the boys are back working for a living again, the Old Girl seems worth holding again.

* * * *

Just how long it will last is problematical. But the motto of the moment is "Never change wives in mid-depression."

* * * *

For you to have the White House bee;
I don't know, why, but certainly
I do not like it, Franklin D.

Wall Street—and Beyond

Markets and Business in Review and Outlook

By Lawrence Sullivan

ASTUTE stock market operators were quick last week to leap upon Senator Reed Smoot's suggestion that the trade list abounds in alluring bargains. Not only did they undertake to contradict the senator's implication that the stock market today is heavily oversold, but to break down his entire theory of values.

Physical value of plant and assets, Senator Smoot suggested in his public statement, should be something of a guide to the market value. Whereupon several of Wall street's lightning calculators came forward promptly with armloads of plant and property values from which there are no current earnings.

The point is a nice one, the more interesting for the fact that it brings into sharp focus the quintessence of New York's ruling attitude today. And that attitude, in turn, is the fundamental explanation of today's chaotic stock values.

• • • •

OVER a period of years, of course, earning power is the controlling index of stock value, and to that extent the Wall street formula is valid. But it is a mere sophistry to go on to the conclusion, as Wall street has done for more than a year, that the temporary decline in earnings completely wipes out the economic value of plants, tools, organization, patents, good will and technological skill and trade secrets. To do so is to say in a single sentence that no property in the United States ever will be called upon again to develop economic utilities for which people will pay profitable prices.

And this folly becomes the more ridiculous when it is turned upon so calm and keen an owl as the chairman of the Senate committee on finance.

• • • •

COMPLETE vindication of Senator Smoot's theory of stock values—which really is much older than the good senator—is found in a recent statistical analysis of the 1932 position of 468 industrial concerns throughout the United States. This study, by Ernst & Ernst, touches every line of activity from autos and building to textiles, chemicals and specialties. It reveals combined current assets of the 468 companies at approximately $8,000,000,000.

"For the entire list, the current assets at the close of 1931 stood at $3.82 for every $1 of current liabilities, whereas at the trough of the depression in 1921 these same firms showed current assets of $1.87 for every $1 of current liabilities.

"This improvement in liquidity," the statistical summary concludes, "has taken place even though dividend payments by corporations generally were relatively larger throughout 1931 than in 1921. According to statistics published by the United States Department of Commerce, average monthly dividend payments (exclusive of railways) for 1931 were $226,000,000, or an increase of 9.09 per cent over the $207,175,000 monthly average for 1929; whereas for the year 1921 the monthly average was $248,200,000, or a decrease of 9.85 per cent from a corresponding figure of $50,140,000 for 1920."

Despite this general position of American industry today, however, the weighted index of daily average stock prices has dipped below the 1921 trough several times during the last two months.

Dim Lights In Hollywood.

NOWHERE did the dazzling, golden shadows of the buy-anything-at-the-market era linger longer than in Hollywood, that gay little town by the sea which really wanted to live in the clouds forever.

A quarterly report as of March 31 from one of the largest and flashiest producers on the Shadow Strand disclosed a three-months net profit of less than $200,000 in 1932, against a little better than $1,000,000 in the first quarter of 1931. The case is not typical, but it may be regarded as fairly representative.

But even these figures do not tell the whole story. The movie business has not suffered, of course, anything like that degree of prostration. The real explanation is found, at last, in a neat italic line at the bottom of the report, which reads:

"The unfavorable comparison is due in part to a new system of valuing inventories."

That, approximately, is what Senator Smoot undertook to say—that, by and large, today's book values presume to represent, not hopes, aspirations, hallucinations or mere Wallingford dreams, but plain old-fashioned, everyday values, in the dictionary sense.

And as the senator has suggested, it is impossible to laugh off a real value, even if you can't see beyond the first fraction on the ticker tape.

Shoe production in March showed more than the usual gain over February and was ahead of output for the corresponding month last year, the Tanner's Council of America reports. The March total was 30,700,000 pairs, against 29,364,000 pairs for the same month last year.

The Cream of Wheat Corporation reports for the quarter ended March 31 net profit of $403,043, after charges and Federal taxes, equal to 67 cents a share. This compares with $486,795 or $1 cents a share in the 1931 quarter.

Financial interests estimate the first quarter profits of General Foods Co. at about 80 cents a share on the capital stock, against $1.05 a share in the 1931 period.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. is said to be holding its recent small gain in ingot production. It is expected that the company will increase output slightly next week.

BOND PRICES LIFTED BY BARGAIN HUNTERS

Small Investment Buying Is Noted; U. S. Issues Ease on New Offering.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—The bond market sat up and took a little nourishment today although the patient was still laboring under the uncertainties of trade and industrial trends.

With most domestic issues at extremely low levels, dealers reported a modest increase in small investment buying and inquiries from more than the usual number of "bargain hunters."

While the average for 60 corporate securities advanced three-tenths of a point, the hoped-for buoyancy was lacking. Trading, however, was somewhat more active, sales totaling $10,211,000 par value, against $8,746,000 yesterday.

The United States Government list eased moderately following notice of new financing to be announced soon by the Treasury. At the same time many traders decided to take some of their rather sizable profits.

Railroad bonds, especially those of the low-priced speculative class, rallied fairly well and the utilities and industrials also picked up a fraction.

Western Unions slumped from 1 to more than 6 points. This weakness was generally attributed to the company's recent poor earnings report.

Foreign bonds were irregular. Declines were recorded by the Argentines, Australians, Austrians and Poles. The Germans firmed and South Americans were relatively steady.

French loans continued to move moderately higher.

Curb Trade Listless.

The curb market moved listlessly today, with swings generally narrow and the turnover, approximately 130,000 shares, among the smallest in the past two years.

There was a slightly better tone indicated early in the day, but the trend eased in the latter part of the session, when traders reverted to their previous position of indifference.

As a whole, the utilities acted better than most of the other classes, although they were not conspicuous by outstanding gains. Electric Bond & Share moved forward at one time, but lost its vitality before the close. Commonwealth Edison also took on early gains, only to end ¾ lower.

Some of the oils gave signs of being in demand, notably Standard of Indiana, which closed ¼ of a point higher. Internstional Petroleum also advanced ¾. Both Humble and Gulf Oils were fractionally lower, with transactions extremely light.

One of the weak spots was Deere & Co., which suffered a net loss of 2 points. Minor declines were also shown by Ford of Canada "A." Pioneen Gold and a number of relatively inactive issues.

STEEL TRADE NOTES FAVORABLE FACTORS

Output Still at Low Level, but Buying by Motors Is Promising.

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—The iron and steel business remains at a low level, but it is not without constructive features in improved specifications by the motor industry, increased tin mill operations and a larger rail output, according to the Iron Age.

Steel ingot production for the country has risen to 22½ per cent of capacity against 21 per cent a week ago. Gains at Pittsburgh, Birmingham, Buffalo and Youngstown are being partly offset by a loss at Cleveland, it is stated.

Finished steel prices are holding, having apparently withstood the first test of sizable purchases by the automobile makers, the review stated. Scrap steel, on the other hand, has shown fresh weakness, declines in heavy melting steel at Pittsburgh and Chicago forcing the Iron Age scrap composite price to $8.04 a ton, a new all-time low.

It is reported in steel trade circles that plant operations in the Youngstown district are continuing to expand on further moderate improvement in the rate of buying of tin plate, sheets, strip and other products. Average operations are at an estimated 29 per cent of capacity against 25 per cent at the beginning of the week.

$9,650,483 Is Held In Recapture Fund

Virginian Railway Excess for 1920-1927 Reported by Commission.

Washington, April 20 (A.P.).—The Interstate Commerce Commission in a tentative report today, held that the Virginian Railway had excess income totaling $9,650,483.48 from August, 1920, through 1927. One-half of this sum is recapturable under the present law, which Congress has been asked to repeal.

The tentative findings of the commission, which are subject to argument and revision, show that during the last four months of 1920 the Virginian's income over 5¾ per cent was $1,155,310. For the other years of the period the excess was as follows: 1921, $149,170; 1922, $590,520; 1923, $593,373; 1924, $316,233; 1925, $758,576; 1926, $3,674,471, and 1927, $2,392,831.

Minnesota Loan Expected.

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—New York banks learned today that the State of Minnesota might call for bids May 10 on a $10,000,000 issue of serial highway bonds. It was also reported that Kansas City, Mo., planned to sell a $1,700,000 issue soon.

NORTH AMERICAN CO. RATE IS UNAFFECTED

Dame Explains Cut by Power Unit; Earnings Reports.

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—The reduction in the dividend on North American Light & Power Co. common stock will have no effect on dividends on the common stock of the North American Co., it was stated today by Frank L. Dame, president of the North American Co.

Dividends on North American Light & Power Co. common stock constitute only a small part of earnings for the North American Co. common stock, he said. The company is not a subsidiary of the North American Co.

The North American Light & Power Co. early this week cut its dividend rate from 8 per cent in stock annually to 4 per cent in stock.

The Chicago & North Western Railway Co. had net railway operating income in March of approximately $200,000, according to Fred W. Sargent, president of the road.

This would compare with net railway operating income of approximately $181,000 for February and $831,000 for March, 1931.

Gillette Safety Razor Co. had net profit of $1,714,049 in the first quarter compared with $1,421,770 a year ago.

Commercial Solvents Corporation earned net profit of $283,454 in the first quarter, equal to 11 cents a common share, against $537,544, or 21 cents a share, in the same period of 1931.

Midland Steel Products had net loss of $139,135 in the March 31 quarter, contrasting with profit of $360,272 a year ago.

National Biscuit Co. today reported first quarter net income of $4,219,958, equal to 60 cents a common share.

In the same period last year net totaled $4,840,670, equivalent to 70 cents a share on the common.

In a statement regarding its application for permission to issue $109,741,200 additional common stock, the New York Telephone Co. said it is the company's purpose to maintain the present $8 dividend on the entire amount to be outstanding when the new shares are authorized.

It was reported today in authoritative quarters that the American Can Co. has given no consideration to the matter of issuing earnings statements quarterly.

The Continental Can Co. yesterday issued a report for the twelve months ended March 31, which was designed to show the trend of the company's business in the first quarter. This led to rumors that both the leading can companies were planning to issue statements every three months.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Wednesday.	Tuesday.
Number of advances	161	94
Number of declines	198	302
Stocks unchanged	168	136
Total issues traded	527	532

Stocks.

Rails were well supported, but the industrial leaders continued the downward drift. Steel preferred hit the 1904 low. The undertone was decidedly better, however, and for the list as a whole declines and advances were about equally divided for the day.

Bonds.

Bonds advanced fractionally on a slightly improved investment demand. Heavy profit-taking appeared in the U. S. Governments.

Curb.

The Curb trade was shaggy and indecisive.

Wheat.

Liquidation of May contracts in an unsupported market forced abrupt declines of about 2 cents in the late trade. The close was at the day's bottom.

Cotton.

Futures closed 9 to 13 points higher. Offerings were light all day, and the spot markets ruled firm.

Selective Weakness Continues in Key Issues; Carriers Up 1 to 3 Points.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—Rails chugged along on the upgrade in the stock market today, again bucking the trend of industrials and utilities.

Weakness was still selective, affecting principally half a dozen prominent issues, but the persistent presence of liquidation in such stocks as American Telephone, American Can and U. S. Steel doubtless acted as a brake on whatever encouragement was to be derived from gains in the carriers.

Nevertheless, late short covering reduced losses in most instances, so that on the whole the session bore a marked resemblance to yesterday's.

Active rails at their best were 1 to 3 points higher, Union Pacific showing the maximum advance and holding two-thirds of it. Santa Fe, up 2¼ net, finished near the top. Northern Pacific, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, New Haven and Northern Pacific were gainers to the extent of ½ to 1 point.

Pivotal Issues Weak.

U. S. Steel touched 29¼, closing at 29⅝, off ½.

American Can weakened more than 2 points to 43¼. Wall street is already wondering whether the company will declare an extra dividend this year, basing its skepticism on a belief that smaller packs of fruit and vegetables are bound to affect Can's business.

Preferred issues refused to follow the steadier bond market; weakness was especially apparent in U. S. Steel's senior equity, which broke more than 3 points to 81, the lowest since 1904.

Volume for the day totaled 969,715 shares.

Resistance of rails, while industrials used in the Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite were easing under last week's bear market low, provided the chief talking point of those who felt another rally was in the making.

Although it was pointed out that possibly carriers were being supported to enable liquidation in other directions to go forward without undue disturbance, some quarters were willing to give rails the benefit of whatever doubt existed on the theory that March earnings warranted a more cheerful attitude.

Steel Output Increased.

Midweek business news included word that steel ingot production had expanded moderately and that the rate of decline in electric power output had diminished.

In the money market there was renewed gossip of a Federal Reserve rediscount cut tomorrow. Clearing house banks reduced interest rates allowed on foreign deposits, effective next week, which was taken as a straw in the wind.

Inasmuch as Dutch and Swiss banks are now paying no interest on such deposits, there was little expectation that the lower allowance here would start a fresh exodus of funds. On the other hand it was thought such money might find its way into investments, presumably eligible bonds, since acceptances are currently very scarce.

Robert Lehman, John F. Fay, and Maurice Newcomb have been elected directors of the American Cigar Co., representing minority stockholders. The company is controlled by the American Tobacco Co.

Early Rise in Steel Activity Is Predicted

Jersey City, Apr. 20 (A. P.).—Many of the underlying economic conditions are improving and it is only a matter of time until this will be true of the steel and steel tool industries, said Horace Wilkinson, president of the Crucible Steel Co., at the stockholders' annual meeting today.

Incoming orders upon which present operations of the company are based are at the rate of about 21 per cent of normal capacity, he said.

The stockholders' list revealed that Mr. Wilkinson held 161,492 common shares approximately 36 per cent and 9,310 preferred shares of Crucible. The second largest holder was the Shenango Furnace Co., of Pittsburgh, with 44,360 shares of common.

After displaying signs of recovery early in the week, prices for raw hides resumed their long-continued decline to the lowest levels in the history of the industry. The basic grade sold at 4 cents a pound on the New York Hide Exchange, Inc.

$50,000,000 Treasury 91-Day Bills Offered

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mills announced yesterday that the Treasury would sell $50,000,000 in 91-day bills to the highest bidder on April 26.

The bills will be dated April 27 and mature on July 27. The money raised through the sale of the bills will be used to retire an equal amount which mature on April 27.

G. F. BAKER BIGGEST BULL ON U. S. STEEL

Combined Estates Now Hold 87,421 Shares of Common.

Hoboken, N. J., April 20 (A.P.).—Holdings of members of the board of directors and the finance committee in stocks of the United States Steel Corporation, published in connection with the annual meeting of stockholders this week, disclosed that the largest blocks were held in the estate of the late George F. Baker.

The books showed 40,000 shares of common held in the name of the late Mr. Baker and 30,000 shares held in the name of George F. Baker, jr., as executor of the estate. Mr. Baker, jr., also held in his own name 17,421 shares, a reduction of 3,000 shares for a year previously.

The next largest block was that held by Myron C. Taylor, the new chairman of the board of directors. Mr. Taylor held 21,322 shares, a reduction of 6,500 shares from last year. The only stock appearing in the name of J. P. Morgan was 1,441 shares of common. A year previously there were listed in his name 105 shares of preferred and 1,261 shares of common.

Thomas W. Lamont held only ten shares of preferred, unchanged from last year.

James A. Farrell, who retires as president today, had reduced his holding of common stock to 158 shares, against 473 from last year, and his holding of preferred had been reduced by 300 shares, to 4,550.

A number of the directors had substantially reduced the holdings listed in their own names. Nathan L. Miller had 1,001 shares of common, as against 4,140 last year.

Edward J. Buffington held 293 shares of preferred and 373 of common, as compared to 693 and 1,624, respectively, last year.

David F. Houston had increased his holding to 501 shares of common, from 200 last year. William J. Filbert, vice chairman of the finance committee, held 1,804 shares of preferred and 2,430 of common, as against 1,904 and 2,311, respectively, last year.

While these figures attract considerable interest in Wall street from year to year, it is recognized that they fail to give a true picture of the actual control of the company, since the full interest in the company presumably does not appear through stock held personally by members of the board. Large blocks are presumably held indirectly through special corporations and otherwise.

Some of the large holdings of the common stock outside of the directorate and finance committee members were credited to Lawrence C. Phipps, 50,000 shares; Coalesced Co., 31,386; Duke H. Cutter, 27,752; Frank R. Bacon, 17,143; Cleveland Trust Co., 13,517.

Insurance companies continued prominent in the list of larger holders of United States Steel preferred. The New York Life Insurance Co. was down as the holder of 117,300 shares, Mutual Life, 37,900, and Mutual Benefit Life, 10,000.

In a letter to stockholders, D. A. Schulte, president of Schulte Retail Stores, Inc., stated that the January business of the company was nearly 20 per cent below the corresponding month last year; February, 9 per cent worse, and March, even with last year.

NEW HAVEN'S CHIEF HAILS TRUCK ORDER

Pleads for Equality in Transportation for Railroads.

New Haven, Conn., April 20 (A.P.)—President J. J. Pelley, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in his annual report today cited the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission recommending Federal regulation of highway motor traffic, and asked support of stockholders of legislation to effect such regulation. Railroad difficulties, he said, "have been severely accentuated by unregulated forms of transportation."

Elaborating on his report, he urged that all transportation agencies be placed on an equal basis.

"The subsidy ought to be taken out of transportation," he said, pointing out that many States fail to regulate buses and that the Federal Government pays air mail lines which also carry passengers.

"The railroad has become a selling proposition, not an operating matter. It is no longer a question of getting the capacity to handle the business, but getting the business to utilize our equipment."

Eighteen directors were reelected, and stockholders approved five propositions regarding possible issuance of $50,000,000 securities during the coming year to pay or fund indebtedness and $10,000,000 for equipment.

"It is possible but not probable that we will have to make use of this financing," said E. G. Buckland, chairman of the board. "This action merely gives us permission to do so, should we find it advisable."

Bank of Netherlands To Withdraw All Gold

London, Apr. 20 (A.P.).—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam today said the Bank of the Netherlands had decided to withdraw all the gold it holds abroad, amounting to 103,000,000 florins ($41,200,000) principally in the United States.

It was said that the decision was reached because of the belief of the directors that the bank does not need to carry a large gold stock abroad under present circumstances.

William H. Woodin has been elected president of the J. C. Brill Co., succeeding the late Samuel M. Curwen. Mr. Woodin is head of the American Car & Foundry Co., which controls the Brill company.

COTTON PRICES UP ON TRADE DEMAND

Early Setback Overcome Aided by Firm Spot Situation in South.

New York, April 20 (A.P.).—Cotton held generally steady today with some early irregularity, followed by advances on trade buying and covering prompted by reports of continued small offerings and a firm spot situation in the South.

After selling off from 6.03 at the opening to 5.99, May advanced to 6.13 in the late trading and closed at 6.11, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 9 to 13 points.

The opening was steady, unchanged to 2 points up, in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables, but the initial demand was quite readily supplied by a renewal of May liquidation and some scattered selling of the later deliveries.

Trade buying increased on the setback to 5.99 for May, and this, with some buying through houses with Liverpool and continental connections, helped to steady the market.

Private reports of an improved spot demand, particularly for the lower grades in the Southwest, and a continued high basis with light offerings in the South, seemed to stimulate demand in the later trading, and the highest prices of the day were reached in the last hour, when October sold up to 6.56. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best on most positions.

May liquidation was again largely in the way of switching into later deliveries at about the recently prevailing differences.

Liverpool cables reported covering on the easier sterling in that market, but said business in cotton cloths at Manchester was restricted with buyers cautious.

Exports today were 43,613 bales, making 7,312,914 bales so far this season.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

4-21-32

THE finest wire ever made is not merely a novelty, but

MRS. J. N. SAUNDERS RENAMED PRESIDENT OF P.-T.A. CONGRESS

Her Reelection by Big Margin Cheered as Annual Session Is Finished.

ORGANIZATION TO WORK FOR IMPROVED MOVIES

Kidnaping Wave Is Deplored and Sympathy Extended to Lindberghs.

Sweeping to victory on a tidal wave of 512 votes, Mrs. Joseph N. Saunders was reelected president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers at the conclusion of the annual meeting of the Congress yesterday afternoon at the Interior Department.

Wild cheers rang through the auditorium when Mrs. Saunders' reelection was announced. Her retention as president marked the defeat of Mrs. E. C. Rittue, legislative chairman of the congress who, backed by the Francis Scott Key P.-T. A., had conducted a strenuous campaign against the incumbent's reelection.

Victory for Mrs. Saunders was strongly indicated at the morning session when nominations were received. When her name was read from the official slate of the nominating committee, the nearly 1,000 women who packed the small auditorium staged a demonstration that would have done credit to a presidential convention.

Mrs. Rittue Nominated.

Nomination of Mrs. Rittue was made from the floor. Applause came from a determined group of supporters. She received 45 votes. Mrs. Saunders' term in office, her second one, is for two years. An immediate third term is prohibited by the by-laws.

Another high light of the election was the defeat of Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter for election as delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations. Mrs. Rafter was president of the congress for sixteen years until a few years ago. Mrs. William T. Bannerman and John W. Townsend were the delegates elected.

With only two other contestants for office, the entire slate of the nominating committee was carried. Mrs. L. B. Castell was elected first vice president, defeating Mrs. Susan Rauscher, of the John Eaton P.-T. A. She received 512 votes. Mrs. Finis D. Morris, unopposed, was elected second vice president; Seldon M. Ely, also unopposed, third vice president.

Mrs. Joseph F. Randall, opposed by Mrs. J. W. Byler, was elected fourth vice president with 398 votes, Mrs. Byler receiving 152. Others, unopposed, were elected as follows: Mrs. Joseph Sanders, fifth vice president; Mrs. Walter N. Jones, sixth vice president; Mrs. Miner W. Buell, seventh vice president; Mrs. W. B. Fry, secretary; Mrs. Z. D. Blackistone, treasurer, and Mrs. R. T. Wyche, historian. Mrs. Wyche replaces Mrs. H. S. Parsons, who retired from the office on her own request.

Resolutions Approved.

The resolutions, presented by Mrs. Bannerman, were approved as follows:

Reaffirming stand on a nonpartisan, elective school board for the District; reaffirmation of former stands on law observance, child labor, educational leave for teachers and equal pay for equal qualifications of teachers, regardless of the grade taught; indorsement of bills providing for regulation of the sale of firearms in the District; opposition to any increase in taxation on real property in the District "as endangering home ownership and the sense of security of large numbers of children."

Development of a curriculum suited to various grades, in the teaching of the effects of alcohol and tobacco on the human body was urged. The congress decided to ask moving picture theaters to start new shows on Wednesdays instead of Fridays so that parents may be given the chance to preview the pictures.

Seek Better Films.

Cooperation will be asked of promoters and producers of motion pictures in obtaining "better moving pictures rather than censorship," and "condemnation of indecent appeals both in product and advertising." Request will be made that the vaudeville features "be free of vulgarity, particularly when shown in connection with wholesome pictures."

"The wave of kidnaping sweeping the land" was deplored. Sympathy was extended to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, with "prayers for the early and safe return of their baby."

The congress urged continued organization of parent education classes for the study of child development at the various age levels, the study of religion and the spiritual training of children in the home, problems of famly life, neighborhood environment, law observance, recreation and social organization based on American principles.

Parent-teacher education should be conducted without conflict between "sound pedagogy, sound religion and sound American government," it was emphasized.

Dr. Cooper Speaks.

Dr. W. J. Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, at the afternoon session pointed out to the parents and teachers that when they were children, parents were concerned over the influence of the language of immigration. He added the observation that just as much danger is presented today by some radio programs.

Miss Charl Williams, fifth national vice president of the national congress and field secretary of the National Education Association, drew applause when she declared that the so-called fads, such as music and art, may be the means of "saving the reasons, if not the very souls of the next generation."

JURY MAKES RECORD IN FREEING OFFICER

Policeman Perry Cleared in Five Minutes of Assault Charge on Bootblack.

Policeman George E. Perry, of the First Precinct, did not assault John Miller, colored bootblack, a jury in the court of Justice F. D. Letts, District Supreme Court, decided yesterday in one of the shortest jury deliberations on record.

The eleven men and one woman considered the case less than five minutes before reaching a verdict.

A score of Perry's friends, in attendance at the trial, immediately surrounded both him and his attorney, James A. O'Shea, and showered them with congratulations. Perry has been under suspension for months and his reinstatement will be ordered today.

The indictment against Perry charged him with slapping Miller in the face. He had arrested the boy, August 21, after several reports of the theft of suitcases from the Union Station waiting room had been received by police. Miller was held two days and released without being charged. Perry was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Irvin Goldstein.

Alleged Slasher Held On Assault Charges

Jack Mahoney yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon, and assault with intent to kill Peter Rockelli.

According to grand jury evidence, Mahoney attacked Rockelli in a lunch room at Ninth and E streets northwest on March 29 and slashed him. Physicians at Emergency Hospital said they took 48 stitches in Rockelli, and he is still under the care of a physician. Mahoney, it was said, accused Rockelli of "notifying the police of his activities."

Wife Finds Stove Jets Open and Mate Stricken

William Creegan, 42 years old, of 1232 Vermont avenue northwest, was saved from death by gas poisoning yesterday morning by his wife, Clara, who found him in a semiconscious condition in the kitchen.

Three jets of a gas range were wide open, she told police. Mr. Creegan was treated by the Fire Rescue Squad and remained at home.

WASHINGTON TOC-H HOLDS REDEDICATION

Members From Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore Attend Services.

The Washington branch of the Toc-H held its annual rededication services last night in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral, with the Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall, padre in this city, and rector of St. Mark's Church, delivering an address on "The Vision of Toc-H."

Toc-H is a world-wide organization which was founded on the battlefields of France in 1915, whose membership is composed of men who hold the ideal of service to mankind and the principles of Christianity in every day life. The Washington Mark, or branch, was the first to be formed in America.

Representatives of the organization from Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York participated in the service, which was opened with a processional hymn.

The members of the local mark participating in the services were the Rev. Andrew Byrd, pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims and Presbyterian padre of Toc-H; Coleman Jennings, chairman of the Washington Toc-H executive committee; Woodson P. Houghton, member of the executive committee; Herbert Costain, chapel warden; William Stevenson, Washington warden; Tucker Humphries, jobmaster; Hopewell Darneill, registrar, and Donald Brock, secretary.

PLASTERERS AGREE TO PAY-CUT PARLEY

Men Will Resume Work Pending Settlement of Scale Dispute.

Plasterers, who were locked out early this week when they refused to accept a reduction in pay, agreed to return to work pending a settlement of the wage dispute at a meeting between union officials and the plastering contractors of Washington last night.

This decision means that work on the new Standard Oil Building and the new National Geographic building will be resumed this morning. No date for a further discussion of the wage scale has been set, but it is expected to be negotiated by the same men who agreed last night to an armistice.

Last night's meeting was held in the office of the Master Builders Association, who have been attempting to mediate between the contractors and the workmen. It is possible that a representative of the Master Builders will be asked to sit in at future conferences, according to Frank J. Sheehan, secretary of the Builders' Association.

The lock-outs were the result of a demand for a cut of $4 per day in plasterers' wages. It is reported that not all contractors enforced this demand, but those who did had to suspend work. The lower wages for plasterers is a part of a general plan to cut wages 30 per cent, it is understood.

Baltimore Girl and Capital Artist Elope to Rockville

A courtship of less than six months culminated yesterday in the elopement of Moreland W. Schneider, Washington artist, and Miss Mary Jane Simpson, of Baltimore, Md. The couple was married by the Rev. Arthur B. Rudd, canon of the Washington Cathedral, at his home in Rockville, Md.

The two met last fall in Baltimore while Mr. Schneider was a member of the art staff of the Baltimore Sun. A short time later Mr. Schneider returned to Washington and for several months conducted an art studio on upper Fourteenth street northwest.

Miss Simpson came here on numerous occasions to visit at the home of the bridegroom's brother, Edwin Schneider, a commercial photographer, at 1436 Meridian place northwest. It was during one of these visits yesterday that the two decided to elope.

Hasty preparations were completed and after final arrangements for a honeymoon in California, the couple went immediately to Rockville. Following the ceremonies, they returned to the bridegroom's home at 1483 Newton street northwest.

Miss Simpson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Simpson, is employed by McCormick & Co., food manufacturers, in Baltimore. She gave her age as 19. Mr. Schneider, a native of Washington, said he was 23.

It is expected they will live in California.

SCHOOL BOARD ASKS FOR BUSINESS AIDS

Decides to Press Also Bill for Educational Leaves of Absence.

Continuation of efforts, despite discouragement from the District Commissioners, to obtain two inspectors to assist First Assistant Superintendent Jere J. Crane and to obtain enactment of a bill to provide for educational leave of absence for teachers, was decided upon by the Board of Education at its meeting yesterday at the Franklin Administration Building.

The Commissioners, it was revealed in a communication to the board, balked at the recommendation for assistants to Mr. Crane, who is in charge of business affairs, "because of the expense." They offered an alternative suggestion of closer cooperation with the repair shop and the department of construction of the District.

"Financial conditions" were also referred to as the reason for postponing efforts to obtain passage of the bill for educational leaves of absence. The board will stress before congressional committees that an appropriation at this time will not be expected. Enactment of the bill is desired, however, to permit teachers to pursue their work at universities and colleges.

Both matters were referred to the legislative committee of which Henry Gilligan is chairman, with instructions to expedite them.

The board accepted a gift from Mrs. H. W. Fitch of framed pictures of cathedrals. They probably will be given to the John Quincy Adams School.

Appointment of Dr. E. C. Higbie, as president of Wilson Teachers College, was made permanent. George M. Whitwell, chairman of the finance committee, reported that progress is being made on the drafting of estimates for the 1934 budget, but that he does not expect them to be completed by April 30, as requested by the District Commissioners.

Man to Face Jury Trial In Attack on Policeman

Herbert Thomas yesterday was ordered held in bond of $200 for a jury trial in Police Court April 27 on a charge of assaulting Policeman John E. O'Neill, of the Fourth Precinct.

O'Neil had arrested a colored woman and was taking her to a patrol box when he was attacked by a group of persons. In the melee, Thomas, it was charged, threw a brick that hit O'Neill in the chest. The officer retaliated at Thomas' fleeing form by firing a bullet in Thomas' hip. The wound was not serious.

Boy Patrolman Is Hit; Woman Driver Accused

Mrs. Mildred G. Wilkinson, of 804 Maple avenue, Takoma Park, Md., was arrested by Sixth Precinct police yesterday and charged with "assault with an automobile" after car driven by her was alleged to have struck and knocked down Raymond Schriner, 10, of 312 Tulip avenue northwest, a schoolboy traffic patrolman.

The accident occurred in front of the Brightwood School. The lad was treated for minor back injuries at Walter Reed Hospital and sent home.

DISTRICT TO ADOPT FINGERPRINT FILING OF SCOTLAND YARD

Single-Mark System Is Said to Be Far Ahead of Present Method.

WILL SHORTEN WORK OF SOLVING MYSTERIES

Glassford Approves Adoption of Change; Equipment to Be Purchased.

Scotland Yard's single fingerprint system is to be adopted by the Capital City's police department.

Conceded by eminent criminologists to be far more efficacious than the present system in identifying criminals, the British method of classification yesterday received the approval of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police.

The present system of classifying and filing fingerprints was adopted primarily for the purpose of identifying individuals arrested with any previous record they might have. Little thought was given to the possibility of using the files for identification of criminals from prints found at the scene of a crime.

Sandberg in Charge.

Lieut. Fred Sandberg, department fingerprint expert, will be in charge of installation of the Scotland Yard method, known as the Battley system. No other American city employs the British plan, although Los Angeles has a modified type of single print classification.

Cost of new equipment will be negligible and necessary expenditures were approved yesterday by Gen. Glassford, after a talk with Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, detective chief, who presented his and Lieut. Sandberg's theories on the new plan.

"The classification formula used," said Lieut. Sandberg, "being based on the type of pattern in each of the ten digits together, makes it rather difficult to identify a person through prints found at the scene of a crime which are often narrowed down to a single print or even to a fraction of one. However, identifications in such cases are made, but only after a long and tedious search."

Will Save Much Time.

Lieut. Sandberg pointed out that because of the time involved in tracing down a particular print through present files, with more important work cropping up from time to time, it is quite possible that dangerous criminals escape the hands of justice. Now, with each print classified separately, the finding of a single print at the scene of a crime may not only allow police to lay hands on the perpetrator quickly, but also to clear up other crimes expeditiously.

First-Degree Murder Charged in Indictment

Walter Mason, colored, yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury on a charge of murder in the first degree in connection with the slaying of James Carroll, also colored, at 71 Fenton place northwest, April 5.

Mason shot Carroll, it was charged, because he suspected Carroll of "having put the police on him." His alleged victim died the following day in Freedmen's Hospital.

Two Robbers Bind Peddler And Take $25

Louis Polimenakos, pushcart operator, is a thrifty and frugal soul. Consequently it galled him when two armed holdup men took away the fruits of his labors, and although they tied him up he refused to be stopped. Polimenakos kicked away the bonds from his feet, and with his arms still tied behind him chased them for several blocks.

Polimenakos was putting away his cart in a garage in an alley between Second and Third, B street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest last night when he felt something in his back. He caught sight of two men with pistols out of the corner of his eye. They ordered him to silence.

Then, he told police, they threw him to the ground and searched him, taking $25 in bills.

The two men bound him, hand and foot, and then threw him in a corner of the garage and left. The push cart dealer kicked the rope from his feet and chased after them. He was unable to free his arms.

The pair of bandits was nearing Second and B streets when Polimenakos got out of the alley. He shouted to William Moore, colored, of 208 B street northwest, standing nearby, to stop them, but Moore was unable to prevent the armed men from entering a cab which apparently was waiting for them.

Still bound, Polimenakos managed to stop another cab, and he and Moore piled in. Just then Private A. R. Coleman came around a corner and Polimenakos called to him. He climbed in the cab and the chase started.

The bandit's cab was faster, however, and escaped after several blocks.

Police Locate 2 Small Boys On Circus Lot

The lure of the circus has always been irresistible for boys and Joseph Garbey, 4, of 741 Fifth street southeast, and Joseph Breen, 5, 407 G street southeast, are no exceptions. It drew them two miles from their homes yesterday and they spent a glorious day ducking under tents and marveling at the wonders of the side shows until police ended their outing about ten hours after they had left their homes.

How the boys, scarcely past the toddling stage, found out the Johnny J. Jones Exposition Shows were playing at Fifteenth and H streets northeast is unexplained, except that the circus is a magnet for boys of all ages.

They left home about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and shortly after their frantic mothers began a wide search, and eventually notified police, who in due time, sent out a lookout for the boys.

About 6:30 o'clock Private C. R. Burr, of the Fourth Precinct, detailed to the circus grounds, saw two very soiled youngsters who were having a good time but who appeared lost. He took them to the Ninth Precinct station, where Night Station Clerk B. C. Black immediately recognized them as the little boys whose descriptions had been carried on the lookout. The two Josephs had an additional thrill when a patrol wagon was sent to bring them back home.

Sister Margaret Clair, head of the St. John's Orphanage at 1922 F street northwest, late last night told police that Robert Cordani, 9 years old, and Bernard Gallagher, 10, had disappeared from the orphanage about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They had not been found early this morning.

3 Who Resisted Ogle Are Indicted

Assault With Weapon Is Laid to Men Captured by Detective.

Three men, all heavily armed, who were captured by Detective Sergt. Howard Ogle in an early-morning battle March 30, yesterday were indicted by the District grand jury on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

The three are Francis J. Mulvey, alias Roy Elmer Holt; William Carley and Russell William Smithers. All are now in the District Jail awaiting trial. Detective Ogle, homeward bound on Eleventh street, between Q and R streets northwest, noticed the trio in an automobile. Their actions aroused his suspicions, and he drove his own machine in front of them, forcing their car to the curb. As Ogle questioned Smithers, Mulvey pulled a gun, and in an ensuing melee, Ogle was shot at twice.

In return, he emptied his service revolver without effecting a hit, but he captured two of the men, the third being arrested at a rooming house. According to Ogle, three guns were taken from the men, each having one.

Representative Gilbert Wins Fee for School Fare Fight

A Municipal Court jury yesterday awarded $250 to Representative Gilbert, of Kentucky, as counsel fees in his fight during 1929 for lower car fares for school children, after a suit in which the representative explained how the lower fare bill was passed.

Mr. Gilbert had filed a claim for $750 against John J. Noonan, one of the agitators for lower fares for pupils. He was employed by Mr. Noonan in March, 1929, he said, and remained in his service until March, 1930, when he was dismissed. At this time, he said, passage of the bill was assured, but Mr. Noonan owed him $750 for his services on behalf of the bill.

Favorable action on the legislation was assured after he had held conferences with Chairman Capper of the Senate District committee, Acting Chairman McLeod of the House District committee, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, former People's Counsel Ralph B. Pieharty and others. Representative Gilbert said. His activity was confined to Congress and the Public Utilities Commission.

Representative Gilbert was not a member of Congress while working for the bill, having given up his seat in the House on March 4, 1929. He was reelected, however, and took office in the present Congress when it met. In the interim he was a member of the Kentucky State Legislature.

PAY SCALE EVADED BY FORCED REBATE, EMPLOYES CHARGE

ASSSERTION IS DENIED BY CONTRACTING FIRM

Bride to Take Up Matter With Builders of Paul Edifice.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride is investigating complaints of the Washington Building Trades Council and affidavits signed by ten workmen employed on the Paul Junior High School that the latter have not been paid in accordance with the terms of the Bacon-Davis wage scale law, it was learned yesterday.

Denied by Officials.

The charges, made against A. Lloyd Goode, Inc., of Charlotte, N. C., were filed about ten days ago and were immediately denied by officials of the building concern. It is expected that the matter will be settled amicably so far as the District government is concerned without the resort to drastic measures.

Most of the workmen, who claim they received the standard wage scale and were then forced to return part of the money to the contractor, were used on carpentry jobs. The workmen contend they are full-fledged carpenters, whereas the contractor says they were merely helpers.

Settled by Compromise.

Similar complaints were filed some months ago against the W. P. Rose Co., of Goldsboro, N. C., and the Charles Bannett Co., of Philadelphia, also in connection with school construction work. The former was settled by Mr. Bride through a compromise, and since that time Engineer Department officials say that the contractor is complying in every way with the wage scale law and the District regulations.

Cab Driver Arrested After 3 Are Injured

Vernon H. Tuttle, 26, of 706 F street northeast, was arrested by Headquarters Detectives Van D. Hughes and George Darnall last night in connection with the running down in Dundalk, Md., near Baltimore, Monday night, of three roller skaters by a taxi bearing Washington tags.

The arrested man, who is said by police to have been listed by a taxi company as driving the cab bearing the numbers taken by a witness of the accident, denied connection with the affair. One of the skaters was seriously injured, the other two slightly. Tuttle is held for Baltimore authorities.
